Important notice

This Guide is based on selected sections of the Companies Act, No. 71 of 2008, (as amended by the Companies Amendment Act, No. 3 of 2011, and referred to as the 'Act') and the Companies Regulations, 2011, as published under GNR.351 in GG 34239 dated 26 April 2011.

Please note that this Guide is not a comprehensive summary of the new Act or its regulations. It includes information on matters which are practical and relevant to SAICA members. In the interest of brevity, the Guide summarises certain provisions of the new Act and the Regulations or refers to extracts. The Guide is not intended to be exhaustive and should not be viewed as a substitute for reading the Act and the Regulations. The information given in this document does not constitute legal advice and should be treated with caution.

At the time of compiling this Guide the interpretation of the new Act has not been tested in a court of law. Therefore, where the Guide suggests a particular interpretation or approach to any matter, this is based only on SAICA's current view of the interpretation of the Act. Although SAICA has consulted widely on contentious issues, it is possible that a different view may ultimately be followed in practice, for example in instances where the Companies and Intellectual Property Commission provides specific guidance.

SAICA recommends that any decision or actions being considered in relation to the new Companies Act and its Regulations be checked with appropriately qualified legal advisors, the Companies and Intellectual Property Commission or another appropriate expert.

This Guide does not consider the JSE Listings Requirements, King III or any other legislation or regulation affecting the compliance requirements of businesses.

COMMENTARY

1 Introduction

The new Companies Act, No. 71 of 2008 (the 'Act'), replaced the Companies Act, No. 61 of 1973 (the 'previous Act') in its entirety on 1 May 2011, except for the provisions relating to winding-up and liquidation. As such, it will have a significant impact on all aspects of conducting business in South Africa. The implementation of this Act presents both challenges for and opportunities to companies. The purpose of this Guide is to provide companies with an indication of some of the important issues that arise for their business as a result of the anticipated changes to the corporate landscape.

2 Glossary

AFS	Annual Financial Statements;
AGM	Annual general meeting;
alterable provision	a provision of the new Act in which it is expressly contemplated that its effect on a particular company may be negated, restricted, limited, qualified, extended or otherwise altered in substance or effect by that company's Memorandum of Incorporation (MOI). Annexure 'A' contains a list of alterable provisions;
APA	Auditing Profession Act, No. 26 of 2005;
beneficial interest	'beneficial interest' is defined as follows: * 'when used in relation to a company's securities, means the right or entitlement of a person, through ownership, agreement, relationship or otherwise, alone or together with another person to – (a) receive or participate in any distribution in respect of the company's securities; (b) exercise or cause to be exercised, in the ordinary course, any or all of the rights attaching to the company's securities; or (c) dispose or direct the disposition of the company's securities, or any part of a distribution in respect of the securities, but does not include any interest held by a person in a unit trust or collective investment scheme in terms of the Collective Investment Schemes Act, 2002 (Act No. 45 of 2002);'

* Definitions are quoted from the Companies Act, No. 71 of 2008 and the Companies Regulations.

CIPC/Commission	the Companies and Intellectual Property Commission, which replaced the Companies and Intellectual Property Registration Office (CIPRO). In terms of Schedule 5 par 12 of the new Act, the CIPC took over all the assets, liabilities and contractual arrangements of CIPRO. The Act refers to the CIPC as 'the Commission';
Effective Date	the Act uses the expression 'general effective date' to refer to the date on which section 1 of the Act comes into operation. For purposes of brevity we use the term 'Effective Date', which is 1 May 2011;
ECT	Electronic Communications and Transactions Act, No. 25 of 2002;
FRS	financial reporting standards;
IFAC	International Federation of Accountants;
IFRS	“IFRS” means the International Financial Reporting Standards as issued from time to time by the International Accounting Standards Board or its successor body;
IFRS for SMEs	“IFRS for SMEs” means the International Financial Reporting Standards for Small and Medium Enterprises, as issued from time to time by the International Accounting Standards Board or its successor body;

3 Important information

3.1 Continuation of existing companies, rights and obligations

- 3.1.1 Any right or entitlement enjoyed by, or obligation imposed on, any person in terms of any provision of the previous Act that had not been spent or fulfilled immediately before the Effective Date is a valid right or entitlement of, or obligation imposed on, that person in terms of any 'comparable' section of the Act, as from the date that the right, entitlement or obligation first arose, subject to the provisions of the new Act. (Schedule 5, Item 11 of the Act)
- 3.1.2 Every company which existed immediately before the Effective Date continues to exist as a company, as if it had been incorporated and registered in terms of the Act, with the same name and registration number previously assigned (Schedule 5, Item 2 of the Act). Certain companies, affected by the change in classification, will be 'deemed' to have changed their names as required, as from the 'general effective date'. These will include:
- section 21 companies (for this type of company instead of the suffix 'Association incorporated under section 21' it will attach the suffix 'NPC' to its name); and
 - state-owned companies (this type of company will change its name to include the suffix 'SOC Ltd').

3.2 Interpretation of the Act

- 3.2.1 Section 5 of the Act prescribes the interpretation and application of the Act. It provides that the Act must be applied in accordance with the 'purposes' of the Act as contained in S7. These purposes are diverse and include matters such as promotion of compliance with the Bill of Rights and encouragement of the efficient and responsible management of companies.
- 3.2.2 Section 5 also provides specifically that a court may consider foreign company law to the extent appropriate for the interpretation or application of the Act.
- 3.2.3 If there is an inconsistency between the Act and the provisions of other national legislation, both Acts shall apply concurrently to the extent that it is possible to apply and comply with one of the inconsistent provisions without contravening the second. To the extent that it is impossible to apply or comply with one inconsistent provision without contravening the second, the Act shall prevail, with certain exceptions. These exceptions that will prevail are:

- Auditing Profession Act, No. 26 of 2005;
- Labour Relations Act, No. 66 of 1995;
- Promotion of Access to Information Act, No. 2 of 2000;
- Promotion of Administrative Justice Act, No. 3 of 2000;
- Public Finance Management Act, No. 1 of 1999;
- Securities Services Act, No. 36 of 2004;
- Banks Act, No. 94 of 1990;
- Local Government: Municipal Finance Management Act, No. 56 of 2003;
- Section 8 of the National Payment System Act, No. 78 of 1998.

3.2.4 If there is a conflict between a provision of Chapter 8 of the Act and a provision of the Public Service Act, No. 103 of 1994, the provisions of that Public Service Act shall prevail.

3.2.5 Notably, the Income Tax Act, No. 58 of 1962 is not on the list of legislation that will prevail over the Companies Act in the event of an inconsistency. Some amendments have been effected to the Income Tax Act to align it with the new provisions of the Companies Act (e.g. the new concept of 'contributed capital' to move away from the distinction between 'share capital' and 'share premium' accounts). It is likely, however, that further amendments will be required to the Income Tax Act as a result of the implementation of the new Companies Act.

3.2.6 If there is a conflict between the Act and the provisions of the listings requirements of an exchange (i.e. including the JSE Rules):

- the provisions of both the Act and the listings requirements shall apply concurrently, to the extent that it is possible to apply and comply with one of the inconsistent provisions without contravening the second; and
- to the extent that it is impossible to apply and comply with one of the inconsistent provisions without contravening the second, the provisions of the Act shall prevail, except to the extent that the Act expressly provides otherwise.

3.2.7 The JSE Listings Requirements have been amended substantially. Schedule 10 to the Listings Requirements regulates the content of memorandum of incorporation (MOI) of a company that is listed, as well as some aspects of the content of the MOIs of the subsidiaries of these companies. Schedule 10, for example, provides that the MOI of a listed entity must require that the shareholders pass a special resolution to convert ordinary shares into redeemable preference shares, even though the Act provides that only a directors' resolution is required (except to the extent that the MOI provides otherwise). In addition, the Listings Requirements provide that a listed entity and all of its subsidiaries must appoint an auditor, regardless of whether the Act would require such listed entity or subsidiary to audit its financial statements. Both of these examples illustrate scenarios where it is possible to comply with the provisions of the Listing Requirements without contravening the Act. Therefore, even though the Listings Requirements provide for a more onerous standard than the Act (i.e. there is a conflict between the requirements of the Act and the Listings Requirements), a company is able to manage this 'conflict' by complying with the higher standard. See summary of differences between Companies Act and the JSE Listings Requirements in Annexure E.

3.2.8 Practical example of 'inconsistency':

Different types of inconsistencies may arise. In most instances, the differences between the Act and the other legislation can be dealt with by complying with the 'higher' standard. For example, section 23 of the Long-term Insurance Act, No. 52 of 1998 provides that the board of a long-term insurer shall appoint an audit committee of at least three members, of whom at least two shall be independent non-executive directors within the meaning of section 269A(4)(b) and (c) of the Companies Act. There are a number of inconsistencies between this requirement of the Long-term Insurance Act and the Companies Act.

Firstly, section 269A is a reference to the 1973 Companies Act (the previous Act).

Secondly, section 94 of the Companies Act dealing with audit committees of public companies does not use the term of 'independent non-executive'. However, if the specific criteria in section 94 of the Companies Act for audit committee members are applied, all three of these members (as opposed to the minimum of two) will effectively be independent and non-executive.

Thirdly, the Long-term Insurance Act provides that the board must appoint the audit committee, which is inconsistent with the requirement of the Companies Act that the audit committee be appointed by shareholders. As it is not, in this instance, possible to comply with both the relevant Acts, the Companies Act requirement that the audit committee must be appointed by shareholders will prevail in this instance.

- 3.2.9 In terms of S6 of the Act, a court may declare an agreement, transaction, resolution or a provision of a company's MOI void, to the extent that it is primarily or substantially intended to defeat or reduce the effect of a prohibition or requirement of the Act and defeats or reduces the effect of a prohibition or requirement.
- 3.2.10 Application may be made to the Companies Tribunal for an administrative order exempting an agreement, transaction, resolution or a provision of a company's MOI, from the Act.
- 3.2.11 Section 158 provides that any of the CIPC, the Takeover Regulation Panel, the Companies Tribunal or a court, when determining a matter brought before it, must promote the spirit, purpose and object of the Act and, if any provision of the Act, or any other document in terms of the Act, read in its context, can reasonably be construed to have more than one meaning, the relevant forum must prefer the meaning that best promotes the spirit and purpose of the Act and best improves the realisation and enjoyment of rights.
- 3.2.12 It is suggested that, in practice, the following approach should be followed when any difficulties arise in understanding the provisions of the Act:

The Act as a whole is to be read in its entire context so as to ascertain the intention of Parliament (the law as expressly or impliedly enacted by the words), the object of the Act (the ends sought to be achieved), and the scheme of the Act (the relation between the individual provisions of the Act).

The words of the individual provisions to be applied to the particular case under consideration are then to be read in their grammatical and ordinary sense in the light of the intention of Parliament, embodied in the Act, and if they are clear and unambiguous and in harmony with the intention, object and scheme and with the general body of the law, that is the end.

If the words are apparently obscure or ambiguous, then the meaning that best accords with the intention of Parliament, the object of the Act and the scheme of the Act, but one which the words are reasonably capable of bearing, is to be given them.¹

3.3 Non-compliance

The Act decriminalised South African corporate law. Although a very few incidents of non-compliance are still deemed to be an offence (e.g. where a person hinders the administration of the Act, or where they issue a prospectus containing false or misleading information), the Act is mostly now based on civil liability. In terms of S218(2), any person may now hold any other person liable if he or she suffered loss or damage as a result of the first person not complying with the provisions of the Act. The Act also allows for class action, which means that groups of aggrieved parties (such as shareholders, creditors and communities) may now institute action against the company, a director, prescribed officer or any other official where they can show loss or damage as a result of non-compliance.

3.4 Company records in electronic form

Section 6(11) provides that any document that a company is obliged to retain may be retained in electronic form. In terms of S6(7), an unaltered electronically or mechanically generated reproduction of any document (other than a share certificate) may be substituted for the original. Further, if 'notice' is required, it is sufficient that the notice is transmitted electronically directly to the relevant person in a form that allows the notice to be printed by the recipient conveniently within a reasonable time and at a reasonable cost (see S6(10)). It would therefore seem to be acceptable for e-mails to be sent. In terms of S24, any information required to be kept by the company must be retained for at least seven years. Note that the provisions of the Electronic Communications and Transactions Act, No. 25 of 2002 (ECT) are relevant in the facilitation and regulation of electronic communication and transactions. Although the ECT does not limit the operation of the Act, it regulates matters such as the admissibility and evidential weight of data messages and documents kept electronically, such as e-mails. It further, inter alia, regulates the date, time and place of the receipt and dispatch of e-mails. This is relevant if, for example, a dispute arises and it is alleged that a particular electronic notice was not dispatched or received within the time limits prescribed by the Act.

3.5 Substantial compliance

Section 6 of the Act provides that a defect on or a deviation from a form of document, record, statement or notice does not necessarily invalidate such document, record, statement or notice, provided that the defect or deviation does not negatively and materially affect the substance of the document, record, statement or notice and will not reasonably mislead the addressee (see S6(8) and (9)).

3.6 Plain language

Section 6(4) and (5) contains various provisions which are aimed at ensuring that all documentation and disclosures required in terms of the Act are compiled in such a manner that the addressee will reasonably be able to understand the content and significance of the documentation and disclosures, in other words in 'plain language'.

3.7 Actions in contravention of the Act

Note that no agreement, MOI or rules of a company that are prohibited, voidable or may be declared unlawful in terms of the Act are void unless a court declares them void (S218(1)) or unless the Act specifically states that they are void.

3.8 The doctrine of constructive notice

3.8.1 In terms of the previous Act, third parties were deemed to have knowledge of the information contained in a company's Memorandum and Articles of Association, whether they had actual knowledge or not. In terms of the Act, this is no longer the case. S19(4) provides that:

'a person must not be regarded as having received notice or knowledge of the contents of any document relating to a company merely because the document—

(a) has been filed; or

(b) is accessible for inspection at an office of the company.'

3.8.2 Therefore, although a company is required to 'file' its MOI and any amendments thereto with the CIPC and the CIPC is obliged to provide the public with access to documents filed with it, third parties are no longer 'deemed' to have knowledge of the contents of the MOI.

3.8.3 The MOI of a company with the expression '(RF)' after its name is the exception to this rule (see S19(5)). Should there be a limitation on the powers of the company then a person would be bound by this if the company's name included the abbreviation of 'RF'.

3.9 Application of the Act

3.9.1 The Act only applies to legal entities incorporated in South Africa (see definition below) and does not apply to other juristic persons.

3.9.2 The Act defines a company as follows:

“company” means a juristic person incorporated in terms of this Act, a domesticated company, or a juristic person that immediately before the effective date –

(i) was registered in terms of the –

(a) Companies Act, 1973, other than an external company as defined in that Act; or

(b) Close Corporations Act, 1984, if it has subsequently been converted in terms of Schedule 2;

(ii) was in existence and recognised as an “existing company” in terms of the Companies Act, 1973; or

(iii) was deregistered in terms of the Companies Act, 1973 and has subsequently been reregistered in terms of the Act.’

3.9.3 Where the Act refers to a 'company' it is referring to a company as defined above, which would, inter alia, exclude a company incorporated in a foreign jurisdiction. A company incorporated in a foreign jurisdiction, but registered as an external company in South Africa is subject to specific sections relating to external companies only (see detailed discussion under 6 of this Guide).

3.10 Categories of companies

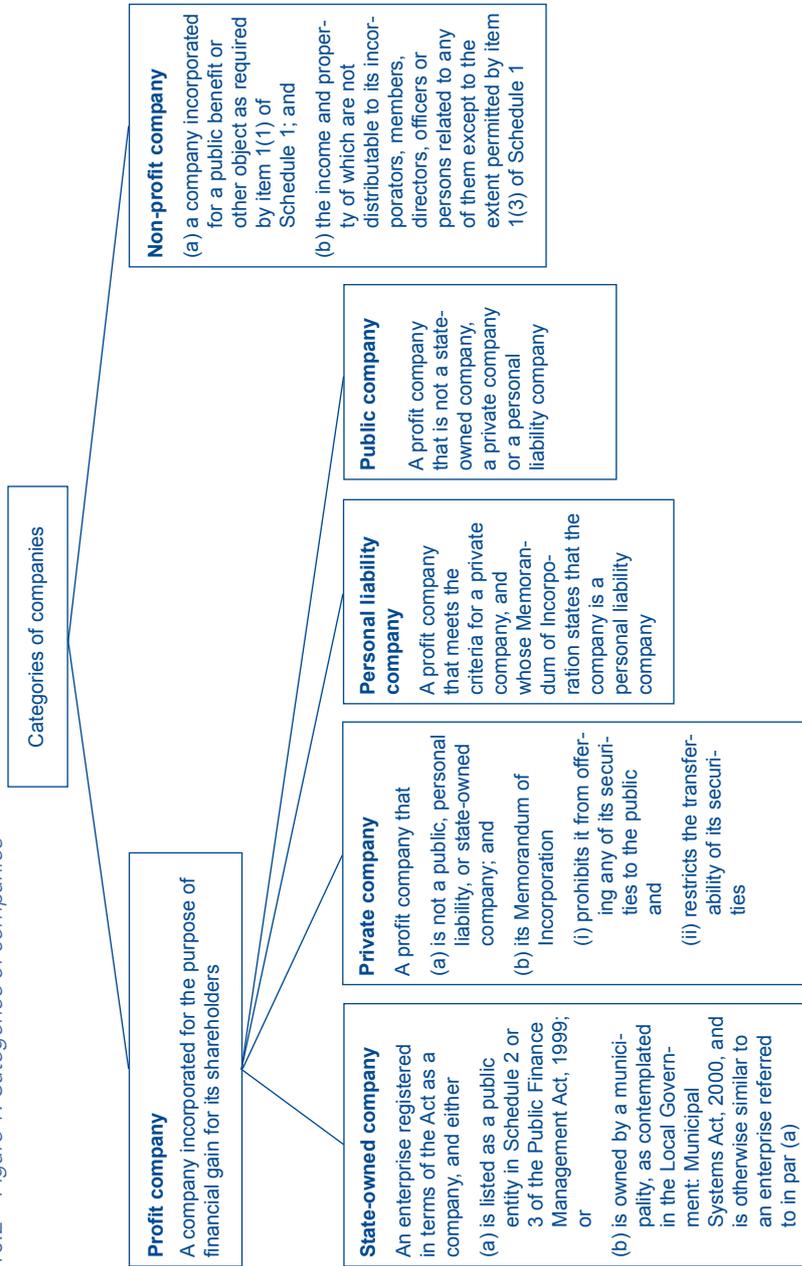

Reference: Section 8 and Section 11

3.10.1 The following categories of companies exist:

- i. Non-profit Companies (to be reflected as 'NPC'); and
- ii. Profit Companies.

Also refer to the diagram below for a summary of the categories of companies.

3.10.2 Figure 1: Categories of companies

- 3.10.3 Profit companies are divided into the following sub-categories:
- Private companies: to be reflected as 'Proprietary Limited' or '(Pty) Ltd' (note that the Act requires no brackets where the long form of the name is used);
 - Personal liability companies: to be reflected as 'Incorporated' or 'Inc.';
 - Public companies: to be reflected as 'Limited' or 'Ltd'; and
 - State-owned companies: to be reflected as 'SOC Ltd'.
- 3.10.4 If a company's MOI includes 'special conditions', the name of the company must include the expression 'RF'. A special condition is any restrictive condition applicable to the company (e.g. limiting the company's capacity to trade or contract) or any special provision relating to the amendment of such a restrictive condition. This would typically apply to a special purpose company where the capacity of the company to carry out certain activities has been limited in its MOI and where such provisions in the MOI may not be amended or may only be amended under particular circumstances.
- 3.10.5 The Act does away with the categories 'widely-held' and 'limited interest' companies that were previously provided for in the 1973 Companies Act.

Non-profit companies

- 3.10.6 Non-profit companies replace the so-called section 21 companies under the previous Act, but the provisions and requirements are more flexible in many respects. Non-profit companies must have a 'public benefit' object or an object relating to cultural or social activities or communal or group interests. Not all the provisions of the Act apply to non-profit companies and there are specific provisions contained in Schedule 1 to the Act that govern these companies.
- 3.10.7 Overall the provisions applicable to non-profit companies are less formalistic and restrictive than used to be the case under the previous Act. For example, non-profit companies are no longer required to have seven members. In terms of Schedule 1, a non-profit company may in its constitution set out whether it will have any members and, if it has members, whether the members will be entitled to vote.

Profit companies

Private companies

- 3.10.8 The provisions and requirements applicable to private companies are similar to those relating to private companies under the previous Act. However, private companies are no longer limited to 50 members as was previously the case.
- 3.10.9 The MOI of a private company must restrict the transfer of securities and prohibit the offering of securities to the public. The previous Act referred to the restriction of the transferability of shares and the prohibition of shares to the public, as opposed to the wider concept of securities. It is very important for private companies to ensure that their MOIs make reference to the restriction on the transferability of the company's securities and the prohibition on offering its securities to the public, as opposed to just referring to restriction on the transferability of the company's shares and the prohibition on offering its shares to the public. Once the two year transitional period has expired, a company that does not restrict the transferability of its securities and does not prohibit the offering of its securities to the public (as opposed to just referring to restriction on the transferability of the company's shares and the prohibition on offering its shares to the public) may inadvertently be classified as a public company.

Personal liability companies

- 3.10.10 The personal liability company is a private company of which the directors and past directors are jointly and severally liable, together with the company, for any debts and liabilities that were contracted during their periods of office. These provisions are similar to the incorporated professional practices which used the abbreviation 'Inc.' under the previous Act. The MOI of a personal liability company must state that it is a personal liability company.

Public companies

- 3.10.11 These companies are similar to public companies under the previous Act, although only one member is required (compared to the requirement for seven members previously).

State-owned companies

- 3.10.12 A state-owned company is a company which is listed as a public entity in Schedule 2 or 3 of the Public Finance Management Act, No. 1 of 1999 (PFMA), or is owned by a municipality and is similar to a public entity as listed in Schedule 2 or 3 of the PFMA.

3.10.13 The majority of the provisions of the Act which apply to a public company will apply to a state-owned company, unless the Minister has granted an exemption for any such provisions.

4 Memorandum of Incorporation (MOI)

4.1 Scope of the MOI

Reference: Section 15(6)

Issue: Scope of the MOI

Issues for consideration

- 4.1.1 Under the previous Act the Memorandum and Articles of Association were binding between the company and its shareholders and also among the shareholders inter se.
- 4.1.2 The MOI under the Act is binding between the company and its shareholders and also among the shareholders. The MOI is also binding on directors, prescribed officers and board committee members.
- 4.1.3 In terms of S15(6), a company's MOI is 'binding –
- (a) between the company and each shareholder;*
 - (b) between or among the shareholders of the company; and*
 - (c) between the company and –*
 - (i) each director or prescribed officer of the company; or*
 - (ii) any other person serving the company as a member of a committee of the board,*
- in the exercise of their respective functions within the company.'*

4.2 Amended formalities in respect of the MOI

Reference: Section 13, Section 16 and Forms CoR15.1A – E

Issue: Amended formalities in respect of the MOI

Issues for consideration

- 4.2.1 Under the previous Act companies had to register 'Memorandums of Association' and 'Articles of Association'. The content of the articles was not prescribed, but Table A or Table B of the previous Act could be used and applied unless excluded or modified by the company.

- 4.2.2 The Act replaces the previous requirement for both a memorandum and articles with a single memorandum of incorporation (MOI). On the incorporation of a new company, the MOI must be completed and filed by way of a notice of incorporation. Forms CoR15.1A to CoR15.1E provide the format of the MOI for the different categories of companies. Section 13(1)(a)(ii) provides that an MOI can be in a form unique to the company.
- 4.2.3 Where the MOI is amended in terms of section 16 the following should be filed with the Commission:
- a Notice of Amendment in Form CoR15.2;
 - a copy of the completed MOI;
 - a copy of a special resolution of the company approving the new form of MOI.
- 4.2.4 Important issues to be taken into account are that the new Act requires a private company to state that it is prohibited from offering securities to the public and restricts transferability of securities. Please see 3.10.9 of the Guide for a detailed discussion.
- 4.2.5 Companies that adopted Table B articles must also take note that the standard set of articles stated that all companies require an audit and an annual general meeting (AGM). Companies should take note that they will have to amend their MOIs to take advantage of the new Act's provisions for not having an audit in certain circumstances or not requiring an AGM. If these requirements are in the current articles then for the period up to 1 May 2013 they will take precedence over the requirements of the Act. Thereafter, companies will have to meet the requirements of the MOI and the Act, unless there is conflict and the requirements of both the Act and the MOI cannot be met. Should there be conflict, the Act will prevail after 1 May 2013. If the requirements in the MOI are of a more stringent nature, then the more stringent provision will prevail, which could mean having an audit or an AGM.
- 4.2.6 The short form CoR15.1A provided for private companies can be used to file a new MOI. SAICA is of the view that the form is not complete and that the following should be included by private companies in their MOI to ensure completeness:

Content required for private companies in terms of the Act:

- private company requirements. That is: (1) prohibit offering of any securities to the public and (2) restrictions on the transferability of securities.
- shares: authorised classes of shares, number of shares, (S36(1)(a)) designation and rights of each class (S36(1)(b));
- any provisions in the previous version of the MOI (for many companies this will still be the previous set of Memorandum and Articles of Association) that are specific to the business/company/industry and that the company wishes to retain.

Additional matters which should, as a minimum, be considered when drafting an MOI:

- consider in respect of directors: election of directors – exclude statutory requirement that appointment of directors be voted on separately per director (S68(2)(a)). In other words specifically state in the MOI that more than one director may be elected by a combined shareholders' vote;
- directors' round robin resolutions: it is suggested that the provisions of S74(1) be amended to provide that a decision that could be voted on at a board meeting may instead be adopted by written consent only with the consent of all the members of the board (instead of the majority of the board as provided for in S74(1));
- pre-emptive rights in respect of shares: consider whether the company wishes to specifically:
 - exclude the statutory right of pre-emption on the issue of shares (S39(2)); and/or
 - include a right of pre-emption on sale of shares to third parties by existing members as a matter of course;
- right of directors to amend the MOI: consider in respect of shares, that directors be specifically prevented from amending the authorisation and classification of shares, the numbers of authorised shares of each class, and the preferences, rights, limitations and other terms associated with each class of shares as set out in the company's MOI. In other words, consider limiting the right granted to directors to amend the MOI in this regard in terms of S36(2);

- any other provisions specifically selected for alteration by the company from the list of alterable provisions.

4.3 Filing of the MOI

Reference: Section 1, Schedule 5, Transitional arrangements, paragraph 4

Issue: When must the MOI be filed?

Discussion

- 4.3.1 New companies must on incorporation complete and file the MOI by way of a notice of incorporation.
- 4.3.2 For pre-existing companies the current Memorandum and Articles of Association become the new MOI by operation of law (see definition of MOI in S1).
- 4.3.3 The provisions of the MOI must be consistent with the Act, unless the Act permits otherwise. Companies cannot 'contract out' of the Act.
- 4.3.4 However, during a period of two years immediately following the Effective Date, if there is a conflict between the Act and a provision of the MOI, the MOI will prevail (with certain exceptions referred to below).

Issues for consideration

- 4.3.5 The Act clearly intends that companies will use the two-year interim period to familiarise themselves with the Act and to align their MOI with the Act.
- 4.3.6 Despite the two-year interim period referred to above, the following provisions of the Act apply as from the Effective Date (in other words regardless of the content of the MOI):
- a person who is ineligible to be or disqualified from being a director, alternate director, prescribed officer, company secretary or auditor is deemed to have resigned from any office held in that company;
 - a company is deemed to have a number of vacancies on the board equal to the number by which the minimum number of directors required in terms of the Act exceeds the actual number of directors of the company;

- a vacancy in the office of director, company secretary or auditor must be filled in accordance with the Act;
- the duties, conduct and liability of directors apply to every director of a pre-existing company;
- rights of shareholders in terms of the Act to receive any notice or have access to any information;
- provisions regarding meetings of shareholders or directors, and adoption of resolutions must be carried out in accordance with the Act;
- the provisions relating to fundamental transactions apply;
- any distribution, financial assistance, and insider share issue or options (even if such action is approved by the company's shareholders before the Effective Date) must be approved in terms of the provisions of the Act (read with section 44, 45 and 46, discussed in 8.5–8.7 of this Guide);
- the right of any person to seek a remedy in terms of the Act applies with respect to conduct pertaining to a pre-existing company and occurring before the Effective Date, unless the person had commenced proceedings in a court in respect of the same conduct before the Effective Date.

4.3.7 Note: The significance of the transitional arrangements is that they may create a false sense of security that a particular position (under the previous Act) continues to apply. The Act will apply as from the Effective Date, therefore, where the Act contains alterable provisions which are not altered or arranged differently in the existing Articles, the Act will prevail despite the continuance of the existing Articles and Memorandum of Association as the MOI.

4.4 Special conditions in the MOI

Reference: Section 11(3), Section 13(3) and Section 15(2)

Issue: Inclusion of special conditions in the MOI

Issues for consideration

Section 53 of the previous Act entitled a company to include special conditions in the Memorandum of Association. Similarly S15(2) of the Act permits special conditions. Section 13(3) requires the inclusion of a prominent statement in the notice of incorporation which indicates the existence of each special condition and its location in the MOI. Section 11(3) determines that if a company's MOI includes any special condition, its name must also be immediately followed by the expression 'RF' to alert third parties dealing with the company that such special conditions exist. An example of a type of special condition can include the requirement that a company is not allowed to be involved in business dealing with the liquor trade.

4.5 Third-party knowledge of special conditions in the MOI and the doctrine of constructive notice

Reference: Section 19(4), Section 19(5), Section 20(1) and Section 20(7). Also see 3.8 (The doctrine of constructive notice) and 7.3.4 (Rights of access to documents filed with the Commission) in this Guide.

Issue: Third-party knowledge of special conditions in the MOI and the doctrine of constructive notice

Discussion

4.5.1 In terms of the previous Act, third parties were deemed to have knowledge of the information contained in a company's Memorandum and Articles of Association, whether they had actual knowledge or not. In terms of the Act, this is no longer the case. Section 19(4) provides that:

'a person must not be regarded as having received notice or knowledge of the contents of any document relating to a company merely because the document –

(a) has been filed; or

(b) is accessible for inspection at an office of the company.'

4.5.2 Therefore, although a company is required to 'file' its MOI and any amendments thereto with the CIPC and the CIPC is obliged to provide the public with access to documents filed with it, third parties are no longer 'deemed' to have knowledge of the contents of the MOI.

4.5.3 The MOI of a company with the expression '(RF)' after its name is the exception to this rule (see S19(5)). Section 19(5) of the Act provides that if a third party's attention is drawn to the inclusion of special conditions in the MOI, such a third party must be regarded as having received notice and of having knowledge thereof.

Issues for consideration

- 4.5.4 Owing to the impact of S20(1), special conditions in the MOI should be effected in such a manner that they satisfy the prescribed procedural requirements, as opposed to being limitations on the capacity of the company to enter into transactions. Actions in contravention of a limitation on capacity will not be void, in terms of S20(1) of the Act. Section 20 can be compared to S36 of the previous Act.
- 4.5.5 Furthermore, S20(7) of the Act codifies the existing ‘Turquand Rule’ and provides that a third party dealing with the company in good faith is entitled to assume that the company, in exercising its powers, has complied with all the formal and procedural requirements in terms of the Act, the MOI and any other rules of the company unless in the circumstances the person knew or reasonably ought to have known of any failure by the company to comply with a requirement.

4.6 Alterable and unalterable provisions

Reference: Section 1, Section 15(2), Section 19 and Annexure A of the Guide

Issue: The Act states that certain provisions of the Act can be altered.

Discussion

- 4.6.1 Unlike the previous Act, the Act offers flexibility to companies by entitling them to alter certain alterable provisions of the Act.
- 4.6.2 Alterable provisions are defined in S1 as provisions which expressly contemplate that their effect on a particular company may be negated, restricted, limited, qualified, extended or otherwise altered in substance or effect by that company’s MOI.
- 4.6.3 These alterable provisions merit careful consideration for, if an alterable provision is not altered in the company’s MOI as permitted by the Act, then the Act in that regard will apply to such a company.
- 4.6.4 By the same token and by definition an unalterable provision means a provision of the Act that does not expressly contemplate that its effect on any particular company may be negated, restricted, limited, qualified, extended or otherwise altered in substance or effect by a company’s MOI or rules.

- 4.6.5 Section 15(2)(a)(iii) does, however, specifically allow a company to impose on the company 'a higher standard, greater restriction, longer period of time or any similarly more onerous requirement, than would otherwise apply to the company in terms of an unalterable provision' of the 2008 Act. A company cannot therefore remove or diminish an unalterable provision by way of a different requirement in the MOI, but a company may impose on the company a more onerous requirement pertaining to that unalterable provision by way of additional requirements stipulated in the MOI.
- 4.6.6 Alterable provisions mainly relate to the allocation of power between shareholders and directors, the procedure dealing with convening of shareholder and directors' meetings, quorums required at meetings and the majority vote requirements for passing ordinary and special resolutions. Some examples of alterable provisions are:
- quorums at meetings where the company may specify a lower or higher percentage in place of the 25% required; and
 - the higher percentage that a company may require for ordinary resolutions, or permitting a different percentage of voting rights than 75% to approve a special resolution.

Issues for consideration

- 4.6.7 There is a need for the immediate assessment of provisions to be inserted in the MOI to ensure:
- no unintended consequences arise as a result of the operation of the alterable provisions (see Annexure A); in other words, the assessment should establish which alterable provisions should immediately be excluded or amended. An example of a provision that may require immediate alteration is the powers of the directors in terms of S36(2)(b) to authorise or issue shares and the rights, limitations or preferences of any shares;
 - alignment and compliance with provisions that are immediately effective, for example notices of shareholders' meetings, and dissenting shareholders' appraisal rights (see S164 read with Schedule 5 par 7(5)(b)).

Additional considerations

- 4.6.8 It appears from the wording of the transitional arrangements that multiple amendments may be made to the MOI during the two-year 'grace' period without affecting the fact that the MOI of a pre-existing company prevails over the Act in the event of a conflict between the MOI and the Act (subject to certain exceptions in the transitional arrangements). (See Schedule 5 Item 4(4)(i).) Note that the same does not apply to shareholders' agreements. Shareholders' agreements immediately lose the benefit of the transitional period when they are amended, as discussed below in 4.7.

- 4.6.9 During the two years immediately after the Effective Date, a full and detailed analysis of the provisions of the Act and the drafting of a new MOI that aligns with the requirements of the company as well as its business partners (for example existing joint venture partners) should take place.
- 4.6.10 Examples of matters that can be considered during the two years immediately after the Effective Date are:
- whether to provide for different percentages for the passing of ordinary or special resolutions (see S65(8) and (10)); and
 - the extent to which directors and prescribed officers will be indemnified by the relevant company (S78).

4.7 Shareholders' agreements

Reference: Section 15(7), Wording of Alterable Provisions in Annexure A, Annexure B, Section 1 definition of MOI (b)(ii) and Schedule 5 Item 4(3A)

Issue: Shareholders' agreements

Discussion

- 4.7.1 Shareholders' agreements must be consistent with the Act and the MOI (but see the transitional arrangements (Schedule 5 Item 4(3A)) that provide that shareholders' agreements in place on 1 May 2011 will continue to have the same force and effect that they had prior to 1 May 2011, until amended or the expiry of two years, whichever is the earlier).
- 4.7.2 In terms of S15(7), the shareholders of a company may enter into any agreement with one another regarding any matter relating to the company, but the agreement must be consistent with the Act and the MOI (it will be void to the extent of any inconsistency). However, in terms of the transitional provisions in Schedule 5 Item 4(3A), the agreement will, despite S15(7), be valid for a period of two years from the Effective Date, after which period it will be valid only to the extent that it is consistent with the Act and the MOI.

4.7.3 Note: Any amendment made to the shareholders' agreement during the two-year 'grace period' will have the result that the 'grace period' expires immediately.

4.7.4 The consequence is that a shareholders' agreement can effectively amend the alterable provisions of the Act for a period of two years.

Issues for consideration

4.7.5 During the two years after the Effective Date, companies should perform a full, detailed analysis of the provisions of existing shareholders' agreements relating to the company to understand:

- whether the shareholders' agreement will contradict either the Act or the MOI;
- whether the shareholders' agreement affects any alterable provisions;
- whether the matters discussed in Annexure B or other matters of convenience, for example the new voting thresholds required for fundamental transactions contemplated in S115(3), are or should be addressed in the shareholders' agreement.

4.7.6 Within the two-year period immediately after the Effective Date, an assessment of the shareholders' agreement should be carried out to determine whether to insert new provisions into or delete existing provisions from the agreement, and an analysis of its interaction with the Act and relevant MOI of the company must be undertaken, considering, for example:

- where the shareholders' agreement is inconsistent with the Act or MOI, amendments to the relevant provisions; and
- confidential arrangements which would preferably be included in a shareholders' agreement rather than an MOI.

5 Interpretation of certain issues

5.1 Subsidiary relationships

Reference: Sections 1 and 3

Issue: Definition of subsidiary relationships

Discussion

5.1.1 A company is a subsidiary of another juristic person if that juristic person or one or more other subsidiaries of that juristic person, or one or more nominees of that juristic person or any of its subsidiaries, alone or in any combination:

- is directly or indirectly able to exercise, or control the exercise of, a majority of the general voting rights associated with issued securities of that company, whether pursuant to a shareholder agreement or otherwise; or
- has the right to appoint or elect, or control the appointment or election of, directors of that company who control a majority of the votes at a meeting of the board.

Issues for consideration

5.1.2 For the purposes of determining whether a person controls all or a majority of the general voting rights:

- voting rights attached to securities that will only be issued in certain circumstances will be included if the circumstances have been met and for as long as they continue to be met or the circumstances are under the control of the person holding the voting right;
- voting rights that are exercisable only on the instruction or with the consent or concurrence of another person are to be treated as being held by that other person;
- voting rights held by a person in a fiduciary capacity are to be treated as held by the beneficiary of those voting rights.

5.1.3 A subsidiary would be classified as a wholly owned subsidiary of another juristic person if all of the general voting rights associated with issued securities of the company are held or controlled (directly or indirectly) by that juristic person.

- 5.1.4 The definitions provided in S3 of a 'subsidiary' and a 'wholly-owned subsidiary' are for the purposes of the Act and may be different from the definitions provided in the financial reporting standards as identified in Regulation 27. For example, in accordance with S3 of the Act, only a company can be a subsidiary as defined in S1 of the Act. In accordance with IFRS, IFRS for SMEs and SA GAAP (refer to Annexure D of the Guide), any entity can be a subsidiary regardless of legal form as long as it is controlled by the holding company. For the purposes of the preparation of the financial statements as required by S29 of the Act, the requirements of the financial reporting standards as prescribed by Regulation 27 should be applied. It is important to also note that the definition of 'control' in the applicable accounting framework may be different from the definition of 'control' in terms of the Act. It would therefore be possible for a company to be classified as a subsidiary of another company in terms of the accounting framework, but not in terms of the Act, and vice versa.
- 5.1.5 Section 1 of the Act defines a 'juristic person' as including a foreign company and a trust (irrespective of whether the trust was established within the Republic or outside the Republic). Given the definition of a subsidiary discussed earlier, read with the definition of a juristic person, it would therefore be possible for a trust or a foreign company to be a 'holding company' without necessarily meeting the definition of a 'company'.
- 5.1.6 When applying any section of the Act which makes reference to 'a group of companies', 'a holding company' or 'a subsidiary', the requirements of those sections would apply to every juristic person in that group that satisfies those definitions at that date. It is important to note that the matters outlined in 5.1.2 above may result in a different classification at different times. Whenever a decision is considered pertaining to a matter affected by the definitions discussed above, the board of directors will need to take into consideration all the relevant information available at that time, to determine whether an entity is a subsidiary or holding company of another entity at that time.

5.2 Performing the solvency and liquidity test

Reference: Section 4

Issue: Performing the solvency and liquidity test

Discussion

5.2.1 The manner in which the solvency and liquidity test should be performed is not clear.

Issues for consideration

5.2.2 A company is required to perform a solvency and liquidity test for the following actions:

- providing financial assistance for the subscription of its own securities (S44);
- providing loans or other financial assistance to directors and to a related or inter-related company (S45);
- making distributions (S46);
- issuing capitalisation shares (S47);
- acquiring own securities or subsidiary acquiring holding company securities (S48); and
- amalgamating or merging (S113).

5.2.3 Solvency test

- The solvency test is designed to determine whether the assets fairly valued exceed the liabilities fairly valued on the date that the test is performed.

5.2.4 Liquidity test

- The liquidity test is designed to indicate whether the company will be able to settle its debts when they become due in the ordinary course of business within at least 12 months after the relevant action is performed or, in the case of distributions, 12 months after the distribution is made.
- It is recommended that the liquidity test is performed by carrying out a detailed cash flow analysis that clearly indicates the expected cash inflows and outflows of the company for at least the following 12 months. This will clearly indicate the ability of the company to pay its debts when they become due and its ability to generate cash in its ordinary course of business. The budget of the company as well as its cash conversion ability (ability to generate cash profits based on experience) should be applied as the basis for this test.

Information to be used for the liquidity and solvency test

5.2.5 Step 1: The tests should be performed by obtaining the information as provided in the:

- accounting records prepared in accordance with S28 and Regulation 25; and
- financial statements prepared in accordance with S29 and Regulation 27.

5.2.6 Step 2: When evaluating the financial information obtained in Step 1, a company should remember that not all components presented were measured at their fair value or that all items required to be considered by S4 of the Act were included in the accounting records and the financial statements. A company would therefore be required to:

- obtain a fair value for all assets and liabilities not measured at their fair value in the accounting records and financial statements; and
- obtain the fair values of contingent assets and contingent liabilities (for example legal claims against the company that did not meet the recognition criteria of the applicable financial reporting framework) that were not recognised in the accounting records or financial statements of the company.

The determined fair value is not limited to a fair valuation as defined in the financial reporting standards.

5.2.7 Step 3: Lastly, a company should evaluate the reasonableness of the fair values already obtained. At this stage any other valuation of the assets and liabilities should be considered as identified in Step 1 and Step 2 that appears to be reasonable in these circumstances.

Directors should, however, be cautious about using another valuation basis as permitted in S4(2)(b)(ii). When deviating from the values arrived at by using the accounting principles directors would need to be in a position to motivate using another valuation that is 'reasonable in the circumstances' to meet the solvency and liquidity test (to pay a dividend, for example). If the company is challenged at a later stage and directors do not have a robust basis to support alternative valuations this could result in the directors incurring personal liability for losses suffered.

5.2.8 Practical issues to consider are the following:

- For considerations regarding the impact of subordination and other similar agreements on the solvency and liquidity test, please refer to the SAICA Guide on Trading Whilst Factually Insolvent.
- Directors should also be reminded that they will need to refer to the company's MOI to identify any additional restrictions that may apply. For example, if the company's Memorandum contains a clause stating that a dividend may only be paid out of profits, the company may find itself in a position where it may be able to justify satisfying the solvency and liquidity test (due to using a 'fair value' other than those recorded in the financial statements), but that the additional restriction in the Memorandum would prevent the payment of the dividend as the company may not have sufficient profits to pay the dividend.
- In practice it is seldom possible to prepare financial statements right up to the actual date on which the test is conducted. When financial statements made up to an earlier date are used, care should be taken to ensure that all material post-balance sheet events have been allowed for.

6 External companies

Reference: Section 13, Section 23, Section 32, Section 33, Section 115 and Section 159

Issue: How does the Act impact on external companies?

Discussion

- 6.1 The previous Act applied to external companies in its entirety unless otherwise stated. The Companies Act does not include an external company in the definition of a company and therefore only those sections of the Act which make specific reference to external companies would apply.
- 6.2 An external company will be recognised as doing business in South Africa if it has any employees in the Republic or if it is engaging in a course of conduct or has engaged in a course or pattern of activities over a period of at least six months that would lead a reasonable person to conclude that the company continues to engage in business in the Republic.
- 6.3 When applying the test in determining whether an external company is doing business in South Africa, the items noted below may be indicators of a foreign company conducting business in the Republic, but a foreign company must not by default be regarded as conducting business activities if it engages in one or more of the following requirements as stated in S23(2A):
- holding a meeting or meetings within the Republic of the shareholders or board of the foreign company, or otherwise conducting any of the company's internal affairs within the Republic;
 - establishing or maintaining any bank or other financial accounts within the Republic;
 - establishing or maintaining offices or agencies within the Republic for the transfer, exchange or registration of the foreign company's own securities;
 - creating or acquiring any debts within the Republic, or mortgages or security interests in any property within the Republic;

- securing or collecting any debt, or enforcing any mortgage or security interest within the Republic; or
 - acquiring any interest in any property within the Republic.
- 6.4 External companies are required to maintain at least one office in the Republic and register the address of this office or of its principal office when filling in its registration forms. External companies remain liable to file annual returns.
- 6.5 The Act does not contain the onerous provisions that apply to external companies in terms of the previous Act. External companies will not be required to be audited or independently reviewed and do not have to meet the requirements in terms of the enhanced accountability requirements set out in Chapter 3 of the Act.
- 6.6 Table 1 below highlights some of the salient differences between the requirements of the previous Act and the 2008 Act. This table is however not intended to be exhaustive.
- 6.7 Table 1: Companies Act requirements for external companies

Previous Act	New Act
Register within 21 days	Register within 21 business days
Companies Act applicable unless otherwise stated	Companies Act only applicable where stated
Required to appoint auditor	No requirement
Appoint and have at least one resident person to accept services in the Republic	Appoint and have at least one person located in South Africa to accept services in the Republic
Keep accounting records and lodge annual financial statements (AFS)	No requirement to lodge AFS or financial accountability supplement
Need to lodge an annual return	Need to lodge an annual return
The process to deregister an external company is set out	No deregistration, dissolution or winding-up procedures
Failure to meet Companies Act requirements is classified as an offence	No offence
External company cannot be voluntarily wound up, but can be placed under liquidation by a court	No requirement

Previous Act	New Act
External company can transfer its registration to South Africa	External company can transfer its registration to South Africa, referred to as a 'domesticated company' in the Act

Issues for consideration

- 6.8 If an external company does not register within three months after commencing business activities in the Republic, the Commission may issue a compliance notice requiring it to register within 20 business days after receiving the notice. If the external company fails to register, the Commission may request the external company to cease doing business in the Republic.
- 6.9 The Act also provides for a mechanism by which foreign companies can be 'domesticated'. This means that a foreign company can transfer its registration to South Africa. In order to transfer its registration the foreign company must comply with the specific provisions of the Act. These include:
- establishing that the law of the jurisdiction in which the company is registered permits such a transfer;
 - obtaining the approval of its shareholders;
 - ensuring that the whole or greater part of its assets and undertaking are within South Africa, other than the assets and undertaking of any subsidiary that is incorporated outside South Africa;
 - ensuring that the majority of its shareholders are resident in South Africa; and
 - that the majority of its directors are or will be South African citizens.

The company must, after registration, satisfy the solvency and liquidity test and no longer be registered in another jurisdiction.

7 Accounting, company records, financial statements and auditing

7.1 Company records and retention of records

Reference: Section 24, Section 25 and Section 26

Issue: Records can be kept electronically.

Discussion

7.1.1 Certain important compliance-related provisions are made in the Act, including that:

- records of the company referred to in S24 (as included in Table 2) must be kept at, or made accessible from, the company's registered office or another location within the Republic. In respect of each of the records contemplated in S24 which are not kept at or made accessible (presumably in the case of electronic documentation) from the company's registered address, a notice must be filed with the Commissioner.
- accurate and complete accounting records of the company must be kept at or made accessible from the company's registered office. Refer to 7.5 of this Guide for the requirements relating to the form and content of accounting records.
- the company must maintain records in written or any other form. Where records are kept electronically, it must be possible to convert the documents and information into written form within a reasonable time. Therefore all records, including minutes, can be kept in electronic form.

Issues for consideration

7.1.2 The company will generally be obliged to comply with the administration and recordkeeping provisions of the Act from the Effective Date. In this regard we suggest that the current systems and practices be evaluated for compliance and for considering possible changes required to the current systems and practices.

7.1.3 Table 2: Retention of documents

	Document	Retention period
1	Any documents, accounts, books, writing, records or other information required to be kept in terms of the Act and other public regulations	7 years or longer as stated in public regulations
2	Registration certificate	Indefinite
3	Memorandum of Incorporation and alterations or amendments	Indefinite
4	Company rules	Indefinite
5	Securities register, uncertificated securities register and members' register in case of non-profit company	Indefinite
6	Register of company secretary and auditors	Indefinite
7	Regulated companies (companies to which Chapter 5, parts B, C and Takeover Regulations apply) – Register of disclosures of persons who hold beneficial interest equal to or in excess of 5% of the securities of that class issued	Indefinite
8	Notice and minutes of all shareholder meetings, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • resolutions adopted • documents made available to holders of securities 	7 years
9	Copies of reports presented at the annual general meeting (AGM) of the company	7 years
10	Copies of annual financial statements (AFS) required by the Act	7 years
11	Copies of accounting records as required by the Act	7 years
12	Record of directors and past directors, after the directors have retired from the company	7 years
13	Written communication to holders of securities	7 years
14	Minutes and resolutions of meetings of directors, audit committee and directors' committees	7 years

This Guide has only referred to the Act's retention requirements. There is other legislation dealing with other information to be retained and companies should also refer to those requirements.

7.2 Annual returns

Reference: Section 33 and Regulation 30

Issue: All companies have to complete an annual return on an annual basis.

Issues for consideration

- Every company must file an annual return within 30 business days after the anniversary of its date of incorporation, using Form CoR30.1.
- Companies that are required by the Act or Regulation 28 to be audited are obliged to submit copies of the latest approved audited annual financial statements (AFS) with their annual returns (S33(1)). All other companies not required to be audited can either submit their AFS or complete a Financial Accountability Supplement (Form CoR30.2).
- It is possible that the date of incorporation does not coincide with the year-end of the company. In this instance the company would be required to provide the latest approved audited AFS.
- Every external company must file an annual return within 30 business days after the anniversary of its date of registration as an external company on Form CoR30.3.
- The annual return must also include the name of the person who will be designated to ensure that the company complies with the requirements of Chapter 2, Part C and Chapter 3.

7.3 Right to access information

7.3.1 Enhanced right by security holders to access information

Reference: Section 26, Section 31 and Section 187(5). Also refer to Section 56 of the Act, which deals with beneficial interest.

Issue: A person who holds or has a beneficial interest in any securities issued by a profit company, or who is a member of a non-profit company, has enhanced rights to access information.

7.3.1.1 Discussion

- Section 26 deals comprehensively with access to information by 'a person who holds or has a beneficial interest in any securities issued by the company', and contemplates a process in terms of which the relevant person can 'demand' access (i.e. access is not automatic).

- Note that this section refers to the holder of any security as defined or a person with a beneficial interest in a security, not only shareholders.
- Security holders have a right to access, inter alia, the following:
 - the MOI and any amendments to it;
 - any rules of the company;
 - records of the company's directors;
 - reports to annual meetings;
 - AFS;
 - notices and minutes of shareholders' meetings (including resolutions and documents presented in relation to those resolutions);
 - written communications sent generally by the company to all holders of any class of the company's securities; and
 - the securities register.
- Security holders do not, in terms of S26, have an automatic right to access the company's accounting records, minutes of directors' meetings or board committee meetings.
- The MOI may provide for the accessing of further information by security holders.

7.3.1.2 In terms of S31, any person who holds or has a beneficial interest in any security issued by a company is entitled, without demand, to notice of publication of AFS and the steps to be followed to obtain copies.

Issues for consideration

7.3.1.3 Consider whether the MOI should grant the additional right to access information.

7.3.1.4 Depending on the number of shareholders and the existence of other 'securities' in respect of a particular company, the company should assess whether its present records and registers contain sufficient and updated information on all holders of securities as well as those who are not the registered holders but who hold a beneficial interest in securities. This assessment should be undertaken as soon as possible. Where access to records is requested, information or access to the information must be provided within 14 business days.

- 7.3.1.5 The register of members and directors must be available for inspection during normal business hours at no cost to any member, and any other person should not pay more than R100.00 to inspect the registers.
- 7.3.1.6 Companies should take note that it is an offence not to provide the information on the basis of a reasonable request or to refuse access to the information unreasonably.
- 7.3.1.7 Companies should also note the provisions of S187 (discussed under 7.3.4 below) that, inter alia, determine that the Commission must receive and deposit in the registry any documents required to be filed in terms of the Act and make the information in those registers efficiently and effectively available to the public and to other organs of state.
- 7.3.1.8 The Act does not diminish the rights of any person to assert his or her rights in terms of the Promotion of Access to Information Act, 2000, either against the company directly or against the Commission.

7.3.2 Right of creditors

Reference: Section 31(2)

Issue: Right of judgement creditor to access AFS

Discussion

- 7.3.2.1 If a judgement creditor of a company has been informed, by a person whose duty it is to execute the judgement, that there appears to be insufficient disposable property to satisfy that judgement, the judgement creditor is entitled, within five business days after making a demand, to receive without charge one copy of the most recent AFS of the company.

Issues for consideration

- 7.3.2.2 It is an offence not to comply with the request within five business days. Companies should therefore ensure that they either comply with the request or obtain specific legal advice regarding any other actions to be taken.

7.3.3 Rights of unions

Reference: Section 31(3)

Issue: Rights of trade unions to access information

7.3.3.1 Discussion

- Section 31(3) provides that trade unions must, through the CIPC and under conditions as determined by the CIPC, be given access to company financial statements for purposes of initiating business rescue proceedings.
- Note that the term 'trade union' in this section is not defined. It probably refers to any trade union registered in terms of S96 of the Labour Relations Act, No. 66 of 1995, regardless of the level of representation of union members in a particular company.

Issues for consideration

7.3.3.2 The company should ensure that it puts steps in place in anticipation of a request by any trade union for access to financial statements.

7.3.3.3 It is an offence not to comply with the request within five business days. Companies should therefore ensure that they either comply with the request or obtain specific legal advice regarding any other actions to be taken.

7.3.4 Right of access to documents filed with the Commission

Reference: Section 33(1) read with Regulation 30(2), Section 187(5) – (7) and Section 212

Issue: Right of persons to access documents filed with the Commission

7.3.4.1 Discussion

- Section 187(5) allows any 'person' to, on payment of the prescribed fee:
 - inspect any document filed in terms of the Act;
 - obtain a certificate from the Commission regarding the contents of any document that has been filed by a company in terms of the Act and which is open to inspection;
 - obtain a copy of any such document.

7.3.4.2 The above will not apply if the information has been determined to be confidential in terms of S212 of the Act. To claim confidentiality, the claim must be supported by a written statement explaining why the information is confidential. The Commission must then consider the claim of confidentiality and make a decision on the confidentiality of the information. If the Commission concludes that the information is not to be considered confidential, a party may apply to a court for an appropriate order.

Issue for consideration

- 7.3.4.3 Read with Regulation 30, S33 of the Act requires a company that is required to be audited by the Act or the Regulations to also attach a copy of the latest approved audited AFS to the annual return. There is thus a possibility that S187 may allow any person (i.e. including a person not related to the company) to request and receive a copy of those financial statements or a certificate outlining the contents of these statements. As these financial statements were filed as per the Act, it is SAICA's view that these financial statements could be public records and no longer subject to provisions applying to the financial records kept by the company.

7.4 Financial year of a company

Reference: Section 27

Issue: Requirements for the year-end of a company

Discussion

- 7.4.1 The first financial year of a company may not end more than 15 months after the date of registration of the company. Although there is a limitation on the maximum number of months a company's new financial year-end can be, there does not appear to be any limitation if a company is reducing its financial year.
- 7.4.2 A company is allowed to change its financial year-end only once during a financial year by filing Form CoR25. After the change, the following financial year-end should not be more than 15 months after the end of the preceding financial year. The newly established financial year-end must be later than the date on which Form CoR25 is filed. A company cannot change its year-end (December) to a later month (February) after the company's year-end has already passed (in January).

7.5 Accounting records

Reference: Section 28 and Regulation 25

Issue: Accounting records required

Discussion

- 7.5.1 A company must keep accounting records in an official language of the Republic, as necessary to provide an adequate information base sufficient to support the preparation of the financial statements as required by Regulation 27 and the audit or review requirements of Regulations 28 and 29.

7.5.2 Section 28 requires a company to keep accurate and complete accounting records:

- to enable the company to satisfy its obligations in terms of the Act (or any other law) with respect to the preparation of financial statements; and
- those records must include any prescribed accounting records, which must be kept in the prescribed manner and form.

7.5.3 Regulation 25 states that a company must keep accounting records as necessary to provide an adequate information base sufficient to:

- enable the company to satisfy all reporting requirements applicable to it as set out in S28(1) read with S29(1) of the Act; and
- provide for the compilation of financial statements, and the proper conduct of the audit or independent review, of its AFS.

7.5.4 Regulation 25(3) then states: 'To the extent necessary for a particular company to comply with section 28(1), read with section 29(1), the accounting records of that company must include. . .' certain minimum records.

7.5.5 A company is thus required to keep all the details set out in Regulation 25 to the extent that they are applicable to the company, i.e. if the company has non-current assets, then it must keep the required register containing all of the prescribed information, but if the company does not have non-current assets then the company is not required to keep the register.

7.5.6 It is our view that directors have access to the accounting records of the company as the business and affairs of the company are managed by the board of directors.

7.6 Financial statements

7.6.1 Summarised financial statements

Reference: Sections 1 and 29 and Regulation 27

Issue: What does the Act require when a company elects to provide a summary of its financial statements?

Discussion

7.6.1.1 While S1 of the Act does not include summarised financial statements in its definition of financial statements, S29 makes provision for companies to provide a summary of any particular financial statement to any person.

7.6.1.2 Specifically, regarding the notice of the AGM to shareholders, the Act requires the notice to include either the financial statements to be presented or a summarised form of these statements.

7.6.1.3 The Act does not mandate the preparation of summarised financial statements, but if a summary of any particular financial statement is provided to any person S29(3) states –

'(a) any such summary must comply with any prescribed requirements; and

(b) the first page of the summary must bear a clear prominent notice –

(i) stating that it is a summary of particular financial statements prepared by the company, and setting out the date of those statements;

(ii) stating whether the financial statements that it summarises have been audited, independently reviewed, or are unaudited;

(iii) stating the name, and professional designation, if any, of the individual who prepared, or supervised the preparation of, the financial statements that it summarises; and

(iv) setting out the steps required to obtain a copy of the financial statements that it summarises.'

7.6.1.4 To the extent that the prescribed financial reporting standards contained in Regulation 27 to the Act provide guidance for summarised financial information, companies should apply this guidance in the preparation of their summarised financial statements.

7.6.1.5 Currently none of the IFRS, SA GAAP or IFRS for SMEs contain guidance for the preparation of summarised financial statements.

7.6.1.6 It is our view that the requirements of S29(3) do extend to newspaper advertisements or SENS notices of company results. These are advertisements and compliance notices respectively and do fall within the ambit of 'summaries', which are envisaged to be official company documents in book/let form.

7.6.1.7 Similarly presentations and result booklets do need to meet the requirements of S29(3).

Issues for consideration

- 7.6.1.8 Where a company elects to prepare summarised financial statements, the company must ensure that, at a minimum, such statements satisfy the requirements of the Act.
- 7.6.1.9 SAICA's recommendation is that until such time that the Minister makes regulations in terms of summarised financial statements we recommend that any summary produced should be in line with International Accounting Standard 34: Interim Financial Reporting (IAS 34).
- 7.6.1.10 Care should be exercised not to refer to any information which is merely an extract from part of the financial statements in such a way that it may be interpreted as, summarised financial statements.

7.6.2 Independent accounting professional

Reference: Regulation 26

Issue: The Regulations state that the independent accounting professional responsible for the independent review of financial statements may not be responsible for the compilation and preparation of those financial statements.

Discussion

- 7.6.2.1 The Regulations define an independent accounting professional as a person who is:
- a registered auditor in terms of the Auditing Profession Act, No. 26 of 2005 ('the APA');
 - a member in good standing of a professional body that has been accredited in terms of S33 of the APA; or
 - qualified to be appointed as an accounting officer of a close corporation in terms of S60(1), (2) and (4) of the Close Corporations Act, 1984. See Table 3 for persons eligible to be appointed as accounting officers.
- 7.6.2.2 Such a person must meet the independence criteria described below:
- Regulation 26(1)(d)*
- '(ii) does not have a personal financial interest in the company or a related or inter-related company; and*
- (iii) is not –*

(aa) involved in the day-to-day management of the company's business, nor has been so involved at any time during the previous three financial years; or

(bb) a prescribed officer, or full-time executive employee of the company or another related or inter-related company, nor has been such an officer or employee at any time during the previous three financial years; and

(iv) is not related to any person who falls within any of the criteria set out in clause (ii) and (iii). (The term 'related' is defined in S2 of the Act.)

Employee compiling AFS

7.6.2.3 The question arises as to whether an employee of a company who meets the qualifications of an independent accounting professional may compile the AFS of the company, and whether such AFS can be considered to be independently compiled.

7.6.2.4 Assume that the employee is not involved in the day-to-day management of the company's business and is not a prescribed officer or full-time executive employee of the company; nor is he related to anyone performing such functions.

7.6.2.5 The matter to be considered is whether the employee can be said to have a personal financial interest in the company. Section 1 states that a "personal financial interest", when used with respect to any person –

(a) means a direct material interest of that person, of a financial, monetary or economic nature, or to which a monetary value may be attributed; but

(b) does not include any interest held by a person in a unit trust or collective investment scheme in terms of the Collective Investment Schemes Act, No. 45 of 2002, unless that person has direct control over the investment decisions of that fund or investment.

7.6.2.6 There are differing views on these issues, but SAICA's view is included under the issue for consideration.

Issues for consideration

7.6.2.7 The salary which the employee earns from the company represents a direct material interest of that employee in the Company A, as his/her salary represents a material source of his/her personal income. As such if the employee were to compile the AFS, such statements would not be regarded as being independently compiled.

- 7.6.2.8 One could argue that as a result of his/her membership of a professional body, such as the South African Institute of Chartered Accountants (SAICA), the employee would be required to satisfy any independence requirements as contained in the applicable professional code, such as the SAICA Code of Professional Conduct ('the Code'). Despite the fact that some comfort may be obtained from the fact that the employee will not conduct himself in a manner contrary to this code, his/her position as employee means that he is subject to an employment contract and in order to fulfil this role he is likely to be influenced by instruction from his/her superiors. This means that he/she cannot be considered to be independent of the company or fellow group companies.
- 7.6.2.9 It is thus our view that employees of companies will not meet the independence criteria for independent accounting professionals and thus cannot be appointed as independent accounting professionals for the company which employs them.

Employee compiling related company's AFS

- 7.6.2.10 Similarly the question arises as to whether an employee of group Company A who meets the qualifications of an independent accounting professional may compile the AFS of fellow group Company B, and whether such AFS may be considered to be independently compiled.
- 7.6.2.11 Assume that the employee is not involved in the day-to-day management of Company B's business and is not a prescribed officer or full-time executive employee of either Company A or Company B; nor is he related to anyone performing such functions.
- 7.6.2.12 The matter to be considered is whether the employee can be said to have a personal financial interest in either Company A or Company B.
- 7.6.2.13 There are differing views on these issues, but SAICA's view is included under the issue for consideration.

Issues for consideration

- 7.6.2.14 The salary which the employee earns from Company A represents a direct material interest of that employee in Company B (a related company), as his/her salary represents a material source of his/her personal income. As such if the employee were to compile the AFS of Company B, such statements would not be regarded as being independently compiled.

- 7.6.2.15 One could argue that as a result of his/her membership of a professional body, such as the South African Institute of Chartered Accountants (SAICA), the employee would be required to satisfy any independence requirements as contained in the applicable professional code, such as the SAICA Code of Professional Conduct. Despite the fact that some comfort may be obtained from the fact that the employee will not conduct himself in a manner contrary to this code, his/her position as employee will mean that he is subject to an employment contract and in order to fulfil this role he is likely to be influenced by instruction from his superiors. This means that he/she cannot be considered to be independent of the company or fellow group companies.
- 7.6.2.16 It is thus our view that employees of group companies will not meet the independence criteria for independent accounting professionals and thus cannot be appointed as independent accounting professionals for fellow group companies.

7.6.3 Internal versus independent compilation of financial statements

Reference: Section 30 and Regulation 26

Issue: Internal versus independent compilation of financial statements

Discussion

- 7.6.3.1 A company's financial statements may be compiled internally or independently. AFS will be considered to be compiled internally unless they have been independently compiled and reported. AFS are defined as being independently compiled and reported when:
- they are prepared by an independent accounting professional;
 - they are prepared on the basis of financial records provided by the company; and
 - they are compiled in accordance with any relevant financial reporting standards.
- 7.6.3.2 All three requirements must be met for the financial statements to be considered independently compiled and reported. If one of the requirements is not met, then the financial statements will be considered internally compiled.
- 7.6.3.3 The default position is that AFS are internally compiled unless it is asserted that they are independently compiled and reported subject to the above criteria being met.
- 7.6.3.4 The question arises as to the difference in meaning of the terms 'prepared' and 'compiled'. It would seem as if prepare and compile in the ordinary sense have the same meaning as defined in Dictionary .com:
- "Compile" means to put together (documents, selections, or other materials) in one book or work.*
- "Prepare" means to put in proper condition or readiness.'*
- 7.6.3.5 The preparation and compilation of financial statements include the compilation of the income statements, balance sheet, cash flow statement and notes. The financial records used for this process include the ledgers, journals, documents and trial balance.
- 7.6.3.6 The distinction between internal or independent compilation is important when clarifying whether a company should be audited or reviewed in certain circumstances.

7.6.3.7 Figure 2: Requirements for independent or internally compiled financial statements

For more detail regarding audit and review requirements see Annexure C of this Guide.

7.6.3.8 We believe that companies should decide whether they want their financial statements to be independently compiled. Should that be the case, then they should ensure that they meet the requirements for financial statements to be 'independently compiled and reported'. If a company does not meet the requirements, its statements will be considered to be internally compiled, as the Regulations specifically state that all financial statements are deemed to have been prepared internally unless they specifically meet the requirements for being considered independently compiled and reported.

Issues for consideration

7.6.3.9 The issue arises regarding where a line can be drawn between independent and internal compilation. What would be the case, for example, where a person or company was employed to prepare the financial/accounting records and then prepare the financial statements? Companies would have to evaluate whether the three requirements were met, and, if not, then the statements could not be considered to be independently compiled.

7.6.3.10 The company must ensure that an appropriately qualified person is appointed to act as the independent accounting professional.

7.6.4 Requirements for annual financial statements

Reference: Section 1 and Section 30

Issue 1: Are individual company financial statements still required to be prepared for a company that prepares consolidated financial statements?

Discussion

7.6.4.1 Section 30 requires each company to prepare AFS. If a group scenario exists, consolidated financial statements may be required to be prepared in accordance with the prescribed financial reporting standard applicable to the company. In this case a company would still be required to prepare company AFS to comply with the requirements of S30 and consolidated AFS to comply with the prescribed financial reporting standard and therefore the Act. The Act does not provide any company with any exemption from preparing consolidated financial statements if so required by the prescribed financial reporting framework applicable to the company.

Issue 2: When should AFS be prepared?

Discussion

- 7.6.4.2 Section 30 requires that every company prepare AFS each year within six months after the end of its financial year

Issue for consideration

- 7.6.4.3 Companies should ensure that they meet the six-month deadline for completing the financial statements as there is currently no extension of the six months allowed and companies would be in breach of the Act should they not complete their financial statements within the six months. There is currently no clarity regarding what the implications of this 'breach' will be and SAICA will strive to clarify these in future.

Issue 3: When should financial statements be approved and who should approve them?

Discussion

- 7.6.4.4 The AFS should be approved by the board of the company and signed by an authorised director. The AFS should then be presented to the first shareholders' meeting after the statements have been approved by the board.

- 7.6.4.5 Additionally S30 requires that the AFS of a company must –

- '(a) Include an auditor's report, if the statements were audited;*
- (b) include a report by the directors with respect to the state of affairs, the business and profit or loss of the company, or of the group of companies, if the company is part of a group, including –*
 - (i) any matter material for the shareholders to appreciate the company's state of affairs; and*
 - (ii) any prescribed information;*
- (c) be approved by the board and signed by an authorised director; and*
- (d) be presented to the first shareholders meeting after the statements have been approved by the board.'*

7.6.4.6 It is, however, important to note that:

- there is no specific timing requirement for the first shareholders' meeting where the AFS will be presented to the shareholders; and
- the AFS can be signed by only one director where the previous Act required at least two directors.

7.6.4.7 Regulation 27 additionally provides guidance on what financial reporting framework should be applied when these AFS are prepared (refer to Annexure D of the Guide for detailed guidance on the application of Regulation 27).

Issue 4: What are additional disclosure requirements for the preparer or the supervisor of the preparation of the AFS?

Discussion

7.6.4.8 S29 requires that all sets of financial statements prepared by a company, including AFS, set out on the first page:

- the name and professional designation, if applicable, of the person who prepared or supervised the preparation of the financial statements; and
- the fact that the financial statements were subjected to an audit, or a review or neither.

Issues for consideration

7.6.4.9 The requirement to include the name and professional designation of the person who prepared or supervised the preparation of the financial statements has raised a question regarding whose name should be included where financial statements are internally or independently compiled. Determining who the preparer is should be based on who is ultimately responsible for the decision to prepare the financial statements. If management was responsible for preparing and compiling the AFS, the finance director or manager assigned to complete the financial statements should be identified.

7.6.4.10 The independent accounting professional's details can be included as the preparer and compiler.

7.7 Auditing and review requirements

7.7.1 Requirements for audit and review

Reference: Section 30 and Regulations 26 and 28

Issue: Which companies should be audited or reviewed?

Discussion

7.7.1.1 The Act requires all public and state-owned companies to be audited. Companies that fall into other categories will have to refer to the Regulations, where additional categories of companies to be audited are set out (refer to 7.7.2).

7.7.1.2 Companies can also voluntarily choose to be audited by including the requirement in their MOI, or by determination by board resolution or shareholder resolution.

Issue for consideration

7.7.1.3 Companies need to consider the requirements for audit or independent review as discussed in the following section.

7.7.2 Requirements for a private, personal liability or non-profit company to be audited

Reference: Section 30, Regulations 26 and 28 and Annexure C and Annexure D

Issue: Which private, personal liability or non-profit companies are required to be audited?

Discussion

7.7.2.1 The Regulations provide that, in addition to public and state-owned companies, where the audit of any other company is desirable in the public interest, as indicated by prescribed criteria in any particular financial year, the AFS of that company must be audited. The prescribed criteria which indicate that an audit is required are as follows:

- if in the ordinary course of its primary activities, a profit or non-profit company holds assets in a fiduciary capacity for persons who are not related to the company, and the aggregate value of such assets held at any time during the financial year exceeds R5 million;
- a non-profit company which was incorporated –

- directly or indirectly by the state, an organ of state, a state-owned company, an international entity, a foreign state entity or a foreign company; or
 - primarily to perform a statutory or regulatory function in terms of any legislation, or to carry out a public function at the direct or indirect initiation or direction of an organ of the state, a state-owned company, an international entity, or a foreign state entity, or for a purpose ancillary to any such function;
 - any other company whose public interest score in that financial year is 350 or more; or
 - any other company whose public interest score in that financial year is at least 100 (but less than 350) and its AFS for that year were internally compiled. For this category of company, the decision as to whether to compile the AFS internally or independently will impact on whether the company is subject to audit or will qualify for independent review.
- 7.7.2.2 The terms 'ordinary course of its primary activities' and 'fiduciary capacity' are not defined.
- 7.7.2.3 Assets held in a fiduciary capacity must be held in the ordinary course of the company's primary business, not incidental thereto, on behalf of third parties not related to the company. Fiduciary capacity implies decision-making capability over the application of the assets and that the third parties have the right to reclaim the assets. These assets may be financial or non-financial assets.
- 7.7.2.4 Whether a company holds assets in the ordinary course of its primary activities depends on the nature of the company, viz. whether the activity is part of the core business or is incidental thereto. Incidental activities will not be included in a company's primary activities.
- 7.7.2.5 There is an alternative view that fiduciary capacity can encompass VAT held on behalf of SARS and the taking of deposits.

Issues for consideration

- 7.7.2.6 Each company must evaluate whether it is required to be audited, for statutory purposes, in terms of the requirements of the Act. Companies should bear in mind that in a group situation an audit of certain group companies, such as significant subsidiaries, may be required in order for the auditor to be able to express an opinion on the consolidated financial statements, regardless of whether such an audit is also a statutory requirement in terms of the Act. The auditor must satisfy this requirement to comply with the International Standards on Auditing (ISA 600 – Special considerations – Audits of group financial statements (including the work of component auditors)).

- 7.7.2.7 Companies should also evaluate whether they will be in the category where the public interest score will fluctuate below and above 350. In this case companies are advised to adopt a conservative approach and carry out an audit. The requirements when companies drift in and out of audit will impact the audit of opening balances and possibly require more audit work when this occurs.
- 7.7.2.8 The public interest score should be calculated at the end of the financial year for the year that has passed. Companies should ensure that where they foresee that the public interest score for the following year will exceed audit requirements they should prepare for an audit for the following year.

7.7.3 MOI still requires company to have an audit

Reference: Section 30 and Regulations 26 and 28

Issue: What is the position of a company where its MOI (in other words its existing set up Memorandum and Articles of Association) has not yet been updated to align with the Act and where the company is required in terms of its MOI to conduct an audit?

Discussion

- 7.7.3.1 As it was the norm under the previous Act for all companies to conduct an audit, many companies will still have the requirement to conduct an annual audit in their MOI (the Memorandum and Articles of Association that became the MOI by operation of law). A company that retains this requirement in its MOI will be bound to conduct an audit (S30(2)(ii)(aa)) regardless of whether it will otherwise meet the audit requirements.
- 7.7.3.2 If a profit company's MOI does not require an audit in terms of the Act, Regulations or its MOI, either the shareholders or directors may still appoint an auditor. If the audit requirement is entrenched in the company's MOI, however, additional requirements will apply that do not apply to a company which audits voluntarily pursuant to an appointment made by the shareholders or the directors. The additional provisions which apply in the event that the MOI entrenches the audit requirement include the auditor independence and rotation requirements (see S84(1)(c)(ii), 90(1A) and 92).

Issue for consideration

7.7.3.3 If a company is not otherwise, in terms of the Act or the Regulations, required to conduct an audit, but is required to audit in terms of its MOI, the company should consider removing such a requirement, as (i) it does not provide the company with an option to consider whether an independent review would better suit its requirements and (ii) additional provisions of the Act apply that will not apply in the event of a voluntary appointment of an auditor by the shareholders or directors.

7.7.4 Voluntary audit

Reference: Sections 30 and 90 to 93

Issue: What requirements will apply to companies that voluntarily choose an audit?

Discussion

7.7.4.1 A private, personal liability or non-profit company may voluntarily elect an audit:

- by including an audit requirement in the company's MOI;
- by a shareholders' resolution; or
- in terms of a board decision.

7.7.4.2 The provisions of the Act relating to mandatory audits (specifically the provisions in S90 to S92) will also apply to any company that voluntarily chooses to have audited financial statements and includes this requirement in its MOI.

7.7.4.3 In the event that a company voluntarily elects by shareholders' resolution or in terms of a board decision to have its AFS for any particular year audited, such a company will not be required to comply with the enhanced accountability requirements in Chapter 3 of the Act, which relate to auditors, audit committees or company secretaries.

7.7.4.4 A company which voluntarily elects to be audited by including an audit requirement in its MOI will be required to comply with S90 to S93 of the Act, which deal with the appointment, resignation, rotation and rights of an auditor. All other sections in Chapter 3 relating to audit committees and company secretary will not apply.

7.7.4.5 Any company whose MOI requires compliance with certain or all of the provisions in Chapter 3 will be required to comply with the enhanced accountability requirements in this Chapter to the extent that the company's MOI so requires.

- 7.7.4.6 In the case of listed companies, the JSE Listings Requirements clarify that all South African subsidiaries of listed companies (including applicants) must continue to be audited regardless of their classification within the Act. The MOI of such subsidiaries must be amended to make provision for the audit. In applying this requirement, companies should have regard to the definition of subsidiary as per the Listings Requirements.

Issue for consideration

- 7.7.4.7 If a company is not otherwise, in terms of the Act or the Regulations, required to conduct an audit, it should consider the implications of inclusion of the requirement of an audit in the MOI or by other decision making.

7.7.5 Independent review of the annual financial statements

Reference: Sections 1 and 30 and Regulations 26 and 29

Issue: Which private, personal liability or non-profit companies must be independently reviewed?

Discussion

- 7.7.5.1 Certain categories of private, personal liability and non-profit companies that are not subject to audit will be required to have their AFS independently reviewed.
- 7.7.5.2 This independent review must be performed in accordance with ISRE 2400, which is the International Standard for Review Engagements, as issued from time to time by the International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board or its successor body.
- 7.7.5.3 The Regulations prescribe the categories of companies to which the independent review requirement will apply, as follows:
- private, personal liability and non-profit companies whose public interest score in that financial year is at least 100 (but less than 350) and its AFS for that year were independently compiled; and
 - private, personal liability and non-profit companies whose public interest score in that financial year is less than 100 and that company does not satisfy the criteria for exemption from review.

7.7.6 Exemptions from independent review

Reference: Section 30(2A) and Regulation 29

Issue: Certain companies do not require an independent review.

Discussion

7.7.6.1 The Regulations clarify that the following categories of companies will not be required to perform an independent review:

- a company which is exempt, in terms of S30(2A) of the Act;
- a company which is required by its own MOI, or required in terms of the Act or by Regulation, to have its AFS for that financial year audited; or
- a company which has voluntarily had its AFS for that year audited.

7.7.6.2 A company may qualify for an exemption from having its AFS independently reviewed as allowed in S30(2A) of the Act. The Act provides that if, with respect to a particular company, every person who is a holder of, or has a beneficial interest in, any securities issued by that company is also a director of the company, then that company is exempt from the requirements in S30 of the Act to have its AFS independently reviewed. It is important to note that this exemption:

- (a) does not apply to the company if it falls into a class of company that is required to have its AFS audited in terms of the Regulations; and
- (b) does not relieve the company of any requirement to have its financial statements audited or reviewed in terms of another law, or in terms of any agreement to which the company is a party.

Issues for consideration

7.7.6.3 While the definition of person in S1 includes a juristic person, S69 clarifies that juristic persons are ineligible to be appointed as directors. Companies in which beneficial interest holders are juristic persons, for example in a group situation where the shares in a subsidiary company are held by its holding company, the holding company will be disqualified from being appointed as a director and as a result the company will not qualify for the exemption from independent review.

- 7.7.6.4 The CIPC holds the view that if a company is held by another company or a trust, then the exemption stated in S30(2A) does not apply, as the company or trust cannot be a director of the company as it is not a natural person. A trust is specifically included in the definition of 'juristic person'.
- 7.7.6.5 Each company must evaluate whether it is required to be audited or independently reviewed, for statutory purposes, in terms of the requirements of the Act. Companies must also consider whether they qualify for an exemption from the independent review.
- 7.7.7 Persons who meet the requirements to perform an independent review

Reference: Regulation 29

Issue: Which persons are qualified to perform an independent review of the AFS?

Discussion

- 7.7.7.1 An independent review must be performed in accordance with ISRE 2400, the International Standard on Review Engagements: Engagements to Review Financial Statements. The Regulations provide for the qualification of the independent reviewer permitted to perform such independent reviews.
- 7.7.7.2 'An independent review of a company's annual financial statements must be carried out –
- (a) in the case of a company whose public interest score for the particular financial year was at least 100 by –*
 - (i) a registered auditor; or*
 - (ii) member in good standing of a professional body that has been accredited in terms of S33 of the Auditing Profession Act; or*
 - (b) in the case of a company whose public interest score for the particular financial year was less than 100 by –*
 - (i) a person contemplated in (a) above; or*
 - (ii) a person who is qualified to be appointed as an accounting officer of a close corporation in terms of S60(1), (2) and (4) of the Close Corporations Act, 1984 (Act No. 69 of 1984).'*

7.7.7.3 Additionally such a person must meet the independence criteria prescribed for an independent accounting professional in Regulation 26(1)(d), viz. that such a person:

- does not have a personal financial interest in the company or a related or inter-related company; and
 - is not involved in the day-to-day management of the company's business, nor has been so involved at any time during the previous three financial years; or
 - is not a prescribed officer, or full-time executive employee of the company or another related or inter-related company, nor has been such an officer or employee at any time during the previous three financial years; and
- is not related to any person who falls within the independence criteria described above (the term 'related' is defined in S2 of the Act).

7.7.7.4 The independent reviewer may not be the same individual who was involved in the preparation of the said AFS and who acted as the independent accounting professional with respect to those AFS.

7.7.7.5 The Act and the Regulations do not state any requirements for the appointment of the independent reviewer. There is also no requirement to submit any additional forms to the CIPC. SAICA is of the opinion that the board of a company should appoint the independent reviewer.

Issues for consideration

7.7.7.6 Each company which is subject to an independent review must appoint an appropriate independent reviewer who meets the prescribed criteria and qualifications.

7.7.7.7 The Act and Regulations do not prohibit the compiler of the AFS and the independent reviewer from being in the same firm. The compiler or independent accounting professional can be employed in the same firm as the independent reviewer.

7.7.7.8 Where no audit or independent review is required, an independent review can be requested by a company and the independent review will not have to meet the strict requirements of the Act, although the person wishing to perform the independent review will have to meet the requirements for the use and the performance of the independent review.

7.7.8 Reportable irregularities for independent reviewers

Reference: Regulation 29

Issue: The Regulations introduce reporting requirements for independent reviewers with regard to any reportable irregularities.

Discussion

- 7.7.8.1 The Regulations provide that an independent reviewer of a company that is satisfied or has reason to believe that a reportable irregularity, as defined in the Regulations, has taken place or is taking place must, without delay, send a written report to the CIPC. The Commission is empowered to investigate any alleged contravention of the Act.
- 7.7.8.2 The Regulations define a reportable irregularity as any act or omission committed by any person responsible for the management of a company which:
- unlawfully has caused or is likely to cause material financial loss to the company or to any member, shareholder, creditor or investor of the company in respect of his, her or its dealings with that entity; or
 - is fraudulent or amounts to theft; or
 - causes or has caused the company to trade under insolvent circumstances.
- 7.7.8.3 The requirement to report instances where a company is trading under insolvent circumstances is new. It is peculiar that this Regulation requires the reporting of instances in which a company trades under insolvent circumstances, i.e. technical insolvency (liabilities exceed assets). While S22, which deals with the prohibition on reckless trading, provides that the Commission may issue a compliance notice to a company which is unable to pay its debts as they become due and payable in the normal course of business, i.e. commercial insolvency, it was expected that the Commission would utilise the reportable irregularity reporting process to identify any company which was commercially insolvent. This would enable the Commission to issue compliance notices. The wording of Regulation 29 does not achieve this aim. It is likely, however, that the Commission will still use the reports of reportable irregularities as contributing information when making its decision as to whether to issue a compliance notice.

- 7.7.8.4 These requirements contrast with the provisions of the APA, which provide that a registered auditor of a company that is satisfied or has reason to believe that a reportable irregularity, as defined in the APA, has taken place or is taking place must, without delay, send a written report to the Independent Regulatory Board for Auditors.
- 7.7.8.5 The APA defines a reportable irregularity as any unlawful act or omission by any person responsible for the management of an entity which:
- has caused or is likely to cause material financial loss to the entity or to any partner, member, shareholder, creditor or investor of the entity in respect of his, her or its dealings with that entity; or
 - is fraudulent or amounts to theft; or
 - represents a material breach of any fiduciary duty owed by such a person to the entity or any partner, member, shareholder, creditor or investor of the entity under any law applying to the entity or the conduct or management thereof.

Issues for consideration

- 7.7.8.6 The definition of and reporting requirements in respect of reportable irregularities in terms of the Act differ from the requirements provided for in the APA. The 'Reportable Irregularity' under Regulation 29 does not refer to the 'Reportable Irregularity' as defined and reported under the APA.
- 7.7.8.7 More information regarding trading under insolvent circumstances can be found in the SAICA Guide on Trading Whilst Factually Insolvent.

7.8 Use of the company name and registration number

Reference: Section 32(4)

Issue: Use of the company's name and registration number

Discussion

- 7.8.1 A company is required to have its name and registration number provided in legible characters in all notices and official publications of the company, including publications in electronic format, as well as other documents such as:
- letters
 - invoices

- receipts
- bills of exchange
- promissory notes
- cheques
- orders for money or goods
- delivery notes and
- letters of credit

7.8.2 This is different from the previous Act, where the names of directors and the company secretary were also required on correspondence. The requirement for a company to display its name on the outside of its registered office and every office or place in which business is carried on, as required in S50 of the previous Act, has also not been included in the Act.

Issue for consideration

7.8.3 Companies should ensure that they meet the requirements of having their name and registration number appear on all the applicable documentation. The Act specifically mentions notices and publications in electronic format as contemplated in the ECT in all bills of exchange, promissory notes, cheques and orders for money or goods and in all letters, delivery notes, invoices, receipts and letters of credit of the company.

8 Capitalisation of companies

8.1 Authorisation for shares

Reference: Section 36, Section 37(8), Section 39(3), Section 41 and Section 164

Issue: How should shares in future be authorised?

Discussion

- 8.1.1 The authorisation for and classification of shares, the numbers of authorised shares of each class, and the preferences, rights, limitations and other terms associated with each class of shares, as set out in a company's MOI, may be changed only by an amendment of the MOI by special resolution of the shareholders, or by the board of the company, in the manner prescribed by the Act, except to the extent that the MOI provides otherwise. If the board acts pursuant to its authority as prescribed, the company must file a Notice of Amendment of its MOI, setting out the changes effected by the board.
- 8.1.2 Shareholder approval is also required for the issue of shares in certain circumstances. A special resolution is required for an issue of shares, securities convertible into shares, or rights exercisable for shares to persons related or inter-related to the company, its directors or future directors, prescribed officers or any nominee of these. There are exemptions to this which are set out in S41(2) as follows, where the issue is:
- under an agreement underwriting the shares, securities or rights;
 - in the exercise of a pre-emptive right to be offered and to subscribe shares, as contemplated in S39;
 - in proportion to existing holdings, and on the same terms and conditions as have been offered to all the shareholders of the company or to all the shareholders of the class or classes of shares being issued;
 - pursuant to an employee share scheme that satisfies the requirements of S97; or
 - pursuant to an offer to the public, as defined in S95(1)(h), read with S96.

- 8.1.3 Further, an issue of shares, securities convertible into shares, or rights exercisable for shares in a transaction, or a series of integrated transactions, inter alia, requires approval of the shareholders by special resolution if the voting power of the class of shares that is issued or issuable as a result of the transaction or series of integrated transactions will be equal to or exceed 30% of the voting power of all the shares of that class held by shareholders immediately before the transaction or series of transactions.
- 8.1.4 If a company has given notice to shareholders of a meeting to consider adopting a resolution to amend its MOI by altering the preferences, rights, limitations or other terms of any class of its shares in any manner materially adverse to the rights or interests of holders of that class of shares, the notice must include a statement informing shareholders of their rights. At any time before a resolution is to be voted on, a dissenting shareholder may give the company a written notice objecting to the resolution. If the MOI of a company has been amended to alter the preferences, rights, limitations or other terms of a class of shares materially and adversely, any holder of those shares is entitled to seek relief in terms of S64 if that shareholder had notified the company in advance of the intention to oppose the resolution to amend the MOI, and was present at the meeting, and voted against that resolution. This is referred to as the 'appraisal rights' of shareholders.
- 8.1.5 Shareholders who unsuccessfully oppose any fundamental transaction will thereafter be able to compel the company to repurchase all of their shares at a fair value, unless a court orders otherwise.

Issues for consideration

- 8.1.6 In the case of a private company, and subject to its MOI, every shareholder of the company has a right to be offered or to subscribe for any shares issued or proposed to be issued. Therefore, every shareholder of a private company has a right to be offered shares in proportion to his voting power of his general voting rights, prior to any other person being offered the shares. The MOI of public companies and state-owned companies may contain provisions in this regard.
- 8.1.7 Companies should consider whether they are comfortable with the board's powers to authorise shares and change the preferences and rights of the shares, and whether the MOI should limit this authority.

8.2 Issue price for shares

Reference: Section 40

Issue: Issue price for shares

Discussion

- 8.2.1 In terms of S40(1), the board may issue shares only for 'adequate consideration'. This term is not defined in the Act. Subsection (2) provides that before a company issues any particular shares, the board must determine the consideration for which the shares will be issued.
- 8.2.2 In terms of S40(3), the determination by the board as to the adequacy of the consideration may only be challenged on the basis that the directors did not conduct themselves in accordance with the standards of directors' conduct contemplated in S76.
- 8.2.3 In our view, the above gives the directors substantial discretion to determine the appropriate share price for any issue of shares and the ability to take account of all relevant factors, including but not limited to the valuation of the company.

Issues for consideration

- 8.2.4 It is suggested that a valuation of the company may be one of the mechanisms utilised by the directors when deciding on 'adequate consideration' for any issue of shares. However, the directors will also be entitled to take account of any other relevant information, provided the ultimate decision by the directors is arrived at in accordance with the appropriate standard of conduct.
- 8.2.5 We note, once again, that a full record by the directors of the process and information that ultimately determined the issue price for any shares should be a good safeguard in the event that the directors' determination of the 'adequate consideration' is challenged.

8.3 Share premium

Reference: Section 35, Regulation 31 and Schedule 5 Item 6

Issue: Shares no longer have a nominal or par value (S35(2)).

Shares acquired by the company have the same status as authorised unissued shares.

Discussion

- 8.3.1 It will not be possible to create new classes of shares with a par value. For new classes of shares there will therefore no longer be a separation between the share capital and share premium accounts.
- 8.3.2 If a company has existing issued shares with a par value, these shares will continue to have this par value, unless the entire class of shares is converted in terms of Regulation 31. Regulation 31 contains an extensive process for the conversion of par value shares into no par value shares. The conversion of existing shares to no par value shares is a voluntary process, subject to certain limitations set out in the Regulations.
- 8.3.3 Regulation 31 provides further clarification on the position regarding existing classes of par value shares. In summary:
- no new classes of par value shares may be authorised;
 - if there is an existing class of par value shares of which no shares are in issue (i.e. only authorised shares), no shares may be issued from that class until the shares have been converted to no par value shares (only a board resolution is required for the conversion in this case);
 - if there is an existing class of par value shares of which some shares have been issued:
 - the number of shares may not be increased; but
 - existing authorised par value shares may be issued (and the share premium account increased to the extent that the shares are issued for a price in excess of par).
- 8.3.4 The Act does not allow for so-called treasury shares, which are shares held by the company for purposes of later use such as a share scheme. As soon as a company acquires its own shares these become authorised but unissued shares.
- 8.3.5 Neither the Act nor the Regulations provide any guidance regarding the disclosure of the share capital or share premium accounts on the financial statements after conversion from par value to no par value shares.

Issues for consideration

- 8.3.6 Existing par value and share premium accounts will remain on the financial statements of the company for as long as the company has par value shares in issue. A conversion of existing issued authorised shares is voluntary.

- 8.3.7 When no par value shares are issued for the first time, amounts received can all be reflected in a share capital account. The Act is not prescriptive in respect of the name of this account (as opposed to the previous Act, which required the use of names such as 'stated capital', 'share premium', etc.).
- 8.3.8 To the extent that a listed company would prefer to retain shares acquired for future use (to keep them as treasury shares), these shares would need to be acquired by a different company in the group (e.g. a subsidiary of the listed entity). Note, however, that various provisions of the Act impose onerous requirements that may impact on such acquisition by a group company, for example S44 of the Act.
- 8.3.9 We propose that, following conversion of par value to no par value shares, all amounts received by the company in respect of shares issued be reflected as 'share capital'. We propose that the financial statements would merely reflect one amount for share capital which would increase to the extent that more shares were issued and decrease to the extent that any distributions were made from this account. The relevant notes would still indicate the number of shares authorised, issued, etc.

8.4 The concept of capital maintenance

Issue: Rules governing distributions from capital

Discussion

- 8.4.1 Unlike the previous Act, the new Act contains fewer rules relating to the concept of capital maintenance, but rather relies on the solvency and liquidity test principle (S4 of the Act).
- 8.4.2 Specifically, owing to the removal of the par value shares, no requirements are in place for share premium.

Issue for consideration

- 8.4.3 The reduction of capital, unless it takes the form of a redemption of a redeemable security, needs to satisfy the requirements of S4 (Solvency and liquidity test) and S46 (Distributions must be authorised by board).

8.5 Financial assistance to directors and related parties

Reference: Section 45

Issue: The Act refers to the fact that financial assistance cannot be made without certain requirements being adhered to.

Discussion

- 8.5.1 The heading of S45 is somewhat misleading, as this section regulates financial assistance to directors as well as other persons and companies.
- 8.5.2 In terms of this section, unless the company's MOI provides otherwise, the board may authorise direct or indirect financial assistance to the following parties:
- a director and prescribed officer of the company or of a related or inter-related company;
 - a related or inter-related company or corporation;
 - a member of a related or inter-related corporation; or
 - a person related to any of the above parties.
- 8.5.3 The Act provides a wide definition of financial assistance, which includes the lending of money, guaranteeing of a loan and securing of any debt or obligation. However, it should be noted that this section of the Act does not apply to the lending of money where the primary business of the company is to lend money.
- 8.5.4 By extending the provision of financial assistance to related and inter-related companies, the Act effectively requires companies to comply with the provisions of this section in the case of intercompany loans, or any type of financial assistance from one company to another within the same group.
- 8.5.5 Section 45 seems to be based on a policy decision taken during 2007, by the then Minister of Finance, Mr Trevor Manuel, where he specifically mentioned intra-group company loans without shareholder knowledge or approval as a matter of concern. This led to a shift in the drafting policy as reflected in the difference between S226 of the previous Act and S45 of the Act.

Issues for consideration

- 8.5.6 Before the board may authorise any financial assistance, it has to ensure that all statutory requirements are met. Despite any provision of a company's MOI to the contrary, the board may not authorise any financial assistance contemplated in S45, unless:

- the financial assistance is:
 - provided pursuant to an employee share scheme (that satisfies the requirements of S97); or
 - provided in line with a special resolution of the shareholders, adopted within the previous two years, which approved such assistance either for the specific recipient or generally for a category of potential recipients; and
- the board has ensured that:
 - the company will satisfy the solvency and liquidity test immediately after providing the financial assistance; and
 - the terms under which the financial assistance is proposed to be given are fair and reasonable to the company.

8.5.7 Note: This means that the requirements of this section must be complied with where a holding company provides financial assistance to subsidiaries.

8.5.8 With respect to the special resolution required, it should be noted that the resolution must be passed before the provision of financial assistance. Ratification after the fact is not possible. It is possible for the company to phrase the special resolution generally to ensure that it covers all types of financial assistance. However, it is advisable for the board to include at least maximum limits of financial assistance that may be given pursuant to that particular special resolution. It is not necessary to wait for an AGM to pass the required special resolution. The Act allows for resolutions to be circulated to all shareholders as a round robin, and it is no longer required for special resolutions to be registered with the Commission, unless specifically stated.

8.5.9 Of course, in addition to the requirements set out above, the board must ensure that any conditions or restrictions respecting the granting of financial assistance set out in the company's MOI have been satisfied.

8.5.10 An important development is the fact that the Act requires the board to provide written notice to all shareholders (unless every shareholder is also a director of the company) and trade unions representing employees whenever it resolves to provide financial assistance in terms of this section. The required written notice must be provided:

- within 10 business days after the board adopts the resolution, if the total value of all loans, debts, obligations or assistance contemplated in that resolution, together with any previous such resolution during the financial year, exceeds one-tenth of 1% of the company's net worth at the time of the resolution; or
 - within 30 business days after the end of the financial year, in any other case.
- 8.5.11 It should be noted that the Act requires notification to all trade unions. This extends even to trade unions which are not deemed recognised trade unions as per labour law.
- 8.5.12 Any board resolution or an agreement with respect to the provision of such assistance approving the provision of financial assistance that is inconsistent with the requirements of this section is void, and directors may incur personal liability for the damage, cost or loss suffered by the company as a result.
- 8.5.13 Where financial assistance was approved pre 1 May 2011 in terms of the requirements of the 1973 Act, and the assistance was extended before 1 May 2011, the company need not comply with the provisions of S45. Approval by shareholders of such assistance in terms of the new Act is not required as the transaction would have been appropriately approved in terms of the requirements of the previous Act. However, where the approval was granted prior to 1 May 2011, but the assistance is only extended after 1 May 2011, the company should obtain the necessary approval as per the new Act.
- 8.5.14 Note that companies only require shareholder approval at individual company level. Shareholder approval for a wholly owned subsidiary or a subsidiary with a limited number of shareholders should therefore not be an onerous obligation.
- 8.5.15 S45 states that a resolution to provide financial assistance is void if it is inconsistent with S45 or the company's MOI. It is not possible in law to ratify a resolution that is void. Consequently, any subsequent general meeting cannot cure the defect by passing a special resolution in an attempt to ratify the making of the loan.
- 8.5.16 A company should consult legal counsel as to whether another solution exists to rectify the situation. Depending on the specific circumstances of that company, the recipient of the financial assistance may consider repaying amounts received, where after the company that provided the financial assistance may give new financial assistance subject to the provisions of S45, thereby extinguishing the first loan with a second compliant loan remaining. Companies should obtain their own legal advice in this regard.

- 8.5.17 Non-compliance with the requirements of S45 may have an impact on the company's audit opinion and the obligation to report a reportable irregularity. Non-compliance will have to be considered on a case-by-case basis to determine the effect on the audit opinion and any responsibilities regarding reportable irregularities.
- 8.5.18 The client's AFS should contain disclosure explaining the directors' view on the transitional provisions of the Act (in relation to S45) and their particular course of action.
- 8.5.19 The directors' course of action should be minuted at an audit committee meeting (where applicable).

8.6 Financial assistance for subscription of securities

Reference: Section 44 and Section 77(3)(e)(iv)

Issue: Section 44 of the Act allows that companies may provide financial assistance for the subscription of securities, but contains very onerous requirements. (Section 44 is, in fact, even more restrictive than S38 of the previous Act.)

Discussion

- 8.6.1 Except to the extent that a company's MOI provides otherwise, a company may provide financial assistance in the form of a loan, guarantee, provision of security or other form for the subscription of the company's securities. Section 44 does not apply to companies whose primary business is lending money.
- 8.6.2 Despite any provisions in the MOI or the rules of the company, a board of directors of a company may not authorise any form of financial assistance to another party to purchase the shares of the company unless the following requirements are met:
- the financial assistance must be pursuant to an employee share scheme (that satisfies the requirements of S97) or a special resolution (either specifically for the recipient or generally for a category of recipients) adopted within the previous two years; and
 - the board must have decided that:
 - the company will meet the liquidity and solvency test (as discussed in 5.2 of this Guide) immediately after the financial assistance has been provided; and

- o the terms under which the financial assistance is proposed to be given are fair and reasonable to the company.
- 8.6.3 Additionally the board of directors should ensure that all additional requirements as stipulated in the MOI of the company were adhered to in providing the financial assistance.
- 8.6.4 Provision of financial assistance in contravention of these requirements is void. The directors face potential personal liability in the event of a contravention (S77(3)(e)(iv)).
- 8.6.5 Section 44 is more restrictive than the previous S38 in that:
- (a) it regulates financial assistance of ‘securities’ not only shares;
 - (b) it regulates financial assistance in respect of an entire group, that is financial assistance by any company that is ‘related or inter-related’ to any other company. (Section 38 of the previous Act only applied to a company or its holding company.);
 - (c) the employee share scheme exemption (that satisfies the requirements of S97) no longer requires a trust in certain instances, but the definition of ‘employee share scheme’ is narrower than the understanding of this term in terms of the previous Act; and
 - (d) the board must be satisfied that the terms of the financial assistance are fair and reasonable to the company.

8.7 Distributions to be authorised by the board

Reference: Section 46

Issue: Section 1 provides specific guidance on what a distribution is and S46 provides the requirements for a company to make such a distribution.

Discussion

- 8.7.1 S1 of the Act defines a distribution as:
- ‘A direct or indirect*
- (a) transfer by a company of money or other property of the company, other than its own shares, to or for the benefit of one more holders of any of the shares, or to the holder of a beneficial interest in any such shares, of that company or of another company within the same group of companies, whether –

- (i) in the form of a dividend;*
- (ii) as a payment in lieu of a capitalisation share, as contemplated in section 47;*
- (iii) as consideration for the acquisition –*
 - (aa) by the company of any of its shares, as contemplated in section 48; or*
 - (bb) by any company within the same group of companies, of any shares of a company within that group of companies; or*
- (iv) otherwise in respect of any of the shares of that company or of another company within the same group of companies, subject to section 164(19);*
- (b) incurrence of a debt or other obligation by a company for the benefit of one or more holders of any of the shares of that company or of another company within the same group of companies; or*
- (c) forgiveness or waiver by a company of a debt or other obligation owed to the company by one or more holders of any of the shares of that company or of another company within the same group of companies;*

but does not include any such action taken upon the final liquidation of the company.'

8.7.2 A company should not make a distribution unless:

- the distribution:
 - is pursuant to an existing legal obligation of the company, or a court order; or
 - the board of directors has approved the distribution;
- the board of directors has applied the liquidity and solvency test (as discussed in 5.2 of this Guide) and by resolution has indicated that the board is satisfied that the company will be liquid and solvent immediately after the distribution is made.

8.7.3 Directors should also be reminded that they will need to refer to the company's MOI to identify any additional restrictions that may apply.

8.7.4 The directors that were present at a meeting where a decision was made to make a distribution not in compliance with the requirements of S46 and failed to vote against this decision could be held personally liable in terms of S77 of the Act.

- 8.7.5 If a distribution has not been concluded within 120 business days after the board resolution was taken that the company is liquid and solvent, the board would be required to reassess liquidity and solvency and pass another resolution that the company will be liquid and solvent immediately after the distribution is completed.

8.8 Capitalisation shares

Reference: Section 47

Issue: Unless the MOI permits otherwise, S47 allows a company to issue capitalisation shares in certain circumstances.

Discussion

- 8.8.1 The board of that company, by resolution, may approve the issuing of any authorised shares of the company, as capitalisation shares, on a pro rata basis to the shareholders of one or more classes of shares.
- 8.8.2 Shares of one class may be issued as a capitalisation share in respect of shares of another class.
- 8.8.3 The board may also resolve that the shareholder may receive a cash consideration rather than the actual capitalisation shares issued at a consideration determined by the board. The cash consideration may not be made unless the board:
- has considered the solvency and liquidity test, as required by S46, on the assumption that every such shareholder would elect to receive cash; and
 - is satisfied that the company would satisfy the solvency and liquidity test immediately upon the completion of the distribution.

Issues for consideration

- 8.8.4 The definition of a distribution extends to the holders or beneficial holders of shares held in the company itself and any other company within the same group of companies. Therefore, payments, forgiveness of debt or other distributions to the shareholders of the holding company, fellow subsidiaries etc. would be considered distributions. It must be noted that the treatment of these transactions in terms of the financial reporting standards and the Income Tax Act, No. 58 of 1962 would not be consistent with the Act, i.e. that it is unlikely that these would be viewed as distributions.

8.9 Company or subsidiary acquiring company's shares

Reference: Section 48

Issue: Unless the MOI permits otherwise, S48 allows a company or its subsidiaries to purchase the shares of the company, provided the distribution requirements in S46 have been adhered to.

Discussion

- 8.9.1 The requirements contained in S46 related to distributions apply to any purchase by a company of its shares. (Note that S46 does not apply to the redemption of redeemable securities in accordance with the terms and conditions of those securities.)
- 8.9.2 Section 48 does not apply to the redemption of redeemable securities.
- 8.9.3 Section 48 indicates that the board of directors of a company may determine that the company will acquire a number of its own shares, or that the board of a subsidiary company may determine that it will acquire shares of its holding company, but:
- not more than 10%, in aggregate, of the number of issued shares of any class of shares of a company may be held by, or for the benefit of, all of the subsidiaries of that company, taken together; and
 - no voting rights attached to those shares may be exercised while the shares are held by the subsidiary and it remains a subsidiary of the company whose shares it holds.
- 8.9.4 A repurchase of shares will not be allowed regardless of the provisions in any other Act, agreement or MOI if the company will have no issued share capital after the repurchase of the shares.
- 8.9.5 A decision of a company to repurchase its own shares must meet the following requirements (if applicable):
- a special resolution of the shareholders of the company is required if any share is to be purchased from a director or prescribed officer or a person related to a director or prescribed officer of the company; and
 - the repurchase decision is subject to the requirements of S114 and S115 if, considered alone, or together with other transactions in an integrated series of transactions, it involves the acquisition by the company of more than 5% of the issued shares of any particular class of the company's shares.

- 8.9.6 If a company acquires any shares contrary to the specifications of S46, the company should apply to a court within 24 months after the acquisition for an order to reverse the acquisition, and the court may order:
- the person from whom the shares were acquired to return the amount paid by the company; and
 - the company to issue to that person an equivalent number of shares of the same class as those acquired.
- 8.9.7 The directors that were present at a meeting where a decision was made to acquire the shares of the company not in compliance with the requirements of S48 and failed to vote against this decision could be held personally liable in terms of S77 of the Act.

8.10 Securities register

Reference: Section 50, Section 56 and Regulation 32

Issue: A company is required to keep a 'securities' register.

Discussion

- 8.10.1 Section 50 read with Regulation 32 contains detailed requirements of the securities register of a company. This register can be kept at the registered offices of the company or at any other location, provided that the company has filed a notice setting out the location or locations where the records are kept (S25). The register must be open to inspection by any member of the company during business hours. The securities register may be kept electronically, provided the integrity of the information is protected and the information is readily retrievable (Regulation 32(5)).
- 8.10.2 In the case of uncertificated securities, a record must be kept by a participant or central securities depository containing certain prescribed information, which forms part of the relevant company's securities register.
- 8.10.3 It is important to note that the Act refers to the concept of 'securities' rather than shares. The term 'securities' means any shares, debentures or other instruments, irrespective of their form or title, issued or authorised to be issued by a profit company.

Issues for consideration

- 8.10.4 All companies should ensure that the securities register not only reflects the prescribed information related to shares but also for all other types of securities.

- 8.10.5 What is included in the term 'securities' is uncertain, but it appears to include all types of debt evidenced by an instrument issued by the company that can be traded, for example bonds and promissory notes.

8.11 Disclosure of beneficial interest

Reference: Section 56

Issue: Onerous requirements apply to public companies in respect of recording and publishing details of beneficial interest in securities.

Discussion

- 8.11.1 The registered holder of securities in a public company must disclose the identity of each person with a beneficial interest in these securities to the company. This disclosure must be made no later than five business days after the end of a month during which any changes occurred, unless shorter periods apply.
- 8.11.2 As indicated under above, the definition of securities is wider than shares and probably includes debt evidenced by an instrument issued by the company which can be traded, such as bonds and promissory notes.
- 8.11.3 In addition to the definition of the term 'beneficial interest' provided in S1 of the Act, which is already very wide, S56 contains an additional list of persons that will be 'regarded' as holding a beneficial interest in a public company. A person is regarded as having a beneficial interest in any security of a public company if:
- Another person holds the security nomine officii on that person's behalf;
 - That person is married in community of property to another person with a beneficial interest;
 - That person is the parent of a minor child with a beneficial interest;
 - That person acts in terms of an agreement with another person who has a beneficial interest in that security and the agreement provides for the co-operation of the parties to the agreement in respect of the acquisition, disposal or any other matter relating to the beneficial interest in that security;
 - That person is the holding company of a company that has a beneficial interest;

- That person gives directions or instructions to a juristic person that has a beneficial interest and the directors or trustees are accustomed to acting in accordance with that person's directions or instructions.
- 8.11.4 A company is a 'regulated company' (that is all public companies and state-owned companies as well as private companies if their MOI provides for this or if 10% of a private company's issued securities have been transferred in the preceding 24 months to persons that are not related or inter-related to the company) (S117(1)(i), 118(1) and (2) and Regulation 91).
- 8.11.5 All regulated companies are obliged to keep a register of disclosures of beneficial interests.
- 8.11.6 All regulated companies (in other words all public and state-owned companies as well as some private companies) must also publish in their AFS (if that company is required to be audited in terms of the Act) the company list of persons who hold beneficial interests equal to or in excess of 5% of the total number of securities of that class. The extent of the beneficial interest must also be published in the AFS.
- 8.11.7 In the event of any unlisted company, a person who holds a beneficial interest in that company's securities must be afforded the opportunity to vote at a meeting of the company, to the extent that the beneficial interest had been disclosed and it includes the right to vote.

Issues for consideration

- 8.11.8 The beneficial interest in the securities of a public company is extremely wide and may be difficult to apply in practice.
- 8.11.9 Both public and private companies must be aware of the potential disclosure requirements in their AFS regarding the holders of beneficial interests in securities.

9 Governance of companies

9.1 Exemption from governance requirements for certain companies

Reference: Section 57, Sections 59 to 65, Section 71(3) to (7), Section 74 and Section 75

Issue: Any profit company (including public companies but excluding state-owned companies) which has only one shareholder is not subject to S59 to S65 of the Act. This exemption extends by implication to wholly owned subsidiaries.

A profit company (excluding a state-owned company and by implication a public company) which has only one director is not subject to S71(3) to (7), S73 and S74 of the Act.

Special exemptions also apply if every shareholder of the company (other than a state-owned company) is also a director.

Discussion

Company with only one shareholder

- 9.1.1 The provisions relating to record dates, round robin resolutions, shareholders' meetings, notices of meetings, conduct of meetings, quorums and adjournments as well as shareholders' resolutions generally do not apply to companies with only one shareholder. Effectively these companies are therefore not subject to any of the formalities related to shareholders' meetings, AGMs, etc.

Company with only one director

- 9.1.2 A single director may exercise his or her duties and powers at any time without compliance with any provisions, except where the MOI provides otherwise. The provisions regarding board meetings and round robin resolutions do not apply to companies with only one director.
- 9.1.3 Although prescribed formalities do not apply, the single director will still be required to ensure accurate recordkeeping of all decisions. For example, the single director remains subject to the 'Form and standard' of company records requirements in S24. This includes the requirement to keep accurate and complete accounting records and copies of all directors' resolutions. A single director would also be well advised to keep sufficient records to prove that he or she has 'taken diligent steps to become informed' and 'had a rational basis' for reaching a particular decision (see S76(4)).

Company where every shareholder is also a director

- 9.1.4 If a matter is referred to the shareholders by the board, such a matter may be decided on at any time after it has been referred and without complying with any further formalities, provided that sufficient shareholders are present to form a quorum and all shareholders were present when the board referred the matter.
- 9.1.5 The duties, obligations, liabilities and indemnification of directors do not apply to the individual persons when they are acting in their capacities as shareholders.

9.2 Amendment of shareholders' voting threshold

Reference: Section 65(7) and 8, and Section 65(9) and 10, Annexure I of the Guide

Issue: The MOI may provide that for an ordinary resolution to be passed, a higher than 50% support is required, and for a special resolution to be passed a lower or higher than 75% support is needed.

Discussion

- 9.2.1 S65 provides an opportunity for companies to apply different voting thresholds to different decisions.
- 9.2.2 In addition to the distinction between ordinary and special resolutions, a company may provide that different matters will require different levels of support for them to be passed.
- 9.2.3 The Act determines that an ordinary resolution will require the support of more than 50% of the voting rights exercised on the resolution, and a special resolution will require at least 75% of the voting rights exercised on the resolution. However, the Act allows for companies to provide for different voting thresholds in their MOIs. An MOI may provide for an ordinary resolution to require a higher than 50% support for it to be passed and for a special resolution a lower or higher than 75% support, as long as there is a margin of at least 10 percentage points between the highest established requirement for approval of an ordinary resolution on any matter and the lowest established requirement for approval of a special resolution on any matter.

Issues for consideration

- 9.2.4 We suggest that the assessment to adjust the approval thresholds for resolutions is ultimately a business decision which depends on the current shareholding and the arrangements with business associates.

- 9.2.5 We suggest that the adjustment of approval thresholds be considered as part of the process to evaluate the current provisions of the MOI of the company.
- 9.2.6 The Act provides a list of decisions that should be approved by a special resolution. Certain special resolutions are required to be filed with the CIPC. Refer to Annexure I of the Guide for a list of special resolutions required and registration requirements.

9.3 Shareholders' resolutions adopted via round robin

Reference: Section 60

Issue: The Act provides that some shareholder resolutions may be adopted via round robin.

Discussion

- 9.3.1 The Act allows for shareholders' resolutions to be passed by distributing the resolution to all shareholders, and allowing them to respond in writing. This procedure applies to all resolutions that could be voted on at a shareholders' meeting, but excludes resolutions pertaining to any business of the company that is required by the Act or the MOI to be conducted at an AGM of the company.
- 9.3.2 In terms of this alternative procedure, a resolution may be submitted for consideration to the shareholders entitled to exercise voting rights in relation to the resolution. Shareholders may then exercise their votes in writing within 20 business days after the resolution is submitted to them. The resolution will have been adopted if it is supported by persons entitled to exercise sufficient voting rights for it to have been adopted as an ordinary or special resolution, as the case may be, at a properly constituted shareholders' meeting.

Issues for consideration

- 9.3.3 We suggest the viability of this alternative procedure be considered by the company.
- 9.3.4 The Act requires that the company must, within 10 days after adopting the resolution, deliver a statement describing the results of the vote, consent process or election to every shareholder who was entitled to vote on or consent to the resolution.

9.4 Electronic participation for shareholder meetings

Reference: Section 61(10) and Section 63(2)

Issue: The Act requires public companies to make shareholder meetings available for electronic participation and other companies can provide by choice to make shareholder meetings available for electronic participation.

Discussion

- 9.4.1 The Act determines in S61(10) that public and state-owned companies are obliged to comply with the requirements that every shareholder meeting must be reasonably accessible within the Republic for electronic participation.
- 9.4.2 The Act determines that, unless prohibited by its MOI, a company may conduct any shareholder meeting entirely by electronic communication. In addition, the company may allow any shareholder, or the proxy for any shareholder, to participate by electronic communication in all or part of a shareholder meeting that is being held in person. These provisions will apply as long as the electronic communication employed enables all persons participating in that meeting to communicate concurrently with each other without an intermediary, and to participate reasonably effectively in the meeting.
- 9.4.3 The Act does not define electronic means; thus, any means that meet the requirements set out above will suffice. This may generally include teleconferencing and video conferencing.
- 9.4.4 The allowance for meetings to be conducted by electronic means enables companies to conduct business differently. These provisions eliminate the need for shareholders to travel physically to a particular venue to attend a meeting.

Issue for consideration

- 9.4.5 We recommend that companies investigate the viability of electronic participation as an alternative means to conduct or participate in shareholder meetings. Public companies and state-owned companies are obliged to comply with these provisions, as stated in S61(10).
- 9.4.6 If companies provide for electronic participation, shareholders must be informed of the availability of electronic participation when the notice of the meeting is sent out. Shareholders should also be made aware of the fact that the access to the medium of communication would be for the expense of the shareholder or proxy, unless otherwise decided by the company.

9.5 Quorum requirements

Reference: Section 64

Issue: There is no longer a distinction between the quorum requirements for ordinary and special resolutions.

Discussion

- 9.5.1 Two different quorum requirements must be met:
- a minimum of 25% of the voting rights entitled to be exercised on a matter must be present (regardless of the number of shareholders); and
 - if a company has more than two shareholders (regardless of the number of shares held by each shareholder), at least three shareholders must be present.
- 9.5.2 A company's MOI may adjust the '25% of voting rights' requirement either up or down. However, the second requirement regarding the minimum number of shareholders cannot be reduced (it may be increased) in the MOI.
- 9.5.3 When calling a meeting of shareholders, a notice must be sent to all shareholders in the 'prescribed manner and form' at least 15 business days before the meeting in the case of a public company or a non-profit company that has voting members and 10 business days for all other companies. Annexure 3 to the Regulations provides methods of delivery and the date and time of deemed delivery, for any purpose contemplated in the Act or Regulations. These must be considered when determining whether a sufficient notice period has been allowed. After a quorum has been established, the meeting may continue and a particular matter can be discussed as long as the holder of at least one share entitled to vote is present.

9.6 Mandatory annual general meeting

Reference: Section 60, Section 61 and Section 90

Issue: The Act requires only public companies (inclusive of state-owned companies) to hold AGMs, but some other categories of companies may be required to hold an AGM.

Discussion

- 9.6.1 Section 61 of the Act requires public companies to convene an AGM at least once in every calendar year, but no more than 15 months after the date of the previous AGM. The Companies Tribunal may extend this period upon application.

9.6.2 An AGM convened by a public company in terms of S61 must, at a minimum, provide for the following business to be transacted:

- presentation of the directors' report, audited financial statements for the immediately preceding financial year, and an audit committee report;
- election of directors;
- appointment of an auditor for the ensuing financial year and an audit committee;
- any matters raised by shareholders, with or without advance notice to the company; and
- report by social and ethics committee.

(Note that the round robin procedure for shareholder resolutions provided for in S60 may not be used for any of the matters that must be concluded at an AGM.)

9.6.3 The presentation of the directors' report, audited financial statements and audit committee report would include the fact that the shareholders note and possibly discuss the reports presented.

9.6.4 However, where the Act requires a private company, personal liability company or a non-profit company to have their AFS audited, S90 requires the appointment of an auditor at the AGM. This would mean that even though the Act does not specifically require private companies to convene an AGM, such a company would nonetheless be required to have an AGM in order to appoint an auditor.

9.6.5 Unless the MOI provides otherwise, the Act allows for the AGM and other shareholder meetings to be held at a location determined by the board and the AGM may be held anywhere in the Republic or in any foreign country.

Issues for consideration

9.6.6 We recommend that all companies that are required by the Act to have audited financial statements convene an AGM in order to appoint an auditor, and to conduct such other business as required by the Act, as stated above.

9.6.7 Companies should also consider whether the MOI must provide any limitations on the location of the AGM and other shareholder meetings.

9.7 Board composition

Reference: Section 66(2), Section 72(4) read with Regulation 43, and Section 94(2) and (3)

Issue: Balance of executives versus non-executives

Discussion

- 9.7.1 We note that neither the previous Act nor this Act refers to the concepts of executive or non-executive directors, but these terms (derived from the King Report on Corporate Governance) are generally used for convenience purposes to distinguish between directors employed by the company and those that are not.
- 9.7.2 The Act does not specifically refer to the balance on the board between executive and non-executive directors. See, however, the requirements regarding minimum number of directors and the qualifications of directors for the audit committee and social and ethics committee (see 9.7.3, 9.7.4 and 9.7.5 of the Guide).
- 9.7.3 The Act requires private companies and personal liability companies to appoint at least one director, whereas public companies and non-profit companies are required to appoint at least three directors. This prescribed number of directors is in addition to the number of directors appointed to the audit committee and/or the social and ethics committee.
- 9.7.4 As pointed out above, all public companies and state-owned companies need to appoint an audit committee comprising at least three directors that meet the prescribed criteria.
- 9.7.5 All listed public companies and state-owned companies (as well as those other companies that would have scored at least 500 public interest points in any two of the last five financial years) must appoint a social and ethics committee comprising at least three directors or prescribed officers, of which one director must be an independent non-executive director. It is, however, permitted for committee members to serve on more than one committee. Thus, the members of the audit committee may also serve on the social and ethics committee. As such, the minimum prescribed number of directors for a public company is six (i.e. three directors as required by the Act, plus three committee members).
- 9.7.6 Unless the company's MOI determines otherwise, a person holding office as a director, prescribed officer, company secretary or auditor immediately before the Effective Date continues to hold that office. If any of these persons are ineligible for appointment or disqualified in terms of the Act from being a director, company secretary or auditor, those persons are regarded as having resigned from office as from the Effective Date.

Issues for consideration

- 9.7.7 When considering the constitution of the board, we suggest that both the provisions of the Act and the requirements of the King III Report on Corporate Governance be considered.
- 9.7.8 In terms of Regulation 43, every private company with a public interest score exceeding 500 in any two of the previous five years will be required to have a social and ethics committee. The board should consider this threshold from time to time and re-evaluate its obligations in this regard.

9.8 Prescribed officers

Reference: Section 66(10) and Regulation 38

Issue: In certain sections of the Act a 'prescribed officer' is given the same duties and responsibilities as directors. Companies should take note of these requirements.

Discussion

- 9.8.1 The Regulations define a 'prescribed officer' as a person, despite not being a director, that:
- exercises general executive control over and management of the whole, or a significant portion, of the business and activities of the company; or
 - regularly participates to a material degree in the exercise of general executive control over and management of the whole, or a significant portion, of the business and activities of the company.

- 9.8.2 A person will be a prescribed officer regardless of any title or office they are designated.

Issues for consideration

- 9.8.3 Most of the provisions in the Act pertaining to directors also apply to prescribed officers. The Act states that prescribed officers are required to perform their functions and exercise their duties to the standards of conduct as they apply to directors. Prescribed officers will be subject to the same liability provisions as directors.

9.8.4 The following provisions, inter alia applicable to directors, will also apply to prescribed officers:

- Section 69 – Ineligibility and disqualification of persons to be directors or prescribed officers;
- Section 75 – Directors’ personal financial interest;
- Section 76 – Standards of directors’ conduct;
- Section 77 – Liability of directors and prescribed officers;
- Section 78 – Indemnification and directors’ insurance; and
- Section 30(4) and 30(5) – Disclosure of remuneration.

Please refer to the discussions regarding these sections for more information.

9.8.5 Management will have to consider all the relevant provisions of the definition, such as ‘general executive management’ and ‘control’ and ‘significant portion of the business and activities’ in the context of its specific company in order to identify the prescribed officers of the company.

9.8.6 We recommend that the board records the names of all those individuals that are regarded as prescribed officers. This will be necessary and helpful where the requirements of the Act are complied with, especially when remuneration of the individuals is disclosed in the AFS.

9.8.7 Note, however, that whether a particular individual is a prescribed officer will always be a factual question. Therefore, regardless of whether a company has officially identified a particular individual as a prescribed officer or not, that person may nevertheless be classified as a prescribed officer to the extent that the person’s role in the company meets the definition.

9.8.8 A person does not have to be employed by a particular company to be classified as a prescribed officer of the company.

9.8.9 We propose that persons may be classified as prescribed officers under the following circumstances:

- a ‘mine manager’ that controls the activities of a mine that is a significant portion of the business of the company
- a member of a company’s executive committee
- the senior financial manager in a company that does not have a financial director

- a chief executive officer
- a regional manager

9.9 Remuneration of directors to be approved by special resolution

9.9.1 Approval of directors' remuneration

Reference: Section 66(8) and (9)

Issue: Approval by shareholders, every two years, of directors' remuneration for their 'service as directors'

Discussion

- 9.9.1.1 Section 66(8) provides that 'Except to the extent that the Memorandum of Incorporation of a company provides otherwise, the company may pay remuneration to its directors for their services as directors, subject to subsection (9).'
- 9.9.1.2 Section 66(9) provides that 'Remuneration contemplated in subsection (8) may be paid only in accordance with a special resolution approved by the shareholders within the previous two years.'
- 9.9.1.3 These sections refer to 'remuneration' and 'services as directors'.
- 9.9.1.4 Directors' remuneration is not defined in this section, but in S30(6) (which deals with disclosure of remuneration) 'remuneration' is defined as including fees paid to directors for services rendered, salaries, bonuses and performance-related payments, pension contributions, options and financial assistance.
- 9.9.1.5 The Act does not differentiate between remuneration for executive and non-executive directors. Non-executive directors normally receive directors' fees for their attendance at board meetings and other meetings and for the provision of services as directors.
- 9.9.1.6 Executive directors receive an annual remuneration package, including a cash component, pension fund contributions, medical aid and performance bonus.
- 9.9.1.7 Our interpretation of the above is that a special resolution is required for the payment of directors' fees (those fees paid to directors for their attendance at board and other meetings and for providing services as directors). We are also of the view that the company's MOI may limit or negate the ability of a company to pay directors' fees but will not be able to provide that a special resolution is not required.
- 9.9.1.8 We believe that this section does not limit the ability to pay the salaries of executive directors in their capacity as employees.

Issues for consideration

- 9.9.1.9 For executive directors it will be useful to separate their remuneration into the categories of 'salary' and 'directors' fees', if any, in order to understand the extent to which shareholders' approval is required.
- 9.9.1.10 As far as non-executive directors are concerned, we suggest that the contract of appointment of such directors should provide for the eventuality that the anticipated remuneration of such directors may not be sanctioned by the shareholders.
- 9.9.1.11 However, the Act requires full disclosure of director and prescribed officer remuneration in the AFS. In addition, King III proposes that shareholders approve the company's remuneration policy (the policy and parameters for determining and calculating executive and director remuneration). As such, it is recommended that shareholders approve the company's remuneration policy (which will inevitably include the remuneration for 'services as directors') in addition to the special resolution required in respect of directors' fees.

9.9.2 Disclosure of remuneration

Reference: Section 30(2) to (6)

Issue: Disclosure of directors and prescribed officers' remuneration required

Discussion

- 9.9.2.1 The Act requires full disclosure of the remuneration of directors and prescribed officers (whether executive, non-executive or alternate directors) in the AFS of companies that require an audit in terms of the Act (see S30(3) to (6)). The Act specifies which companies need to be audited; the Regulations merely provide the criteria for determining 'public interest'.
- 9.9.2.2 See Annexure D of the Guide for the requirements to audit private companies.
- 9.9.2.3 Section 30(6) contains a lengthy list of potential remuneration of directors. We are of the view that it is the intention of this section that payments and forms of reward to directors (and the prescribed officers) be disclosed on an individual basis (not in aggregate as per the previous Act). Furthermore, S5 requires that any interpretation and any section of the Act must be applied in a manner that gives effect to the purpose referred to in S7. Section 7 sets out the purpose of the Act as the promotion of the South African economy by 'encouraging transparency and high standards of corporate governance'. The meaning of S30(5) and the reference to 'person' requires disclosure of the identity of the director.

- 9.9.2.4 In S30(5) the Act requires that the disclosure must show the amount of any remuneration or benefits paid to or receivable by persons in respect of (a) services rendered as directors or prescribed officers of the company, or (b) services rendered while being directors or prescribed officers of the company:
- (i) as directors or prescribed officers of any other company within the same group of companies, or
 - (ii) otherwise in connection with the carrying on of the affairs of the company or any other company within the same group of companies.
- 9.9.2.5 The effect of these requirements is that all remuneration paid to or receivable by a director or prescribed officer must be disclosed: thus, not only the remuneration paid to the director or prescribed officer by the company, but also all other remuneration received by the director or prescribed officer from any other company within the group. One person's remuneration may have to be disclosed by more than one company in the same group of companies. Note that remuneration from foreign entities is, in our view, not in respect of services rendered to a 'company' and therefore need not be included in the disclosure, unless it clearly relates to services rendered to a South African company.
- 9.9.2.6 Consider the following: Company B is a subsidiary of Company A. Person X is a director of Company A, and is also a prescribed officer of Company B (as he takes decisions that, in his capacity as director of the holding company, impact the subsidiary to such an extent that they constitute executive management or control with respect to the subsidiary). He receives remuneration from Company A, but is not paid by Company B for any of the services rendered to Company B. In terms of the requirements as set out above, his remuneration for services as a director of the company (Company A) must be disclosed in the AFS of Company A (see S30(5)(a) referred to in 9.9.2.4 above). If one regards the position from the perspective of the subsidiary, Company B, the remuneration paid to person X by Company A will have to be disclosed in the AFS of Company B. This is so because all remuneration paid to or receivable while being a prescribed officer of the company (in this case Company B) for services as a director of any other company within the same group of companies (Company A) must be disclosed (see 30(5)(b)(i) above).

9.9.2.7 The definition of 'remuneration' as per the new Companies Act includes:

- fees paid to directors for services rendered by them to or on behalf of the company, including any amount paid to a person in respect of the person's accepting the office of director;
- salary, bonuses and performance-related payments;
- expense allowances, to the extent that the director is not required to account for the allowance;
- contributions paid under any pension scheme;
- the value of any option or right given directly or indirectly to a director, past director or future director, or person related to any of them;
- financial assistance to a director, past director or future director, or person related to any of them, for the subscription of shares; and
- any loan or other financial assistance by the company to a director, past director or future director, or a person related to any of them, or any loan made by a third party to any such person.

Issues for consideration

9.9.2.8 We suggest that the company determines whether it is likely that it will be subject to the disclosure of the remuneration of directors and prescribed officers. This requirement will take effect for any financial year ending after the Effective Date.

9.9.2.9 In order to ensure compliance, a company will have to make a list of all its directors and prescribed officers (the individuals for which disclosure will be made), and then determine the structure of the group of which the company forms a part. In this regard the definition of a group should be considered (the Act refers to any other company within the same group – this means that disclosure will have to account for all other companies in the group, and not only the subsidiaries of the company in question). For purposes of S30(2) to (6), the company will have to take into account all companies in the group – thus upward, downward and sideways. Disclosure is required of all remuneration paid to or receivable by the directors and prescribed officers of the company for services as a director or prescribed officer of any other company within the same group of companies.

9.9.2.10 The Act is silent on the requirement to provide comparative information. It is proposed that comparative information be provided as required in terms of IFRS.

9.9.2.11 It is not entirely clear what the meaning is of remuneration in 'connection with the carrying on of the affairs of the company'. Generally the carrying on of affairs of the company would have the result that any monies received from any company in the entire group would be disclosed on the financial statements for which a person serves as a director or prescribed officer. The disclosure of this remuneration does not depend on the reason that such monies were paid to the relevant director/prescribed officer. For example, salaries, professional fees and fringe benefits, etc. received from any group company will generally be disclosed fully for all directors and prescribed officers. There may be exceptional factual circumstances for which it can be argued that a particular payment was not 'in the carrying on of the affairs', but generally the principle would be that full disclosure of all monies paid to directors or prescribed officers is required.

9.10 Appointment of at least 50% of directors by shareholders

Reference: Section 66(4)

Issue: Section 66 regarding the appointment of directors:

- requires the appointment of at least 50% of directors by the shareholders; and
- creates the opportunity to utilise other appropriate mechanisms for the appointment of the balance of the directors.

Discussion

9.10.1 In terms of S66(4)(b), the MOI of a profit company must provide for the election by shareholders of at least 50% of directors and 50% of any alternate directors.

9.10.2 Section 66(4) stipulates that the MOI may also provide for:

- the direct appointment or removal of one or more directors by any person who is named in, or determined in terms of, the MOI; and
- a person to be an ex officio director as a consequence of that person holding some other office, title, etc.

Issue for consideration

- 9.10.3 We suggest that the 'Alterable Provisions' of S66(4) be specifically considered during the review of the MOI and shareholders' agreements after the Effective Date to determine the appropriate requirements for the company and its business associates.

9.11 Members of board committees

Reference: Section 72(2)(a)(i) and (ii), Section 72(2)(b) and Section 75 to Section 78

Issue: Non-director members of board committees attract the liability of directors.

Discussion

- 9.11.1 Except to the extent that the MOI of a company provides otherwise, the board of a company may:
- (a) appoint any number of committees of directors; and
 - (b) delegate to any committee any of the authority of the board.
- 9.11.2 Except to the extent that the MOI of a company or a resolution establishing a committee provides otherwise, board committees may include persons who are not directors, provided such persons are not ineligible or disqualified to become directors and that such persons have no vote.
- 9.11.3 All the duties and liabilities of directors attach to non-director members of board committees, regardless of the fact that such persons may not be allowed to vote. In our view this is a particularly onerous stipulation in respect of non-director members of board committees.
- 9.11.4 In terms of S72(2)(b), a board committee may 'consult with or receive advice from any person'.

Issues for consideration

- 9.11.5 It appears that the less risky approach regarding the involvement of non-director members on board committees would be, as a matter of policy, to invite such persons to provide relevant input, but not to appoint them formally as board committee members. We see little advantage to either the company or the non-director member in a formal appointment as a board committee member, but substantial risk. It is also important to note that S76 regarding directors' conduct also applies to all members of a committee of the board.

- 9.11.6 An audit committee is not a board committee and may not appoint non-directors as members but may have consultants.

9.12 Social and ethics committee

Reference: Section 72(5) to 72(10), Regulation 43 and Annexure F of the Guide

Issue: Certain companies require a social and ethics committee.

Discussion

- 9.12.1 The Companies Act provides the Minister with the authority to require certain companies to appoint a social and ethics committee.
- 9.12.2 In terms of the Regulations, the following companies must appoint a social and ethics committee within one year after the Act becomes effective:
- every state-owned company;
 - every listed public company; and
 - any other company that has, in any two of the previous five years, had a public interest score of at least 500 points, or would have had such a score if the Act had been in effect at that time.
- 9.12.3 In certain instances, the companies listed above are exempt from the requirement to appoint a social and ethics committee. Where the holding company has a social and ethics committee, a subsidiary that is required to appoint such a committee may use the holding company's social and ethics committee to fulfil the function for the subsidiary.
- 9.12.4 The Act and the Regulations prescribe a process in terms of which a company may apply to the Companies Tribunal for an exemption from the requirement to appoint such a committee. The exemption can be shorter, but will be a maximum of five years before the company must re-apply.
- 9.12.5 The social and ethics committee must comprise no fewer than three directors or prescribed officers of the company, at least one of whom must be a director who is not involved in the day-to-day management of the company's business, and must not have been so involved within the previous three financial years.
- 9.12.6 The social and ethics committee does not have any exclusive responsibility or accountability (as is the case with the audit committee). The committee is merely required to bring matters within its mandate to the attention of the board and to report annually to the shareholders at the AGM. The board is required to act on any matters reported to it.

9.12.7 The social and ethics committee must report to shareholders at the AGM. At least one member of the committee must attend the AGM to report to shareholders on the performance of its functions.

9.12.8 A social and ethics committee has the function of monitoring the company's activities with regard to matters relating to:

- social and economic development, including the company's standing in terms of the goals and purposes of:
 - the 10 principles set out in the United Nations Global Company Principles (see Annexure F of this Guide);
 - the OECD recommendations regarding corruption (refer to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) website for further details: www.oecd.org);
 - the Employment Equity Act, No. 55 of 1998;
 - the Broad-Based Black Economic Empowerment Act, No. 53 of 2003;
- good corporate citizenship, including the company's:
 - promotion of equality, prevention of unfair discrimination, and reduction of corruption;
 - contribution to development of the communities in which its activities are predominantly conducted or within which its products or services are predominantly marketed; and
 - record of sponsorship, donations and charitable giving;
- the environment, health and public safety, including the impact of the company's activities and of its products or services;
- consumer relationships, including the company's advertising, public relations and compliance with consumer protection laws; and
- labour and employment.

9.12.9 Neither the Act nor the Regulations provide any requirement in respect of, for example, the number of meetings required per annum, the chairperson's appointment or role, and the meeting proceedings. All of these issues can be dealt with as the company sees fit.

Issues for consideration

- 9.12.10 The Regulations refer to the 'International Labour Organisation Protocol on decent work and working conditions' (Regulation 43(5)(v)(aa)). The Department of Trade and Industry has confirmed that this document does not exist.
- 9.12.11 SAICA is of the opinion that having two committees share the work of the social and ethics committee does not meet the stated requirements. The social and ethics committee can have subcommittees, but the responsibility would still be the committee's to report to the AGM.

9.13 Directors

9.13.1 Directors' meeting: minute keeping

Reference: Section 24(3)(f), Section 73(7), Section 73(8), Section 76(2)(b), Section 76(4), Section 76(5) and Section 77(3)(e)

Issue: Extension of the nature and extent of information recorded at directors' meetings

9.13.1.1 Discussion

- The Act provides that minutes of all meetings and resolutions of directors, directors' committees or the audit committee must be kept for seven years.
- In terms of S73(7), resolutions adopted by the board must be dated and sequentially numbered.
- Section 73(8) provides that any minutes of a board meeting or resolution signed by the 'chair of the meeting' or the 'chair of the next meeting. . .is evidence of the proceedings of that meeting, or adoption of that resolution'.
- Section 73(8) clearly increases the obligation to ensure accurate minute keeping.
- Section 75(4) and (5) requires directors (including all alternate directors, prescribed officers and members of board committees and the audit committee) to disclose in writing to the board any personal financial interest. The disclosure should set out the nature and extent of that interest. Where no general disclosure was made, and a director has a personal financial interest in respect of a matter to be considered at a meeting of the board, or knows that a related person has a personal financial interest in the matter, the director (a) must disclose the interest and its general nature before the matter is considered at the meeting, (b) must disclose to the meeting any material information relating to the matter, and known to the director, and (c) may disclose any observations or pertinent insights relating to the matter if requested to do so by the other directors.

- Section 2 defines the term 'related persons' and, inter alia, states that an individual is related to another if they are married, live together or are in a relationship similar to a marriage. Individuals separated by no more than two degrees of natural or adopted consanguinity or affinity are regarded by the Act as related.
- Directors (including all alternate directors, prescribed officers and members of board committees and the audit committee) have an obligation to 'communicate to the board at the earliest practical opportunity any information that comes to that director's attention. . .' (S76(2)(b)).
- It will be in the interest of directors to ensure that any information communicated to the board is recorded in the minutes to demonstrate compliance with this duty.
- It may be necessary to establish a mechanism/procedure for persons who may not necessarily be attending the board meetings (e.g. alternates or prescribed officers) to communicate relevant information to the board formally in compliance with their duty in terms of S76.
- In terms of the 'business judgement test' set out in S76(4), a director can prove that he acted in the best interest of the company and with the requisite degree of care, skill and diligence (see S76(3)(b) and (c)). One of the aspects that the director will be obliged to prove is that he 'has taken reasonably diligent steps to become informed about the matter. . .'. In this regard, a director is entitled to rely on information provided by certain classes of people listed in S76(5), for example 'legal counsel' and 'accountants'.
- In addition to any director's personal recordkeeping of information obtained, full detail of any information presented to the board by, for example, advisors or board committees will be an important safeguard in the event that a director is required to prove 'reasonably diligent steps to become informed'.

- In a number of situations, mostly where transactions are entered into in contravention of the solvency and liquidity test (see S77(3)(e) for a full list), a director who participated in the making of a decision in terms of S74, and 'failed to vote against. . .' will attract liability. It will therefore be important to minute (i) the persons attending any board meeting, (ii) the identity of the directors who voted for or against any resolution and (iii) any abstentions.

Issues for consideration

- 9.13.1.2 Enhanced directors' duties, and certain other requirements will apply immediately as from the Effective Date (see Schedule 5 par 7(5)). Therefore, enhanced minute keeping in respect of directors should be implemented no later than the Effective Date. If not already the norm, consider minuting:
- full details of any disclosure of a personal financial interest in any matter considered at a board meeting;
 - full details of information provided to the board, as well as the identity and credentials of the person providing such information (i.e. document the reasons that the board was of the opinion that it could rely/not rely on the information);
 - full details of reasons for decisions made;
 - full information on the identity of directors attending the meeting; and
 - an individual record of how each director voted.
- 9.13.1.3 Note that third parties will not, as a matter of course, have access to board minutes, although they may be able to obtain copies if allowed by the MOI or in terms of the process prescribed by the Promotion of Access to Information Act, No. 2 of 2000 (S26).
- 9.13.1.4 Enhanced duties will also apply to prescribed officers. We suggest that the company:
- determines as soon as possible which of its employees may potentially be classified as prescribed officers;
 - informs these employees of the additional responsibilities in terms of the Act; and
 - implements formal processes to record the communication of prescribed officers with the board.

9.13.2 Resignation of directors

Reference: Section 70(6)

Issue: Resignation of directors

Discussion

9.13.2.1 The Act states that, where a person resigns as director, the company must file a notice within 10 days with the Commission. There seems to be no option for a director to resign when the remaining directors refuse to sign the applicable CoR39 and lodge the resolution with the CIPC.

Issue for consideration

9.13.2.2 We would advise any director intending to resign to notify both the company and the CIPC by means of a resignation letter and to obtain proof of receipt for both notifications. The director should draw the CIPC's attention to the failure of the company to lodge the CoR39, if applicable.

9.13.3 Removal of directors

Reference: Section 71

Issue: Either shareholders or other directors may remove a director.

Discussion

9.13.3.1 Shareholders may remove a director by way of an ordinary resolution, despite any agreement or provision in the MOI to the contrary, subject to the director's right to make representations to the meeting (S71(1) and (2)). Also a company may not require this ordinary resolution to be approved by a percentage of voting rights in excess of 'more than 50%'.

9.13.3.2 If a company has more than two directors, the directors may remove a fellow director, subject to certain rights, for example the right to make representations (S71(3) to (10)).

9.13.3.3 In either instance the director must be given notice of the meeting and the proposed resolution regarding his/her removal, as well as a reasonable opportunity to make a representation to the meeting before the resolution is put to the vote.

9.13.4 Delinquency and probation of directors

Reference: Section 162

Issue: The Act determines that directors may be declared delinquent or placed on probation as a result of certain conduct.

Discussion

9.13.4.1 This can be achieved by an application to a court by the company, a director, a shareholder, the company secretary, a registered trade union or representatives of employees of the company. The grounds for the application for delinquency and probation are set out in the Act, but in general terms directors could be:

- declared delinquent if the person –
 - consented to serve as director, or acted as director or prescribed officer while ineligible or disqualified;
 - was under order of probation in terms of this section or S47 of the Close Corporations Act, 1984, and acted as a director in a manner that contravened the order;
 - whilst holding the position of director –
 - grossly abused the position of director;
 - took personal advantage of information;
 - intentionally or by gross negligence inflicted harm on the company or a subsidiary of the company;
 - acted in a manner that amounted to gross negligence, wilful misconduct or breach of trust in relation to the performing of duties;
 - had repeatedly been personally subject to a compliance notice in terms of any legislation;
 - had at least twice been personally convicted of an offence or required to pay an administrative fine;
 - within a period of five years was a director or a managing member of a company or close corporation that was convicted of an offence or subject to an administrative fine in terms of any legislation and the person was a director or managing member and the court was satisfied that the declaration of delinquency was justified;

- placed on probation if the person –
 - improperly supported a resolution in contravention of the solvency and liquidity test;
 - acted in a manner which was inconsistent with the duties of directors;
 - acted in a manner that was oppressive or unfairly prejudicial to a shareholder or director;
 - within 10 years after the Effective Date was a director or managing member of a close corporation and during that time two or more of the companies or close corporations failed to pay all of their creditors fully or meet their obligations, except if this was in terms of a business rescue plan or a compromise with creditors.

9.13.4.2 Delinquency usually lasts for seven years from the date of the order or a longer period as determined by the court order. A person who has been declared delinquent may apply to court after three years, for suspension of the delinquency order and substitution thereof with a probation order. A probation order will lapse automatically after five years.

Issues for consideration

9.13.4.3 Companies should ensure that directors meet the prescribed requirements and have not been declared delinquent or under probation when appointed.

9.13.4.4 Note that the CIPC is obliged to keep a public register of persons who are disqualified from serving as a director, or who are subject to an order of probation as a director in terms of the Act or any other law.

9.13.5 Conflict of interest

Reference: Section 75

Issue: Conflict of interest should be declared.

Discussion

9.13.5.1 One of the fundamental duties of a director is to avoid any possible conflict of interests with the company. It is an accepted principle in South African law that, as a result of the trust placed in the director, he or she is bound to put the interests of the company before their own personal interests.

- 9.13.5.2 Section 75 of the Act makes clear provision for dealing with a director's use of company information and conflict of interest. It extends the application of the conflict of interest provisions to prescribed officers and members of board committees (even if those persons are not directors).
- 9.13.5.3 Where a director, prescribed officer or member of board committees has a conflicting personal financial interest (where his or her own interests are at odds with the interests of the company), he or she is prohibited from making, participating in the making of, influencing, or attempting to influence any decision in relation to that particular matter. Where a director, prescribed officer or member of board committees has a conflicting personal interest in respect of a matter on the board agenda, he or she has to declare that personal interest and immediately leave the meeting. Such a person is also prohibited from any action that may influence or attempt to influence the discussion or vote by the board, and is prohibited from executing any document on behalf of the company in relation to the matter, unless specifically requested to do so by the board.
- 9.13.5.4 The term 'personal financial interest' is defined. It refers to any material interests of a person of a financial, monetary or economic nature, or to which a monetary value may be attributed. An interest is 'material' if it is significant in the circumstances of a particular matter to a degree that is of consequence in determining the matter or might reasonably affect a person's judgement or decision making in the matter.
- 9.13.5.5 Note that the phrase 'related person' is given an extended meaning in section 75. It provides that a second company or close corporation (CC) of which the relevant director is also a director (or member in the case of a CC) would be regarded as related to the director. This affects section 75(5) which requires the disclosure of a personal financial interest of that director or of any person that is a related to the director that has a personal financial interest. In addition to the ordinary definition of 'related person' which refers to, for example, spouses, children, etc, other companies of which the director is a board member also becomes 'related' to the board member. If the transaction under consideration at one board will constitute a personal financial interest for a second company or CC of which the director is also a director or member, the director is obliged to recuse him- or herself.
- 9.13.5.6 Directors are not required to disclose their personal financial interest if:

- the decision may generally affect all of the directors of the company in their capacity as directors;
- the decision may generally affect a class of persons;
- the decision relates to a proposal to remove the relevant director;
- the company has only one director that holds all of the beneficial interests in the securities of the company.

9.13.5.7 It is important that all directors and prescribed officers comply with the conflict of interest declaration provisions, as non-compliance may render certain transactions and agreements void.

Issues for consideration

9.13.5.8 The conflict of interest provisions apply equally to persons related to the director, prescribed officer or member of a board committee. Thus, where a director, prescribed officer or member of board committees knows that a related person has a personal financial interest in a matter to be considered at a meeting of the board, or knows that a related person has acquired a personal financial interest in a matter, after the board has approved that agreement or matter, he or she should disclose that fact to the board.

9.13.5.9 Note that the provisions of S75 do not apply where there is one director who also holds all of the beneficial interest in all of the issued securities of the company. If that director does not hold all of the beneficial interest, then shareholder approval by ordinary resolution is required for such agreements. Section 75 also does not apply where it generally affects all of the directors or a class of persons (unless the director is the only member of that class).

9.13.5.10 Directors that serve more than one company should be particularly careful to comply with the requirements of S75, as such directors will be obliged to recuse themselves in all circumstances where a transaction being discussed by a board of a company would be material for a second company on which that director sits. This obligation arises from the extended definition of 'related', which results in all companies where the director serves as director to be 'related' to that director (to the same extent that close family would be 'related') for purposes of the disclosure of personal financial interest in S75.

9.13.6 Standard of directors' conduct

Reference: Section 76

Issue: The standard of directors' conduct was part of common law, but in the Act it has been codified (i.e. formally incorporated in a statute) and directors and prescribed officers need to understand the Act's requirement in this regard.

Discussion

- 9.13.6.1 By accepting their appointment to the position, directors and prescribed officers agree that they will perform their duties to a certain standard, and it is a reasonable assumption of the shareholders that every individual director and prescribed officer will apply their particular skills, experience and intelligence to the advantage of the company.
- 9.13.6.2 The Act codifies the standard of directors' conduct in S76. The intention of the legislature seems to be to encourage directors to act honestly and to bear responsibility for their actions – directors should be accountable to shareholders and other stakeholders for their decisions and their actions. Since calculated risk taking and risk exposure form an integral part of any business, the Act includes a number of provisions to ensure that directors are allowed to act without constant fear of personal exposure to liability claims. In this regard, the Act includes the business judgement rule (which provides a defence to directors under certain circumstances (see S76(4)) and provides for the indemnification of directors under certain circumstances, as well as the possibility of insuring the company and its directors against liability claims in certain circumstances.
- 9.13.6.3 The prescribed standard of conduct applies to all directors, prescribed officers or any other person who is a member of a board committee irrespective of whether or not that person is also a member of the company's board. The Act makes no distinction between executive, non-executive and independent non-executive directors. The standard, and consequent liability where the standard is not met, applies equally to all directors.
- 9.13.6.4 In terms of this standard, a director (or other person to whom S76 applies) must exercise his or her powers and perform his or her functions:
- in good faith and for a proper purpose;
 - in the best interest of the company; and

- with the degree of care, skill and diligence that may reasonably be expected of a person carrying out the same functions and having the general knowledge, skill and experience of that director.
- 9.13.6.5 The Act prohibits a director from using the position of director, or any information obtained while acting in the capacity of a director, to gain an advantage for himself or herself, or for any other person (other than the company or a wholly owned subsidiary of the company), or to knowingly cause harm to the company or a subsidiary of the company.
- 9.13.6.6 Directors are obliged to communicate to the board at the earliest opportunity any information that comes to their attention, unless –
- the director reasonably believes that the information is immaterial to the company, is generally available to the public or is known to the other directors; or
 - the director is bound not to disclose the information by a legal or ethical obligation of confidentiality.
- 9.13.6.7 Directors have a fiduciary duty to act in the best interest of the company as a whole. Directors owe this duty to the company as a legal entity, and not to any individual or group of shareholders – not even if the majority shareholder appointed the director. Directors are obliged to act in good faith in the best interest of the company. They should act within the bounds of their powers, and always use these powers for the benefit of the company. Where a director transgresses his or her powers, the company might be bound by his or her action, but he or she can be held personally liable for any loss suffered as a result of the transgression.
- 9.13.6.8 The duties imposed under S76 are in addition to, and not a substitution for, any duties of the director of a company under the common law. The traditional concept of fiduciary duties is not replaced by the standard of conduct in the Act.
- 9.13.6.9 As mentioned in 9.13.6.2, the Act also codifies the business judgement rule. In terms of this rule, a director will have met the required standard if he or she has taken reasonably diligent steps to become informed about the subject matter, does not have a personal financial interest in the matter to be decided on (or has declared such a conflicting interest), and has a rational basis for believing that the decision is in the best interest of the company.
- 9.13.6.10 In discharging any board or committee duty, a director is entitled to rely on one or more employees of the company, legal counsel, accountants or other professional persons, or a committee of the board of which the director is not a member. However, the director does not transfer the liability of the director imposed by this Act onto such a person.

- 9.13.6.11 Directors of a company may be held jointly and severally liable for any loss, damage or costs sustained by the company as a result of a breach of the directors' fiduciary duty or the duty to act with care, skill and diligence. The Act sets out a range of actions for which directors may be held liable for any loss, damage or costs sustained by the company. These actions are discussed in 9.13.7 of this Guide.

Issue for consideration

- 9.13.6.12 Companies should ensure through training and information that directors are aware of their duties.

9.13.7 Liability of directors

Reference: Section 77

Issue: The Act identifies certain instances where a director will incur liability owing to certain actions taken by the director.

Discussion

- 9.13.7.1 The Act makes it clear that a person is not, solely by reason of being an incorporator, shareholder or director of a company, liable for any liabilities or obligations of the company, except where the Act or the company's MOI provides otherwise. The directors and prescribed officers of a company may only incur liability in specific instances.
- 9.13.7.2 In terms of the Companies Act, a director or prescribed officer of a company may be held liable for any loss, damages or costs sustained by the company as a consequence of any breach by him or her of a duty contemplated in the standard of directors' conduct, failure to disclose a personal financial interest in a particular matter, or any breach by the director or prescribed officer of a provision of the Act or the company's MOI.
- 9.13.7.3 In addition, the Act determines that a director of a company is liable for any loss, damages or costs sustained by the company as a direct or indirect consequence of the director having:
- acted in the name of the company, signed anything on behalf of the company, or purported to bind the company or authorise the taking of any action by or on behalf of the company, despite knowing that he or she had no authority to do so;

- persisted in and gone along with any action or decision, despite knowing that it amounted to reckless trading;
- been a party to any action or failure to act, despite knowing that the act or omission was calculated to defraud a creditor, employee or shareholder of the company;
- signed, consented to, or authorised the publication of any financial statements that were false or misleading, or a prospectus that contained false or misleading information; or
- been present at a meeting, or participated in the making of a decision, and failed to vote against a decision:
 - to issue any unauthorised shares or securities;
 - to issue any authorised securities despite knowing that the issue of those securities was not approved in terms of S41;
 - to issue options for unauthorised shares or securities;
 - to provide financial assistance to a director or any person without complying with the requirements of the Act and the MOI;
 - to approve a distribution that was contrary to the requirements of the Act;
 - to allow the company to acquire any of its own shares, or the shares of its holding company, or make an allotment, despite knowing that the acquisition or allotment was contrary to the requirements of the Act.

9.13.7.4 The Act makes it clear that a director or prescribed officer is jointly and severally liable with any other person who is or may be held liable for the same act. Also, any claim for loss, damages or costs for which a person is or may be held liable in terms of the Act lapses after three years after the act or omission that gave rise to that liability.

9.13.8 Insurance for directors and prescribed officers

Reference: Sections 78 and 218(2)

Issue: Additional insurance in terms of the Act

Discussion

- 9.13.8.1 The potential indemnification by a company of its directors is a little wider than in the 1973 Act, as it will be possible to indemnify directors against their negligent acts.
- 9.13.8.2 Note the inclusion of prescribed officers in S75 to S78, their potential exposure as a result of their inclusion and the ability of the company to indemnify and insure prescribed officers.
- 9.13.8.3 We are of the view that the potential exposure of directors and prescribed officers is particularly increased by S218(2), which provides that 'Any person who contravenes any provision of this Act is liable to any other person for any loss or damage suffered by that person as a result of that contravention.'
- 9.13.8.4 In certain instances, except if a company's MOI provides otherwise, a company is allowed to indemnify a director in respect of any liability, or a company may purchase insurance to protect a director against liability (but only for those instances in which a company may indemnify the director), or to protect a company against expenses or liabilities for which the company may indemnify a director. A company may indemnify a director in respect of any liability, except for:
- any liability arising from situations where the director:
 - acted in the name of the company, signed anything on behalf of the company, or purported to bind the company or authorise the taking of any action by or on behalf of the company, despite knowing that the director lacked the authority to do so;
 - acquiesced in the carrying on of the company's business despite knowing that it was being conducted in a reckless manner;
 - was a party to an act or omission by the company despite knowing that the intention was calculated to defraud a creditor, employee or shareholder of the company, or had another fraudulent purpose;

- any liability arising from wilful misconduct or wilful breach of trust; or
- where the director incurred a fine as a result of a conviction for an offence in terms of national legislation.

9.13.8.5 This last point (dealing with fines incurred by a director) does not apply to a private or personal liability company if there is only one shareholder who is also the only director or the company or if two or more related individuals are the only shareholders and one or more of them are directors of the company.

Issue for consideration

9.13.8.6 The company should determine the current indemnities provided for by the company. The current insurance in respect of directors and prescribed officers should be revisited.

10 Chapter 3 application

10.1 Application of Chapter 3 of the Act

Reference: Section 84, Annexure C and Annexure D of this Guide

Issue: Who should apply Chapter 3, including the appointment of a company secretary, auditor and audit committee?

Discussion

10.1.1 Chapter 3 deals with the appointment of an auditor, company secretary and audit committee. The complete chapter is not applicable to all companies.

Issues for consideration

10.1.2 The following companies have to comply with all the requirements of Chapter 3, i.e. the requirements pertaining to audit, audit committees and company secretaries:

- public companies; and
- state-owned companies (unless exempted by the Minister in terms of S9 of the Act).

10.1.3 In addition to the above, private, personal liability and non-profit companies must comply with the sections of Chapter 3 which pertain to the appointment of the auditor (Part C of Chapter 3 of the Act), if the company is required by the Act or its MOI to be audited (see also our detailed discussion in 7.7 of this Guide).

10.1.4 Private, personal liability and non-profit companies have to comply with the requirements of Chapter 3 which pertain to audit committees and company secretaries to the extent required in the MOIs of these companies. These companies therefore have the option of deciding whether they intend to appoint an audit committee or company secretary and to what extent they intend to meet the requirements of the Act.

10.1.5 If a company (other than a public company or state-owned company) does not include these requirements in its MOI but decides to appoint an auditor, audit committee or company secretary, it only needs to meet the requirements of other relevant legislation and not the Act.

10.2 Company secretary

Reference: Section 86 to Section 89

Issue: Appointment of company secretary

Discussion

- 10.2.1 The provisions relating to the company secretary are similar to the provisions of the previous Act. In our view it will remain possible for one person to be the company secretary for more than one company, provided of course that the person has the necessary knowledge and capacity. The Act requires that the company secretary must have the requisite knowledge of or experience in relevant laws and the person must be a permanent resident of the Republic while serving as secretary.
- 10.2.2 All public or state-owned companies must appoint a company secretary. A private company is not obliged to appoint a company secretary, but may do so voluntarily by including this requirement in its MOI.
- 10.2.3 A juristic person or a partnership may be appointed as the company secretary of a company as long as:
- none of the employees of that juristic person (or partners and employees of the partnership) who provides company secretary services is disqualified to be appointed as a director of the company as set out in S69(8) of the Act; and
 - at least one employee of that juristic person (or one partner or employee of the partnership) satisfies the requirements set out in 10.2.1 of this Guide.
- 10.2.4 A company secretary's duties include, but are not restricted to:
- providing the directors of the company collectively and individually with guidance as to their duties, responsibilities and powers;
 - making the directors aware of any law relevant to or affecting the company;
 - ensuring that minutes of all shareholder meetings, board meetings and the meetings of any committees of the directors, or of the company's audit committee are properly recorded in accordance with this Act;
 - certifying in the company's AFS whether the company has filed required returns and notices in terms of this Act, and whether all such returns and notices appear to be true, correct and up to date; and

- ensuring that a copy of the company's AFS is sent, in accordance with this Act, to every person who is entitled to it.

10.2.5 The following two duties have been added in the Act:

- reporting to the company's board any failure on the part of the company or a director to comply with the MOI or rules of the company or this Act; and
- carrying out the functions of a person designated in terms of S33(3).

10.2.6 The duties referred to in S33(3) require the company in its annual return to designate the company secretary to ensure compliance with Chapter 2 Part C and Chapter 3 if they are applicable to the company.

Issue for consideration

10.2.7 The duties of the company secretary remain extensive and will be of particular importance where the company secretary advises the board on the Act (S88(1)(a) to (d)). It is important to note that the company secretary is responsible for making the board aware of all laws affecting the company, and not only the requirements of the Act.

10.3 Auditor

10.3.1 Appointment of the auditor

Reference: Sections 90, 60 and 61

Issue: Appointment of the auditor

Discussion

10.3.1.1 A private, personal liability or non-profit company that is:

- required by the Act or the Regulations to have its AFS audited every year; or
- a company that is required by its MOI to have its AFS audited must comply with the requirements of S90 relating to the appointment of the auditor. A company that is not required by the Act, the Regulations or its MOI to appoint an auditor, but which voluntarily chooses to do so, will not be required to comply with these requirements.

- 10.3.1.2 Additionally, any company whose MOI requires the company to comply with the extended accountability requirements in Chapter 3 will be required to do so.
- 10.3.1.3 Section 90 requires these companies to appoint their auditor at the AGM at which the requirement first applies to the company, and at each AGM thereafter.
- 10.3.1.4 However, S61 only provides for an AGM to be held by a public company. Thus, there appears to be no requirement for a private, personal liability or non-profit company to hold an AGM.
- 10.3.1.5 Section 60 further clarifies that any business of a company that is required by the Act or the company's MOI to be conducted at an AGM of the company (such as the appointment of the auditor) may not be conducted by shareholders acting other than at a meeting, for example by written poll.
- 10.3.1.6 Even though private, personal liability and non-profit companies are not required to hold an AGM, it is suggested that such companies hold an annual general shareholder meeting and dispense with the requirement to appoint the auditor at such a meeting.
- 10.3.1.7 Unless the MOI provides otherwise, a company's shareholder meeting may be conducted partially or entirely by electronic communication.
- 10.3.1.8 Section 90(6) provides that a retiring auditor may be automatically reappointed at an AGM without any resolution being passed, unless:
- (a) the retiring auditor is no longer qualified for appointment, no longer willing to accept the appointment, and has so notified the company, or is required to cease serving as auditor, in terms of S92;
 - (b) an audit committee appointed by the company in terms of the Act objects to the reappointment; or
 - (c) the company has notice of an intended resolution to appoint some other person or persons in place of the retiring auditor.
- 10.3.1.9 Vacancies in the office of auditor should be dealt with in accordance with the procedure outlined in 10.3.4 of this Guide.

Issue for consideration

- 10.3.1.10 Private, personal liability or non-profit companies should follow this process in the appointment of their auditor. We would advise private, personal liability and non-profit companies to include this process in their MOI.

10.3.2 Independence of auditor

Reference: Section 90(2)

Issue: Auditor independence required

Discussion

10.3.2.1 The Act expressly disqualifies an auditor from being appointed to perform a statutory audit if that person provides accounting or secretarial services to the company requiring the audit.

10.3.2.2 The Act states that a person cannot be appointed as an auditor if that person has performed any of the functions listed in S90(2)(b). This list includes the following:

- a director or prescribed officer of the company;
- an employee or consultant involved in the maintenance of financial records or preparation of financial statements;
- a director, officer or employee of the company secretary;
- a person who alone or with a partner or employee performs the duties as accountant or bookkeeper, or performs related secretarial duties;
- a person who during the past five years has been one of the above; or
- a person related to any of the above.

10.3.2.3 It is our view that this prohibition expressly extends only to the appointment of an auditor by a public company or company required to be audited in terms of its own MOI or Regulation 28 (public interest score or activity test), and not to voluntary audits.

10.3.2.4 Furthermore, SAICA is of the opinion that the prohibition extends only to the individual partner, not the firm. Auditors must, however, carefully consider their independence with reference to the SAICA and Independent Regulatory Board for Auditors (IRBA) Codes of Professional Conduct, specifically S290.

10.3.2.5 From a contextual interpretation, it is evident that although S90(2) refers to both 'a person or firm', this reference is qualified by subsection (3). Subsection (3) determines that where a firm is appointed as an auditor, it is the individual auditor that must satisfy the requirements of subsection (2). The reference to 'firm' in subsection 2 only has bearing on subsection 2(a). A firm cannot be a prescribed officer, employee, or director and the requirements in (b) relate to individuals or natural persons. This is confirmed by subsection 3 and context.

- 10.3.2.6 An alternative view that has been raised is that the prohibition applies to the firm.
- 10.3.2.7 Section 44 of the APA sets out registered auditors' duties in relation to audit. Subsection (4) states that 'if a registered auditor or, where the registered auditor is a member of a firm, any other member of that firm was responsible for keeping the books, records or accounts of an entity, the registered auditor must, in reporting on anything in connection with the business or financial affairs of the entity, indicate that the registered auditor or that other member of the firm was responsible for keeping those accounting records.' The APA then states that a person cannot be regarded as responsible for keeping the books, records or accounts by only making closing entries, adjusting entries or framing the financial statements.
- 10.3.2.8 In terms of the current wording of the APA an individual registered auditor or any other member of that auditor's firm is permitted to carry out some related accounting work and be appointed as the auditor of an entity. In terms of the Act, however, this practice by an individual auditor who is engaged in a 'statutory' audit of the company is no longer allowed.
- 10.3.2.9 The SAICA Code of Professional Conduct ('the Code') would identify this situation as a self-review threat. The Code does allow the accounting or bookkeeping services in certain emergency situations and where the services are immaterial to the financial statements of the entity.
- 10.3.2.10 The Code therefore allows the chartered accountant to provide certain accounting or bookkeeping services. However, on the basis of the independence requirements in S90(2) of the Act, the individual would also not be allowed to perform the audit of a company required to be audited in terms of the Act or the Regulations or in terms of their MOI.
- 10.3.2.11 Companies that choose to be audited by the alternative provisions in the Act, including a board resolution or special resolution, would not have to comply with the independence requirements in the Act but would still have to apply the requirements of the APA and the Code.

Issues for consideration

- 10.3.2.12 Auditors must consider whether they meet the independence requirements.
- 10.3.2.13 Where an auditor was involved in any of the work mentioned in S90(2)(b) prior to 1 May 2011, they are not disqualified from being appointed as the auditor for the year following the Effective Date, assuming the prohibited functions have not been performed on or after 1 May 2011, as constitutionally legislation may not apply retrospectively.

10.3.3 Auditors performing other duties

Reference: Section 90(2)

Issue: What impact does the Companies Act have on auditors currently performing other duties, including secretarial or bookkeeping duties?

Discussion

- 10.3.3.1 The Act states that a person cannot be appointed as an auditor if that person has performed any of the functions listed in S90(2)(b) for a public company or a company required to be audited in terms of its own MOI or Regulations.
- 10.3.3.2 This list includes the following:
- director or prescribed officer of the company;
 - an employee or consultant involved in the maintenance of financial records or preparation of financial statements;
 - a director, officer or employee of the company secretary;
 - a person who alone or with a partner or employee performs the duties as accountant or bookkeeper, or performs related secretarial duties;
 - a person who during the past five years has been one of the above; or
 - a person related to any of the above.
- 10.3.3.3 The transitional arrangements in Schedule 5 of the Act do not deal with the five-year period referred to above.
- 10.3.3.4 It is submitted that a general and broad interpretation of the wording 'alone or with a partner' in S90(2)(b)(ii) could result in the conclusion that the word 'partner' does not specifically relate to the legal concept of a 'partnership', but to a person assisting the first person referred to in the subsection.

10.3.3.5 On the basis of the requirements of the Act and the transitional arrangements, the auditor would now be disqualified from performing the audit if he or she were involved in any of the above-mentioned functions and would immediately be deemed to have resigned as auditor as a result of performing any of the above-mentioned functions in the current year.

10.3.3.6 It is our view that this prohibition expressly extends only to the appointment of an auditor by a public company or company required to be audited in terms of its own MOI or Regulation 28 (public interest score or activity test), and not to voluntary audits. Where a company therefore chooses to have a voluntary audit the auditor can provide the additional services taking into consideration the SAICA and IRBA Professional Code as well as the requirements of the Auditing Professions Act.

Issue for consideration

10.3.3.7 The auditor should consider whether the company requires a voluntary or statutory audit when deciding whether to provide additional services to the company.

10.3.4 Resignation of the auditor

Reference: Section 91

Issue: What process is followed when the auditor resigns?

Discussion

10.3.4.1 Resignation is effective when the notice CoR44 (Notice of change in auditor or company secretary) is filed. The auditor is required to give the company one month's written notice, unless the board approves a shorter notice period.

10.3.4.2 Before filling a vacancy, the board must suggest the name of at least one registered auditor to be considered for appointment, to the company's audit committee (if the company has such an audit committee), within 15 business days of the vacancy arising.

10.3.4.3 The board may proceed with making an appointment of such a proposed person if within five business days after delivering the proposal the audit committee does not give notice in writing to the board rejecting the proposal.

- 10.3.4.4 A vacancy in the office of auditor must be filled by the board within 40 business days if there is only one incumbent auditor of the company. The board may appoint a new auditor at any time if there is more than one incumbent, but while such a vacancy continues the surviving or continuing auditor may act as the auditor of the company.
- 10.3.4.5 If a company appoints a firm as auditor, any change in the composition of the members of the firm does not by itself create a vacancy. However, if by comparison with the membership of the firm at the time of its latest appointment less than one-half of the members remain after such a change, that change constitutes the resignation of the firm as auditor of the company, giving rise to a vacancy.
- 10.3.4.6 The transitional arrangements provide that a person holding office as an auditor of a pre-existing company immediately before the Effective Date continues to hold that office as from the Effective Date, subject to the company's MOI and the requirements of the Act.
- 10.3.4.7 A person contemplated above who, in terms of the Act, is ineligible to be, or disqualified from being, the auditor is regarded as having resigned from every such office in any company as from the Effective Date.
- 10.3.4.8 A vacancy in the office of director, company secretary or auditor of a pre-existing company as from the Effective Date, irrespective of how such a vacancy arises, is to be filled in accordance with the requirements of the Act.

Issues for consideration

- 10.3.4.9 Resignations and vacancies in the office of auditor should be filled in accordance with the requirements of the Act.
- 10.3.4.10 The CoR44 (Notice of change of auditor or company secretary) must be signed by a representative of the company. Where the company does not want to accept the resignation of the auditor and file the notice, the auditor should notify the client and the Commission of his or her resignation. According to S91, the resignation is effective when the form is filed. 'Filed' is defined as 'to deliver a document to the Commission in the manner and form, if any, prescribed for the document'. Therefore, where the client does not want to accept the resignation, the auditor has to ensure that they deliver the letter to the client and Commission as well as keeping proof of the resignation and delivery.

10.3.5 Rotation of auditors

Reference: Section 92

Issue 1: To which companies do the rotation requirements of the Act apply?

Discussion

10.3.5.1 The auditor rotation provisions in S92 of the Act apply to the following categories of companies:

- public companies;
- state-owned companies;
- private, personal liability and non-profit companies if the company is required by the Act or the Regulations to have its AFS audited; and
- private, personal liability and non-profit companies that voluntarily elect to have their AFS audited to the extent that the company's MOI so requires.

Issue 2: What impact does the Act have on the rotation of auditors?

Discussion

10.3.5.2 Section 92(1) of the Act states that the same individual may not serve as the auditor or designated auditor of a company for more than five consecutive financial years.

10.3.5.3 The transitional arrangements in Schedule 5 Item 7(11) of the Act determine that the five consecutive financial years contemplated in S92(1) must be calculated from 1 May 2011, the Effective Date of the Act. The effect of the transitional provision is that a designated auditor (the individual) only needs to rotate off a particular audit after auditing five consecutive financial years after 1 May 2011 (or earlier, if required in terms of the International Federation of Accountants (IFAC) rules). This applies even if the audit partner had been the designated auditor for any number of financial years prior to the commencement of the Act. In the case of a first appointment after 1 May 2011, the partner may serve a full five financial years (e.g. from June 2011 to June 2016).

10.3.5.4 Section 92(2) of the Act states that if an individual has served as the auditor or designated auditor of a company for two or more consecutive financial years and then ceases to be the auditor or designated auditor, the individual may not be appointed again as the auditor or designated auditor of that company until after the expiry of at least two further financial years.

- 10.3.5.5 Section 92(3) of the Act states that if a company has appointed two or more persons as joint auditors, the company must manage the rotation required by this section in such a manner that all of the joint auditors do not relinquish office in the same year.

10.4 Audit committees

10.4.1 Appointment of the audit committee

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Appointment of the audit committee by shareholders

Discussion

- 10.4.1.1 The audit committee must be appointed by the shareholders at every AGM.
- 10.4.1.2 The requirement to appoint an audit committee does not apply where the company is a subsidiary of another company which has an audit committee that will perform the function of audit committee as required by this section. This process is different from the previous Act, where audit committees were appointed by the board.

10.4.2 Audit committees: membership

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Requirements for membership of the audit committee

Discussion

- 10.4.2.1 Where a company is required to appoint an audit committee, the audit committee must consist of at least three members who meet the following criteria:
- every member must be a director of the company;
 - a member may not be:
 - involved in the day-to-day management of the company's business or have been so involved at any time during the previous financial year;
 - a prescribed officer, or full-time employee, of the company or another related or inter-related company, or have been such an officer or employee at any time during the previous three financial years; or

- o a material supplier or customer of the company, such that a reasonable and informed third party would conclude in the circumstances that the integrity, impartiality or objectivity of that director is compromised by that relationship; and
 - o related to any person who falls within any of the criteria set out in the previous points.
- 10.4.2.2 In accordance with the provisions of Regulation 42, at least one-third of the members of a company's audit committee at any particular time must have academic qualifications, or experience, in economics, law, corporate governance, finance, accounting, commerce, industry, public affairs or human resource management.

Issues for consideration

- 10.4.2.3 The transitional arrangements provided for in Schedule 5 of the Act do not specifically deal with audit committees. Any company which is required to have an audit committee will therefore need to consider the membership criteria discussed above to ensure compliance with the requirements of the new Act. Also refer to the discussion of S94 below regarding shareholders as members of the audit committee.

10.4.3 Audit committee duties

Reference: Section 94(7) and (9)

Issue: What are the minimum duties of the audit committee as prescribed by the Act?

Discussion

- 10.4.3.1 The audit committee has the duty to:
- nominate a registered auditor who, in the opinion of the audit committee, is independent of the company for appointment as auditor of the company;
 - determine the fees to be paid to the auditor and the auditor's terms of engagement;
 - ensure that the appointment made by the audit committee complies with the requirements of the Act and any other legislation relating to the appointment of auditors;
 - determine the nature and extent of any non-audit services that the auditor may provide (or must not provide) to the company or a related company;

- pre-approve any proposed agreement with the auditor for the provision of non-audit services to the company;
 - prepare a report (which is to be included in the AFS of the company):
 - describing how the audit committee carried out its functions;
 - stating whether the audit committee is satisfied with the auditor's independence; and
 - commenting in any way the committee considers appropriate on the financial statements, the accounting practices and the internal financial control of the company;
 - receive and deal appropriately with concerns or complaints relating to:
 - the accounting practices and internal audit of the company;
 - the content or auditing of the company's financial statements;
 - the internal financial control of the company; or
 - any related matter;
 - make submissions to the board on any matter concerning the company's accounting policies, financial control, records and reporting; and
 - perform such other oversight functions as may be determined by the board.
- 10.4.3.2 Neither the appointment nor the duties of an audit committee reduce the functions and duties of the Board of Directors of the company, except with respect to the appointment, fees and terms of engagement of the auditor.
- Issues for consideration
- 10.4.3.3 Consider whether the audit committee charter currently reflects all of the duties set out above.
- 10.4.3.4 The audit committee is required to report on how it has carried out its functions and must provide commentary on the accounting practices and internal control. As a result, there is an expectation that the audit committee must take steps and actions in order to be able to provide such commentary, and therefore the committee should consider whether an internal audit function is required in order to assist it with discharging such responsibilities.

10.4.4 Different legislative requirements

Reference: Section 94 and Section 5

Issue: How should the differing requirements regarding audit committees in various pieces of legislation which may apply in particular industries be dealt with?

Discussion

10.4.4.1 Section 94 of the Act applies concurrently with the requirements of S64 of the Banks Act of 1990. The provisions regarding the membership of the audit committee set out in subsections 2 to 4 of S94 of the Act do not apply to a company which is also subject to the requirements of S64 of the Banks Act.

10.4.4.2 Refer also to our discussion of S5 of the Act in 3.2 of the Guide.

Issue for consideration

10.4.4.3 It is recommended that a company obtain legal advice regarding the actions it should take when such an inconsistency arises.

10.4.5 Shareholders as members of the audit committee

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Can a shareholder be a member of the audit committee?

Discussion

10.4.5.1 Please refer to the earlier discussion regarding the membership criteria for an audit committee in 10.4.2 of the Guide. Section 94 does not specifically exclude a shareholder from being a member of the audit committee, as long as the shareholder is a director and is not specifically disqualified as discussed. Please note that companies must also take cognisance of the stipulations of other legislation applying to the company, King III or other applicable codes of good corporate governance, which may stipulate further restrictions in this regard.

Issue for consideration

10.4.5.2 Consider whether the shareholder also meets any of the other criteria in S94 which may specifically disqualify them from being a member of the audit committee.

10.4.6 Audit committee not constituted

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Can an audit committee which has not been properly constituted in terms of the requirements of S94 (including the membership requirements) validly fulfil the functions prescribed in S94?

10.4.6.1 Discussion

- The requirements of S94 are prescriptive. A public company, state-owned company and any other company which is required by its MOI to have an audit committee are obliged to appoint an audit committee consisting of at least three directors of the company that meet the criteria set out in S94. It appears that if the company appoints an audit committee with persons other than those prescribed, it will not be an audit committee as required by the Act. In other words, unless the shareholders appoint a body which consists only of the persons required by the Act in terms of S94, any other so-called audit committee will not in effect be an 'audit' committee as defined by the Act.
- As a result, any functions undertaken by a non-compliant (that is an 'incorrectly constituted') audit committee (with the exception of certain specific industries where a specific different composition of audit committees is prescribed and an exemption from the provisions of the Act is provided for in S5 and S94) will not have been performed by the audit committee as required by the Act.
- Where a company is not required to appoint an audit committee, but voluntarily chooses to appoint such a committee, the requirements of S94 will not apply. Such an audit committee will also, however, not be considered to be an audit committee as defined by the Act.

Issues for consideration

10.4.6.2 Every public company, state-owned company and any other company required by its MOI to have an audit committee must assess the composition of its current audit committee to ensure that the members of the audit committee satisfy the criteria set out in S94. Any vacancies must be filled as discussed previously.

10.4.6.3 Where an audit committee is appointed voluntarily, companies should caution against including the requirement for an audit committee in their MOIs, as this would result in the companies' having to comply with the provisions of S94, including, inter alia, the provisions pertaining to the membership of the audit committee.

10.4.6.4 As shareholders appoint the audit committee they should consider the risk of having an audit committee that is not properly constituted.

10.4.7 Non-audit services provided

Reference: Section 94

Issue: What is meant by the phrase 'non-audit services'? What about services generally included in the audit which do not strictly speaking constitute audit services as understood in the context of the Act?

10.4.7.1 Discussion

- The terms 'audit' or 'audit services' bear the same meaning as elsewhere in the Act or the statute which requires the appointment of an auditor. The exact extent of 'audit services' is not entirely clear. In the event that the auditor intends to perform services for the company whose inclusion as 'audit services' could be contentious, the auditor should clearly set out such services in a document and obtain pre-approval from the audit committee for the performance of such services, prior to the conclusion of a formal contract with the company in this regard. This situation typically arises where a company, as a matter of policy, imposes certain procedures on itself which are not strictly speaking required as part of the audit.
- The phrase 'audit services' refers to those activities performed under the supervision and direction of the auditor in order to support an opinion on the AFS, and a review opinion on interim financial information, and, where applicable, to carry out other matters which are consequential on the audit appointment and which arise from statute (for example, the capital adequacy (Basel II) reports issued by an auditor of a registered bank in terms of the Banks Act).

10.4.7.2 As the audit committee determines the audit fee and terms thereof, and also the nature and extent of any non-audit services, and as both are ordinarily the subject of an engagement letter, there should be little risk arising from the definition as, whether the auditor includes a service as an audit service or a non-audit service, the audit committee will have input in approving such a service.

Issues for consideration

- 10.4.7.3 Audit committees have a specific duty to consider the independence of the auditor with reference to, inter alia, other services rendered by the auditor to the company. If an auditor renders any service without the requisite pre-approval, S94(8)(a) may render that auditor to be not independent. Care should therefore be taken to ensure that any non-audit services are pre-approved by the audit committee before those services are rendered to the company. Section 290 of the Code should also be considered where auditors are providing other services, as independence and safeguards to independence are discussed.

10.4.8 Pre-approval of agreements

Reference: Section 94

Issue: What is intended by the phrase 'pre-approve any proposed agreement with the auditor for the provision of non-audit services to the company'?

Discussion

- 10.4.8.1 The interpretation of the phrase 'pre-approve any proposed agreement with the auditor for the provision of non-audit services to the company' is difficult. However, it is important to consider both the intent of the legislation and also other practice in markets which have similar provisions. On this basis it is possible for there to be a master service agreement in place governing the auditor's provision of non-audit services, provided the agreement includes all material terms governing the provision of such non-audit services. Where an auditor has such a pre-approval in place it would nonetheless be incumbent on the auditor to table for approval from time to time the extent of fees to be paid or paid in respect of actual non-audit services provided. Further, the master service agreement should include the terms under which the services are provided, the nature of services which can be provided, and the extent of such services, which are pre-approved by the audit committee. If services are provided under different terms from those pre-approved by the audit committee, then these different terms should be pre-approved by the audit committee.

Issues for consideration

- 10.4.8.2 Every company should ensure that engagement letters deal with 'typical non-audit services' which the auditor normally provides to that company as part of the audit engagement letter which is considered and pre-approved by the audit committee. Where an auditor enters into any further agreements for additional, ad-hoc non-audit services, each such agreement will need to be considered by the audit committee.

10.4.9 Pre-approval policy

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Will a pre-approval policy be sufficient to discharge the obligation of the audit committee to pre-approve any agreement to provide non-audit services?

Discussion

A pre-approval policy drafted by the audit committee will not be sufficient to discharge the obligation on the audit committee to pre-approve all non-audit services. The provision of S94 that the audit committee must determine the 'nature and extent' of any non-audit services to be provided by the auditor appears, however, to require that the audit committee formulates a policy in this regard. Amongst other things, the audit committee could consider a list of services which the auditor would not, as a matter of principle, be allowed to render or certain limitations on fees to be paid for non-audit services received from the auditor.

10.4.10 Delegation by audit committees

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Can the functions of the audit committee be delegated to one member of the audit committee? Can the functions of the audit committee be delegated to a person who is not a member of the audit committee?

Discussion

- 10.4.10.1 The functions of the audit committee cannot be 'delegated' to either one member of the audit committee or another person in the company, for example a member of the board.
- 10.4.10.2 However, the audit committee would be able to 'authorise' a member of the audit committee to take certain steps in respect of a particular contract in the same manner that the board members would generally authorise a director to settle the terms of a particular agreement and sign documentation. Authorisation differs from delegation in the sense that authorisation requires the members of the audit committee to have applied their minds to a particular situation.

10.4.10.3 The audit committee may utilise advisors in the execution of its functions and may invite such advisors to attend its meetings.

10.4.11 Reliance of audit committee on other processes

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Can the audit committee rely on a process in executing its functions?

Discussion

10.4.11.1 An audit committee can establish, or require the company to establish, processes which support its activities. The audit committee should, however, be satisfied that the objectives of the Act and its statutory duties are not frustrated through the process of implementation.

10.4.11.2 For example, if the audit committee process for agreeing on the audit fees removed this decision ('the audit committee must determine') from the audit committee in favour of management, and the audit committee role was only one of being informed of any disagreement, then the process would be inappropriate.

10.4.11.3 However, if the audit committee process allowed for management and the auditor to provide the input necessary in building the audit hours and budget in a way that meant that the audit committee still determined the audit fee, this would be acceptable.

10.4.11.4 This acceptable process may be achieved through various processes, one of which might be:

- the auditor and management meet to discuss business and identify risks;
- the auditor and management meet with the audit committee and present the result of this process;
- the auditors scope the work and present an audit fee budget for comment to management but not for material amendment (errors and omissions would be dealt with but differences of view on the fee should be tabled for the audit committee to consider). The audit committee would consider the fee in light of supporting the appropriate scope of audit work being performed;

- the auditor present a fee budget to the audit committee with management's comments and suggestions for change noted.

10.4.11.5 The audit committee engages the parties and reaches a determination of the audit fee.

Issue for consideration

10.4.11.6 Care should be taken in establishing any process to ensure that the process itself does not interfere, restrict or otherwise limit the duty of the audit committee.

10.4.12 Audit committee approval of contracts for another entity

Reference: Section 94

Issue: Can the audit committee for the holding company pre-approve a contract for another entity in the group? Would it make a difference if the audit committee of the holding company were also the audit committee for a subsidiary?

Discussion

Only the audit committee appointed in respect of a particular company is entitled to perform any of the prescribed functions for that company. If the audit committee of the holding company has specifically been authorised to perform the required functions for subsidiary companies, the pre-approval by that audit committee in respect of a relevant subsidiary will be effective. The audit committee of the holding company will, however, be required to apply its mind in respect of the potential impact of the non-audit services on the particular subsidiary prior to granting the required approval.

10.4.13 Approval for non-audit services after commencement of services

Reference: Section 94

Issue: What is the position if the approval of the audit committee for the non-audit services is only obtained once a contract in this regard has already been signed by a relevant officer of the company or after the non-audit services have already commenced?

Discussion

The Act makes no provision for the ratification of any contracts, and the provision of any non-audit services without pre-approval should be avoided.

10.4.14 Audit committee report in annual financial statements

Reference: Section 1, Section 29, Section 30 and Section 94

Issue: Where in the AFS should the audit committee report be included?

10.4.14.1 Discussion

- AFS are included in the definition of financial statements.
- Whereas the previous Act required the audit committee to include a report in the 'financial statements', S94 of the Act specifically requires this report to be included in the 'Annual Financial Statements'.
- Where the AFS are presented with other information in, for example, an Annual Report, the placement of the audit committee report will need to be in the AFS section of such a report to give effect to the requirement of S94.

Issues for consideration

10.4.14.2 To ensure compliance with S94 of the Act and to avoid any potential conflict with the Auditing Profession Act, it is recommended that the audit committee report be included in the AFS (i.e. if the company issues an Annual Report which includes the AFS, the audit committee report should be placed in the AFS section of the said report). To the extent that the work required to be performed is in conflict with the APA, please refer to 3.2 of the Guide.

11 Existing share incentive scheme

11.1 Use of trust for share scheme

Reference: Section 95(1)(c), Section 96(1)(f), Section 97, Section 41(2)(d), Section 44(3)(a)(i) and Section 45(2)(c)(i)

Issue: Existing share schemes are affected by the new definition of 'employee share scheme,' which appears to be limited to the issue of shares or the granting of options, but which no longer requires the use of a trust.

Discussion

11.1.1 An employee share scheme is defined as:

'a scheme established by a company whether by means of a trust or otherwise, for the purpose of offering participation therein solely to employees, officers and other persons closely involved in the business of the company or a subsidiary of the company, either –

(i) by means of the issue of shares in the company; or

(ii) by the grant of options for shares in the company.'

11.1.2 Employee share schemes as defined above are excluded from a number of onerous requirements in terms of the Act, in addition to being exempted from the definition of offers to the public, if they comply with the exemption requirements of S97, for example the requirement to obtain a special resolution prior to granting financial assistance (see S44 and S45. Note, however, that the other requirements in S44 and S45 would still have to be met, even if a qualifying employee share scheme exists).

11.1.3 However, the definition is problematic in that it will only apply to schemes which provide for the issuing of shares or the granting of options (in other words not for schemes involving the purchase of shares on the market).

11.1.4 'Foreign companies' are specifically included in the definition of 'company' in this section. The share scheme exemption will therefore also apply to non-South African companies.

- 11.1.5 An employee share scheme will only qualify for the applicable exemptions if a number of requirements are met, including a statement in the AFS of the number of specified shares that has been allotted during the relevant financial year in terms of the scheme.
- 11.1.6 A trust is no longer required to qualify for the share scheme exemption, but may be used.
- 11.1.7 Other requirements relating to the compliance officer and his duties (S97) appear similar to S144A of the previous Act. (Note that the compliance officer referred to in S97 has certain responsibilities in respect of the share scheme. The term 'compliance officer' in this context does not refer to a general compliance function in the company.)

Issues for consideration

- 11.1.8 The Act will potentially have a significant impact on existing share schemes offered by both South African and non-South African companies to South African employees.
- 11.1.9 The compliance officer of existing share incentive schemes offered in South Africa or the comparable officers of a non-South African company offering shares to South African employees should consider whether the new definition of 'employee share scheme' applies to existing schemes and, if not, the appropriate course of action, which can include:
- an amendment to the existing scheme to comply with the definition; or
 - complying with the necessary approvals relating to, for example, financial assistance (S44) and financial assistance to directors (S45) if the share scheme exemption no longer applies.
- 11.1.10 The company can consider whether it would like to retain existing trusts created for purposes of existing share schemes and whether it wishes to utilise trusts for new schemes. Although a trust may no longer be required for purposes of company law, it may be useful for other purposes, depending on the provisions of every share scheme.

11.2 Effect of solvency and liquidity test

Reference: Section 4, Section 44, Section 45 and Section 46

Issue: Effects of the solvency and liquidity test on share schemes

Discussion

- 11.2.1 The solvency and liquidity test will remain an important consideration for all aspects associated with employee shares schemes.
- 11.2.2 Regardless of whether the company's employee share scheme meets the definition of 'employee share scheme' in the Act, the following sections would potentially require the directors to apply the solvency and liquidity test at the initiation or during the course of the relevant scheme:
- Section 44: Section 44 will apply if the company is to provide financial assistance to any person for the purpose of, or in connection with, the subscription of any option, or any securities, issued or to be issued by the company or a related or inter-related company, or for the purchase of any securities of the company or a related or inter-related company. In other words, the requirements contemplated in section 44 (including the solvency and liquidity test) apply to any financial assistance provided in respect of the issue or secondary trading of the company's securities.
 - Section 45: To the extent that the share scheme itself, or any aspect of the implementation of the share scheme could be seen as 'financial assistance' to either a director or related or inter-related company, the board will be required to apply the solvency and liquidity test (and meet the other requirements of section 45).
 - Section 46: Any distribution by a company to shareholders (including dividend distributions and the buy-back of shares) will be subject to the solvency and liquidity test.
- 11.2.3 We suggest that share schemes contain a catch-all provision which exempts the scheme from any obligation that it may have towards participants to the extent that the company does not meet the solvency and liquidity requirement on the date that the relevant obligation would otherwise arise.
- 11.2.4 Directors are, immediately as from the Effective Date, obliged to perform the solvency and liquidity test for the prescribed transactions.

Issues for consideration

- 11.2.5 The compliance officer of any existing share incentive schemes offered by South African companies should carefully consider whether it is necessary to include a limitation on the obligations of the scheme vis-à-vis participants in the event that the company does not meet the solvency and liquidity test when the obligation arises.
- 11.2.6 Boards should be careful to ensure that the solvency and liquidity test is applied in all instances required by the Act.

Reference: Section 36, Section 37 and Section 40

Issue: Flexibility around the issue of shares and rights attaching to shares creates new opportunities around share schemes.

Discussion

- 11.3.1 The Act provides for more flexibility around the rights attaching to shares, for example that the MOI can provide for 'unclassified shares' which will be classified (i.e. rights attached by) and issued by the board at its discretion (S36(1)(c)).
- 11.3.2 The Act provides that the MOI may provide for any terms of a class of shares to vary in response to an objectively ascertainable external fact (S37(6) and (7)).
- 11.3.3 The board of the company will determine the consideration payable for shares (S40(1)(a)), but the Act further provides that shares may be issued despite the fact that they have not been fully paid for (S40(5); the issue of shares in this instance will be subject to certain conditions).

Issues for consideration

- 11.3.4 The company can consider whether the flexibility around share rights and share issues allowed in the Act creates the opportunity to better align employee compensation and incentivisation with the requirements of the company.
- 11.3.5 It may be possible for the company to provide employee share incentives outside of the 'traditional' share schemes.

12 Appointment of a compliance officer for an employee share scheme

Reference: Section 97(1)

Issue: The appointment of a compliance officer is not per se required by the Act. However, in instances where a company invokes the exemptions outlined below, it can only do so if it has appointed a compliance officer and complies with the requirements set out in S97.

Discussion

- 12.1 For an employee share scheme to qualify for the exemptions stated in S41(2)(d), S44(3)(a)(i) or S45(3)(a)(i), the company must appoint a compliance officer for the scheme. The compliance officer is accountable to the directors of the company and is responsible for the administration of the scheme.
- 12.2 The compliance officer must provide a written statement to any employee who receives an offer of specified shares in terms of that employee scheme, setting out full particulars of the nature of the transaction, including the risks associated with it; information relating to the company, including its latest AFS, the general nature of its business and its profit history over the last three years; and full particulars of any material changes that occur in respect of any of the aforementioned information provided.
- 12.3 The compliance officer must ensure that copies of the documents containing the above information are filed with the Commission within 20 business days after the employee share scheme has been established; and must also file a certificate within 60 business days after the end of each financial year, certifying that he or she has complied with the obligations in terms of this section during the past financial year.
- 12.4 For the purpose of filing the required documents with the Commission, forms CoR46.1 and CoR46.2 must be completed and filed with the Commission.

Issues for consideration

Duties of the compliance officer

- 12.5 Forms CoR46.1 and CoR46.2, respectively, deal with the notice to the Commission advising that the company has established an employee share scheme and with the annual certificate confirming the company's compliance with the Act. The forms do not make provision for the inclusion of all the information as outlined above. It is submitted that copies of the required documents should be attached to CoR46.1 on establishment of the scheme and that reference to the attachments should be made in a covering letter to the Commission. The compliance officer should obtain and keep an acknowledgement of receipt of the documentation and appropriately keep record of the documents filed with the Commission.
- 12.6 It is submitted that the compliance officer should perform appropriate monitoring procedures in respect of the scheme, to ensure that the company complies with its obligations in respect of the scheme. A conflict of interest may, however, arise where the compliance officer is required to certify that he or she has complied with the obligations as outlined. An appropriate independent procedure for purposes of this certification should be considered and it is suggested that the 'authorised signature' on Form CoR46.1 should be the co-signature of management and the compliance officer.

Invoking the exemptions

- 12.7 Section 41(2)(d) determines that where the issue of shares, securities or rights is pursuant to an employee share scheme that satisfies the requirements of S97 (i.e. a compliance officer has been appointed to take responsibility for the above duties), approval by special resolution is not required for the issue of shares, securities or rights.
- 12.8 By the same token the board may rely on the exemption from adopting a special resolution when authorising financial assistance as contemplated in S44 and S45, if it complies with the compliance officer requirements of S97 in respect of employee share schemes.
- 12.9 It is, however, submitted that a special resolution is still required in all cases where the MOI of a company so requires. The memorandum may, however, not waive the requirement for the appointment of a compliance officer where a company wishes to invoke the exemptions outlined in S41(2)(d), S44(3)(a)(i) or S45(3)(a)(i). Also in instances where the MOI still requires the adoption of a special resolution, it is submitted that compliance with the further requirements in relation to such a resolution is still required as contained in S41, S44 and S45.

Appointment of a compliance officer for an employee share scheme

13 Business rescue

13.1 Mitigation of certain provisions

Reference: Chapter 6, Section 133 and Section 136

Issue: Mitigation of certain business rescue provisions which suspend the obligations of the financially distressed company

Discussion

- 13.1.1 The provisions of S133 (suspension of legal proceedings, including the enforcement of a guarantee of surety) and S136 (the right of the business rescue practitioner to cancel or suspend any provision of an agreement) may potentially have a severe impact on the company, in particular where major suppliers or customers are placed under business rescue.
- 13.1.2 It appears difficult to mitigate the risk posed by the above sections. Any of the following can be considered:
- obtaining alternative security in respect of obligations, other than guarantees or sureties;
 - not entering into very long-term agreements with any entities;
 - contractually requiring the third party to advise the company as soon as it considers entering into business rescue or receives notice from affected persons of their intention to commence such proceedings. However, we point out that should the third party fail to comply with this obligation there may be little the company can do about it.

Issues for consideration

- 13.1.3 We suggest that the company obtains well-informed advice prior to entering into new agreements with major suppliers or customers, as the existing safeguard against insolvency will not necessarily be effective protection in the business rescue environment.
- 13.1.4 We suggest a review of all major contract and existing suretyships and guarantees.
- 13.1.5 The potential impact of the possible suspension of agreements in terms of S136 is, in our view, a substantial business risk.

13.2 Duty of board if company is financially distressed

Reference: Section 128(1)(a) and (f), and Section 129(1) and (7)

Issue: Board duties when company is financially distressed

Discussion

- 13.2.1 Section 129(7) provides that if the board of a company has reasonable grounds to believe that the company is financially distressed, but the board has not adopted a resolution to commence business rescue proceedings, the board must deliver written notice to each affected person setting out the reasons for not initiating business rescue proceedings.

Issue for consideration

- 13.2.2 We suggest that the board of the company considers implementation of mechanisms to consider whether the company is 'financially distressed' as defined in S128(1)(f) and possibly consider contingency plans in the event that it concludes that the company is financially distressed.

13.3 Solvency and liquidity test

Reference: Section 128, Section 4, Section 22, Section 77, Section 128(1)(a) and (f), Section 129(1) and (7) and Regulation 29

Issue: Solvency and liquidity test

Discussion

Refer to our discussion of when a company would satisfy the solvency and liquidity test in terms of S4 of the Act in 5.2 of this Guide.

14 Whistle blowers

Reference: Section 159

Issue: Protection of whistle blowers

Discussion

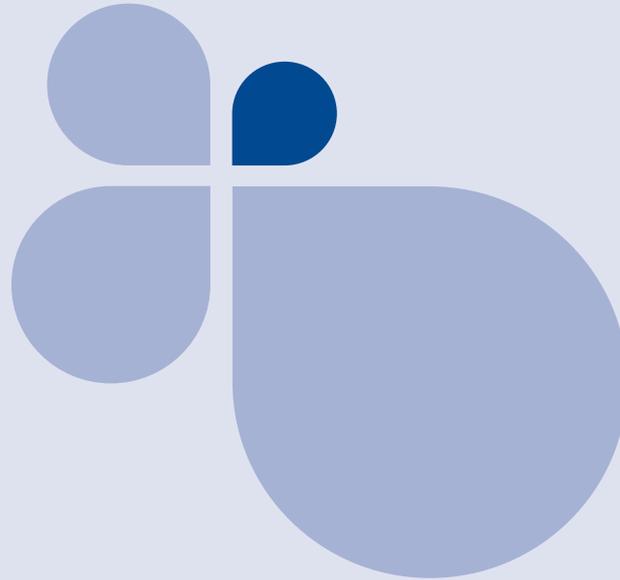

- 14.1 The Protected Disclosures Act, No. 26 of 2000 provides protection to an employee who discloses information under that Act as prescribed. The new Companies Act now also provides protection to a shareholder, director, company secretary, prescribed officer or registered trade union that represents employees of the company or another representative of the employees of that company, a supplier of goods or services to a company, or an employee of such a supplier who provides information in terms of S159. Section 159 applies to employees in addition to the Protected Disclosures Act. The application and effect of S159 may not be limited or negated by a company's MOI and any such action is void in terms of the Act.
- 14.2 Section 159 offers qualified privilege in respect of the disclosure and immunity from any civil, criminal or administrative liability for that disclosure.
- 14.3 Section 159 governs disclosures that comply with the following summarised requirements:
- the disclosure is made in good faith to the Commission, the Companies Tribunal, the Takeover Regulation Panel, a regulatory authority, an exchange, a legal adviser, a director, prescribed officer, company secretary, auditor, a person performing the function of internal audit, the board or committee of the company concerned; and
 - the whistle blower was under the reasonable belief at the time of the disclosure that the information showed or tended to show that a company or external company, or a director or prescribed officer of a company had –
 - contravened this Act, or a law mentioned in Schedule 4 of the Act;
 - failed or was failing to comply with any statutory obligation to which the company was subject;

- engaged in conduct that had endangered, or was likely to endanger, the health or safety of any individual, or had harmed or was likely to harm the environment;
 - unfairly discriminated, or condoned unfair discrimination, against any person, as contemplated in S9 of the Constitution and the Promotion of Equality and Prevention of Unfair Discrimination Act, No. 4 of 2000; or
 - contravened any other legislation in a manner that could expose the company to an actual or contingent risk of liability, or was inherently prejudicial to the interests of the company.
- 14.4 A whistle blower who discloses in compliance with S159 is entitled to compensation from the person to whom the disclosure was made, for any damages suffered as a result of threats posed in consequence of the disclosure.
- 14.5 A public company or a state-owned company is obligated to establish and maintain a system to receive S159 disclosures confidentially, and act on them; and routinely publicise the availability of that system to the categories of persons contemplated above.

Issues for consideration

- 14.6 Section 159 offers qualified privilege in respect of the disclosure. Qualified privilege offers protection against legal action instituted against the whistle blower usually for defamation, for acts committed in the performance of a legal or moral duty and rights properly exercised in good faith. It is interesting to note that S159 does not require companies other than public and state-owned companies to maintain a system to receive S159 disclosures confidentially. It is, however, submitted that in order for whistle blowers of these other companies to rely on privilege, the disclosure should clearly be marked as confidential.
- 14.7 The privilege is furthermore dependent on full compliance with the requirements as outlined above. Failure to comply with the onerous requirements listed in S59(3) by a whistle blower may jeopardise the whistle blower's ability to invoke the provisions pertaining to qualified privilege. Whistle blowing for contravention of laws, furthermore, seems to be limited to the Companies Act and the list of legislation in Schedule 4 that, inter alia, includes (but is not limited to) the Copyright Act, No. 98 of 1978, Designs Act, No. 195 of 1993 and the Merchandise Marks Act, No. 17 of 1941. If a contravention of any other law is disclosed, the whistle blower must be under the reasonable belief that the contravention could expose the company to an actual or contingent risk of liability, or is inherently prejudicial to the interests of the company. Under these onerous circumstances the whistle blower should take great caution not to fall foul of the provisions.

Annexure A – Alterable provisions

Used with the kind permission of Madelein Burger (Webber Wentzel)

Schedule of alterable provisions and prevalent matters relating to the Memorandum of Incorporation

	Section in Act	Alterable Provision
1.	4(2)(c)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise when applying the solvency and liquidity test in respect of a distribution, a person is not to regard as a liability any amount that would be required, if the company were to be liquidated at the time of the distribution, to satisfy the preferential rights upon liquidation of the shareholders whose preferential rights upon liquidation are superior to the preferential rights upon liquidation of those receiving the distribution.
2.	15(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board of a company may make, amend or repeal any necessary or incidental rules relating to governance in respect of matters not addressed in the Act or the MOI.
3.	16(1) read with 16(2)	An MOI may be amended if a special resolution to amend it is proposed by the board of the company or shareholders entitled to exercise at least 10% of the voting rights that may be exercised on such a resolution. The MOI may contain different requirements than the aforementioned with respect to the proposal of amendments.
4.	19(1)(b)(ii)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a company has all the powers and capacity of an individual.
5.	19(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a person is not, solely by reason of being an incorporator, shareholder or director, liable for any liabilities or obligations of the company.
6.	26(3)	The MOI of a company may establish additional information rights of any person with respect to any information pertaining to the company.

	Section in Act	Alterable Provision
7.	30(2)(b)(ii)(aa)	The annual financial statements of any company other than a public company (if not required to have an audit) may be audited voluntarily if the MOI or a shareholders' resolution so requires or if the company's board has so determined.
8.	34(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a private, personal liability or non-profit company is not required to comply with the extended accountability requirements set out in Chapter 3.
9.	35(6)(a)	Despite the repeal of the Companies Act, 1973 (Act No. 61 of 1973), a share issued by a pre-existing company, and held by a shareholder immediately before the effective date, continues to have all of the rights associated with it immediately before the effective date, irrespective of whether those rights existed in terms of the company's Memorandum of Incorporation, or in terms of that Act, subject only to – (a) amendments to that company's Memorandum of Incorporation after the effective date.
10.	36(2)(b)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the authorisation, classification, number of shares and the preferences, rights and limitations of each class of share, as set out in the MOI, may be changed by the board of a company.
11.	36(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board of a company can increase or decrease the number of authorised shares of any class, reclassify classified shares that have been authorised but not issued, classify the unclassified authorised shares and determine preferences, rights, limitations or other terms pertaining to unclassified shares.
12.	37(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise each share has 'one' general voting right.
13.	39(1)(a)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the provisions of S39 do not apply to a public company or a state-owned company.

14.	39(2) read with 39(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise if a private company proposes to issue any shares, other than as contemplated in S39(1)(b), each shareholder of a private company has a right to be offered, and within a reasonable time to subscribe for, a percentage of the shares to be issued equal to the voting power of that shareholder's general voting rights immediately before the offer was made.
15.	39(4)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a shareholder may take up fewer shares than those he would have been entitled to subscribe for and shares not subscribed for within a reasonable time may be offered to other persons.
16.	43(2)(a)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board of a company may authorise the company to issue a secured or unsecured debt instrument at any time.
17.	43(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a debt instrument may grant special privileges to the holder of the instrument regarding attending, voting at general meetings, appointing of directors or allotment of securities etc.
18.	44(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board may authorise the company to provide financial assistance by way of a loan, guarantee, security etc. to any person for the purposes of subscription or purchase of any securities of the company.
19.	45(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board may authorise the company to provide direct or indirect loans or other financial assistance to a director, prescribed officer of the company or related or inter-related company.
20.	47(1)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board of a company, by resolution, may approve the issuing of capitalisation shares and may permit any shareholder entitled to receive such capitalisation shares to elect instead to receive a cash payment.

	Section in Act	Alterable Provision
21.	56(1)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the company's issued securities may be held by, and registered in the name of, one person for the beneficial interest of another person.
22.	57(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise if a profit company, other than a state-owned company, has only one director, the director may exercise any power or perform any function of the board at any time, without notice or compliance with any other internal formalities.
23.	57(4)(a)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise if every shareholder is also a director of a company any matter referred by the board to the shareholders for decision may be decided by the shareholders without notice or compliance with any other internal formalities.
24.	58(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a shareholder of a company may appoint two or more proxies, a proxy may delegate his authority to another person and a copy of the proxy must be delivered to the company before the proxy exercises any rights.
25.	58(7)	A proxy is entitled to exercise, or abstain from exercising, any voting right of the shareholder without direction, except to the extent that the Memorandum of Incorporation, or the instrument appointing the proxy, provides otherwise.
26.	59(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise if the board does not determine a record date, in the case of a meeting, the record date is the latest date by which the company is required to give shareholders notice of that meeting or the date of the action or event, in any other case.

27.	61(3) read with 61(4)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board must call a shareholders' meeting if one or more written and signed demands are delivered and in aggregate demands for the same purpose are made by holders of at least 10% of the voting rights entitled to be exercised in relation to the matter proposed. The MOI may specify a percentage lower than 10%.
28.	61(9)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board of the company may determine the location for any shareholders' meeting of the company and a shareholders' meeting of the company may be held in the Republic or in any foreign country.
29.	62(1) read with 62(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise notice of each shareholders' meeting must be delivered at least 15 business days before the meeting is to begin, in the case of a public company or non-profit organisation that has voting rights, or 10 business days in any other case.
30.	63(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a shareholders' meeting may be conducted entirely or partially by electronic communication.
31.	64(1) read with 64(2)	A shareholders' meeting may not begin until at least 25% of persons holding all the voting rights that are entitled to be exercised in respect of at least one matter to be decided at the meeting are present and no matter to be decided may begin to be considered unless at least 25% of all voting rights that are entitled to be exercised on that matter are present. The MOI may specify a percentage lower or higher than 25% in either or both instances.
32.	64(4) and (5) read with 64(6)	If within one hour after the appointed time for a meeting to begin a quorum is not present, the meeting is postponed for one week and the person intended to preside over the meeting may extend the one-hour limit for a reasonable period. The MOI may provide for a longer or shorter period in respect of either or both the one-hour or one-week periods.

	Section in Act	Alterable Provision
33.	64(9)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise, after a quorum has been established for a meeting, the meeting may continue or the matter may be considered, so long as at least one shareholder with voting rights entitled to be exercised at the meeting is present.
34.	64(12) read with 64(13)	A meeting may not be adjourned beyond 120 business days after the record date or 60 business days after the date on which the adjournment occurred. The MOI may provide for different maximum periods of adjournment of meeting or for unlimited adjournment of meetings.
35.	65(8)	For an ordinary resolution to be approved by shareholders, it must be supported by more than 50% of the voting rights exercised on the resolution. The MOI may specify one or more higher percentages than 50%. There must be at all times a margin of at least 10% between the highest requirement for an ordinary resolution and the lowest established requirement for approval for a special resolution.
36.	65(9) and (10)	For a special resolution to be approved by shareholders, it must be supported by at least 75% of the voting rights exercised on the resolution. The MOI may specify one or more different percentages than 75% (i.e. either higher or lower). There must be at all times a margin of at least 10% between the highest requirement for an ordinary resolution and the lowest established requirement for approval for a special resolution.
37.	66(1)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the business and affairs of a company must be managed by or under the direction of the board, which has the authority to exercise all of the powers and perform any of the functions of the company.

44.	68(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise, for a profit company in any election of directors the election is to be conducted as a series of votes, each of which is on the candidacy of a single individual to fill a single vacancy, with the series of votes continuing until all the vacancies on the board at that time have been filled and each vote entitled to be exercised may be exercised once and the vacancy is filled if a majority of voting rights supports the candidate.
45.	68(3)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board may appoint a person who satisfies the requirements for election to fill any vacancy and serve as a director of the company on a temporary basis until the vacancy has been filled.
46.	69(6)	In addition to the provisions of S69, the MOI may impose additional grounds of ineligibility or disqualification of directors or minimum qualifications to be met by directors.
47.	72(1)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise the board may appoint any number of committees of directors and delegate to any committee any of the authority of the board.
48.	72(2)	Unless the MOI provides otherwise a board committee may include persons who are not directors of the company, may receive advice from any person and has full authority of the board in respect of matters referred to it.
49.	73(1) read with 73(2)	A director authorised by the board of a company must call a board meeting if required to do so by at least 25% of the directors (in the case of a board that has at least 12 members) or two directors in any other case. The MOI may specify a percentage higher or lower than 25% or two directors.

Annexure B – Considerations relating to MOI

Considerations relating to the content of the Articles/MOI and shareholders' agreements

- Each of the matters below should be considered in light of:
 - the applicable provisions of the Act;
 - applicable commercial realities; and
 - the general anti-avoidance provisions in S6 and the provisions of S15(2)(a).
- Consider any provisions in shareholders' agreements which are not in the Articles of Association

These provisions will need to be included in the MOI prior to the expiry of the two-year grace period.

- Voting percentages prescribed in the different documents (the Act, the MOI and shareholders' agreements) and whether these could or should be adjusted in light of:
 - the ability to move percentages required for special and ordinary resolutions (S65(8) and (10));
 - the new voting thresholds which are relevant for fundamental transactions (S115).
- Effect of S20(2) and S20(6) of the Act

Contravention of the MOI by the directors may be ratified by a special resolution, in which event there will be no claim for damages against the directors.

However, this may negatively affect minority protection, if the minority is not enough to prevent the passing of a special resolution.

The MOI can, for example, place a responsibility on shareholders to ratify an action only if it is ratified by all shareholders, including minorities.

- Amendment of rights attaching to shares of one class by the holders of another class: consider the requirements for the amendment of share rights of each class of shares

- Whether restrictions are required, and the extent of restrictions required, on the powers of directors to:

- increase or decrease the authorised shares;
- reclassify non-issued shares;
- classify unclassified non-issued shares;
- determine the preferences, rights, limitations and other terms associated with a class, not yet determined and not yet issued;
- amend the rights attaching to classes of shares; and
- make rules which are binding on the company and shareholders.

Note, however, that the powers contemplated above are all subject to the standard of conduct and prescribed liability of directors (see S75 to S78).

- Deadlock provisions

If the shareholders or directors are deadlocked, this is grounds for the winding-up of a company (S81).

Consider including a resolution mechanism in the MOI so that a deadlock cannot arise, for example 'resolutions deadlocked between directors referred to . . .'

- Solvency and liquidity

Consider providing guidance to directors on the solvency and liquidity test.

- Limitation of statutory pre-emptive right

The statutory pre-emptive right applies equally to all classes of shares (S39(2) to (4)). For example, if a private company proposes to issue ordinary shares, all preference shareholders will also have a pre-emptive right to these shares, unless this pre-emptive right is amended by the MOI.

- Restrictions on issue of debt instruments (S43)

The Act states that debt instruments can be issued unless prohibited by the MOI. Companies should consider whether they would want this prohibited.

- Consider limiting the ability to hold the company's securities for the beneficial interest of another (S56)

- Voting rights of directors

The Act states that each director has only one vote unless the MOI provides otherwise.

- Round robin resolutions

Currently the MOI will generally require 100% agreement for a round robin resolution to be passed by the directors. Consider removing the restriction (if it is in the MOI) to give more flexibility. The Act provides that a majority of directors may pass a round robin resolution, unless the MOI provides otherwise (S74).

Consider whether any shareholders' resolutions would be better dealt with in a meeting and how to include this requirement.

- Quorum

The MOI can alter the percentage required for a quorum. The default percentage for a quorum, regardless of whether an ordinary or special resolution is being considered, is 25% (S64).

Consider possible additional requirements, for example that a specific shareholder must be present at a meeting before a matter can be considered.

- General meetings

Consider whether the company, as private companies will no longer be required to have AGMs, should be required, by way of its MOI, to hold AGMs.

Annexure C – Decision tree on audit or review

Annexure D – Audit, review and reporting standards

Information regarding audit, review and financial reporting standards that should be applied

Calculation of the public interest score (section applicable to all companies)

To ascertain whether a company requires an audit or review, and which financial reporting standard should be applied, the company should calculate its public interest score for the financial year.

A company's public interest score is calculated at the end of each financial year as follows (Regulation 26(2)):

- a number of points equal to the average number of employees of the company during the financial year;
- one point for every R1 million (or portion thereof) in third party liability of the company at the financial year end;
- one point for every R1 million (or portion thereof) in turnover during the financial year; and
- one point for every individual who, at the end of the financial year, is known by the company to directly or indirectly have a beneficial interest in any of the company's issued securities.

Practical issues to be considered when calculating the public interest score

- This calculation should be made at a company level and not at a consolidated group level.
- When making the calculation, 'employee' has the meaning set out in the Labour Relations Act, 1995 (Act No. 66 of 1995). In this Act, an employee is defined as:

'(a) any person, excluding an independent contractor, who works for another person or for the State and who receives, or is entitled to receive, any remuneration; and

(b) any other person who in any manner assists in carrying on or conducting the business of an employer, and 'employed' and 'employment' have meanings corresponding to that of 'employee'.

The following additional guidance is provided in S200A of the Labour Relations Act, 1995 (Act No. 66 of 1995):

'Until the contrary is proved, a person who works for, or renders services to, any other person is presumed, regardless of the form of the contract, to be an employee, if any one or more of the following factors are present:

- (a) the manner in which the person works is subject to the control or direction of another person;*
 - (b) the person's hours of work are subject to the control or direction of another person;*
 - (c) in the case of a person who works for an organisation, the person forms part of that organisation;*
 - (d) the person has worked for that other person for an average of at least 40 hours per month over the last three months;*
 - (e) the person is economically dependent on the other person for whom he or she works or renders services;*
 - (f) the person is provided with tools of trade or work equipment by the other person; or*
 - (g) the person only works for or renders services to one person.'*
- 'Third party liabilities' is not defined in the Act. These liabilities are viewed to be all liabilities of a company that are payable to an identifiable third party. The following practical issues need to be considered:
 - items should meet the definition of a 'liability' and involve a 'third party';
 - all liabilities (including subordinated loans) from shareholders are seen to be with a directly related party of the company and should be excluded from the public interest score calculation;
 - loans from directors should be excluded from the public interest score calculation;
 - provisions recognised in terms of the prescribed financial reporting standards should only be included if reasonably deemed to be payable and the third party can be clearly identified (for example, deferred tax would be excluded);
 - when calculating the public interest score the company should be considered and not the group, and therefore loans from other companies within a group should be included in the calculation of the public interest score. For example, intercompany creditors should be included in the calculation. However, loans not provided on normal commercial terms should be excluded as favourable terms would be deemed to compromise the 'third-party' status of the counterparty; for example, loans with no specific repayment terms and interest charge.

Note: If you are uncertain as to whether a liability is a third party liability, the more conservative approach would be to include this in the calculation.

- For the purposes of this calculation, 'beneficial interest' is defined as follows:

'when used in relation to a company's securities, means the right or entitlement of a person, through ownership, agreement, relationship or otherwise, alone or together with another person to –

- (a) receive or participate in any distribution in respect of the company's securities;*
- (b) exercise or cause to be exercised, in the ordinary course, any or all of the rights attaching to the company's securities; or*
- (c) dispose or direct the disposition of the company's securities, or any part of a distribution in respect of the securities,* but does not include any interest held by a person in a unit trust or collective investment scheme in terms of the Collective Investment Schemes Act, 2002 (Act No. 45 of 2002).'

A person is also regarded as having a beneficial interest in a security if the security is held nomine officii by another person on that first person's behalf.

As Regulation 26 requires one point to be allocated to each individual known to the company with a direct or indirect beneficial interest, another practical issue has developed. The reference to 'indirect beneficial interest' could imply that a subsidiary of a holding company could be required to include the individuals with a beneficial interest in the holding company in its public interest score, as these individuals could be seen as having an indirect interest through its shareholding in the subsidiary.

Currently there are two views regarding this matter. The first opinion is that the shareholders of a holding company should be included in the calculation of the public interest score of its subsidiary as they are seen to have an indirect beneficial interest. The second view is that the shareholders of a holding company does not have the right or entitlement to distributions of the subsidiary, dispose or direct disposal of securities of the subsidiary or to direct the voting in respect of and therefore they are not seen as having a beneficial interest and should therefore be excluded from the calculation of the public interest score. SAICA supports the second view.

The JSE Ltd (JSE), however, has indicated that all subsidiaries of a company listed on the JSE should be audited with the view that the status quo under the Companies Act, 1973, should be maintained in relation to publicly listed groups.

With regard to calculating the beneficial interest in a company whose securities are held by a trust, the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) has expressed the view that the individual beneficiaries of the trust should be counted as the individual beneficial interest holders.

- 'Turnover' is defined in Regulation 164(4) as follows:

'At any particular time, the annual turnover of –

(a) a company other than a holding company is the gross revenue of that company from income in, into or from the Republic, arising from the following transactions or events, as recorded on the company's most recent annual financial statements:

(i) the sale of goods;

(ii) the rendering of services; or

(iii) the use by other persons of the company's assets yielding interest, royalties, or dividends; or . . .'

Regulation 164(1) states:

'For purposes of S. 175 of the Act, the assets and turnover of a company at any particular time must be calculated in accordance with –

(a) the financial reporting standards applicable to that company, as set out in regulation 27; or

(b) SA GAAP, as defined in regulation 26(1)(f), in the case of a company in respect of which no financial reporting standards have been prescribed.'

While Regulation 164 defines the term 'turnover', it states that this definition is only provided for the purpose of the calculation of administrative fines and is not extended for use in calculation of the public interest score.

The definition provided is, however, the same as the definition provided for 'revenue' in all the prescribed financial reporting standards (FRSs), whereas 'turnover' is not defined in the FRSs. As general practice, turnover is determined as the revenue generated from the primary activities of a company. It would, however, be more conservative to include all revenue generated by a company for the calculation of the public interest score, as this definition is more in line with the guidance provided in Regulation 164. An alternative, potentially more aggressive, approach would be to use 'turnover' as it is currently used in the preparation of the financial statements.

- Regulation 26 requires every company to calculate its public interest score at the end of each financial year. This could, however, cause a practical problem for the audit or review process applicable to the company. If a company is required to be audited in terms of its public interest score calculated at the end of the financial year, certain procedures, such as a stock count that should have been conducted on the last day of the financial year, would not have been performed. A solution to this problem is to calculate an additional public interest score based on the average results of the last few years. This will eliminate the impact of major fluctuations experienced in a business on the results of the public interest score.
- The public interest score calculated before the audit adjustments may change substantially after the audit adjustments are made. This can have a material impact on whether an audit or independent review is required and what financial reporting standard should be applied. The final public interest score on which these requirements are based should reflect the results of a company after the audit adjustments are processed and, therefore, could impact on the requirement to be reviewed or audited.

Summary of which entities require an audit or independent review and the financial reporting standard that should be applied (section applicable to all companies)

An audit will always be required if:

- (1) it is stipulated in the MOI that a company should be audited;
- (2) the company holds assets greater than R5 million in a fiduciary capacity in the course of its primary business.

A voluntary audit can be decided on by a board or shareholders' resolution, but this will not in itself impact on the FRSs that should be applied in terms of the tables above. It should also be considered that in order to be able to express an audit opinion on the AFS, those statements must be prepared in accordance with a recognised framework. Therefore, the AFS cannot be prepared on the basis of FRS as determined by the company, in the case of a company which will be audited.

Additionally, Regulation 26 provides the following definitions that should be applied in conjunction with Regulation 27 when determining the FRSs that should be applied:

* Subject to meeting the scoping restrictions of the standard

 The term 'owner-managed' refers to those companies which qualify for the exemption from independent review in terms of S30(2A) of the Act.

'IFRS means the International Financial Reporting Standards as issued from time to time by the International Accounting Standards Board or its successor body

IFRS for SMEs means the International Financial Reporting Standards for Small and Medium Enterprises, as issued from time to time by the International Accounting Standards Board or its successor body*

SA GAAP means the South African Statements of Generally Accepted Accounting Practice, as adopted from time to time by the Accounting Practices Board or its successor body.'*

Example of the calculation of the public interest score

- Company X had a turnover of R22.56 million for the 20X financial year.
- The number of employees was 89 for every month except for June when the company appointed three additional temporary staff members for the full month.
- The company had liabilities of R16.7 million that consisted of the following:
 - trade creditors of R10.7 million;
 - intercompany loans of R3 million (on commercial terms);
 - shareholders' loans of R3 million (on commercial terms).
- The company has three shareholders.
- The financial statements are prepared independently by an independent accounting professional.

Solution

• Step 1 Calculation of the public interest score

23 points for turnover

89.25 points for the average number of employees ((89 × 11 months + 92 × 1 month)/12 months)

14 points for third-party debt (excluding shareholders' loans)

3 points for the shareholders

= public interest score of 129.25

• Step 2 Audit or review

The public interest score is 129.25 and therefore falls within the category 'greater than 100 and smaller than 350'. As the financial statements are prepared by an independent accounting professional, an independent review is required to be performed by a member of SAICA or a registered auditor with the IRBA.

- Step 3 Financial reporting standard

The public interest score is 129.25 and therefore falls within the category 'greater than 100 and smaller than 350'. The company will have a choice of IFRS, IFRS for SMEs and SA GAAP. Before IFRS for SMEs can be applied, the company should first meet the scope requirements of this standard.

Annexure E – JSE Listings Requirements

Summary of differences between the Act and the JSE Listings Requirements

Act Reference	Companies Act Requirement	JSE Requirements Number	JSE Listings Requirements
Definition	“special resolution” means – (a) in the case of a company, a resolution adopted with the support of at least 75% of the voting rights exercised on the resolution, or a different percentage as contemplated in section 65(10) – (i) at a shareholders meeting; or (ii) by holders of the company’s securities acting other than at a meeting, as contemplated in section 60’;	Definition	“special resolution” means a resolution adopted at a shareholders’ meeting and which constitutes a special resolution as contemplated in section 65(9) of the Act, a special resolution in terms of the MOI, with the support of at least 75 percent of the votes cast by all equity securities holders present or represented by proxy at the general meeting or annual general meeting convened to approve such resolution.’
Section 11(b)	A company name in the case of a profit company may be the registration number that must be immediately followed by the expression (South Africa).	Schedule 11 Paragraph 2(b)	A name of a company may not be a registration number.
Section 15(3)	The board of the company may make, amend or repeal any necessary or incidental rules relating to the governance of the company in respect of matters that are not addressed in this Act or the Memorandum of Incorporation by; (a) publishing a copy of those rules, in any manner required or permitted by the Memorandum of Incorporation or the rules of the company and (b) filing a copy of those rules.	Schedule 10 Paragraph 10.4	The directors’ power to make rules as contemplated in Section 15(3) of the Act must be prohibited.

Section 29(3) Section 29(4)	A company may provide any person with a summary of any particular financial statements but any such financial statements must satisfy the Financial Reporting Standards. The Minister may make regulations prescribing (b) form and content requirements for summaries contemplated in subsection (3).	Section 8 Paragraph 8.57	The JSE states that the Act allows for summary financial statements to be distributed to shareholders, unfortunately neither the Act nor the Regulations provided for the prescribed requirements for a summary. Should you prepare a summary certain JSE requirements should be met, but the JSE advises that listed companies obtain the necessary advice to determine the legality of the action. The summary of Financial Statements must <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • be prepared in accordance with the framework concepts and measurements and recognition requirements of IFRS and the AC 500 standards as issued by the Accounting Practices Board or its successor and • must also as a minimum contain <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (i) the information required by IAS 34: Interim Financial Reporting (in other words the disclosure requirements) and (ii) a statement confirming that it has been prepared.
Section 40(5)	If the consideration for any shares that are issued or to be issued is in the form of an instrument such that the value of the consideration cannot be realised by the company until a date after the time the shares are to be issued, or is in the form of an agreement for future services, future benefits or future payment by the subscribing party;	Schedule 10 Paragraph 10.2	Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 40(5) of the Act, the JSE will not list shares that are not fully paid for upon listing.

Act Reference	Companies Act Requirement	JSE Requirements Number	JSE Listings Requirements
	(a) the consideration for those shares is regarded as having been received by the company at any time only to the extent (i) that the value of the consideration for any of those shares has been realised by the company or (ii) that the subscribing party to the agreement has fulfilled its obligation in terms of the agreement.
Regulation 28	All the subsidiaries of listed companies, meeting the definition of a company in the Companies Act, must apply the Public Interest Score and if they qualify for audit then they will have to be audited.	Schedule 10 Paragraph 10.22	All the subsidiaries of listed companies must be audited. Foreign subsidiaries, not registered in the Republic of South Africa need not be audited in terms of the JSE Listings Requirements.

Note: this summary only deals with some of the differences between the Companies Act and the JSE Listings Requirements (Service Issue 14, issued November 2011). If you wish to list please review the full set of the Listings Requirements as the JSE has additional requirements that are not required in the Companies Act.

Annexure F – UN Global Compact

The following is an extract from the United Nations Global Compact website pertaining to the 10 principles referred to in Regulation 43(5) regarding the duties of the social and ethics committee. The rights are subject to change.

The UN Global Compact's ten principles in the areas of human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption enjoy universal consensus and are derived from:

- The Universal Declaration of Human Rights
- The International Labour Organization's Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work
- The Rio Declaration on Environment and Development
- The United Nations Convention Against Corruption

The UN Global Compact asks companies to embrace, support and enact, within their sphere of influence, a set of core values in the areas of human rights, labour standards, the environment and anti-corruption:

Human Rights

- Principle 1: Businesses should support and respect the protection of internationally proclaimed human rights; and
- Principle 2: make sure that they are not complicit in human rights abuses.

Labour

- Principle 3: Businesses should uphold the freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining;
- Principle 4: the elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labour;
- Principle 5: the effective abolition of child labour; and
- Principle 6: the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation.

Environment

- Principle 7: Businesses should support a precautionary approach to environmental challenges;

- Principle 8: undertake initiatives to promote greater environmental responsibility; and
- Principle 9: encourage the development and diffusion of environmentally friendly technologies.

Anti-Corruption

- Principle 10: Businesses should work against corruption in all its forms, including extortion and bribery.'
